TAFT DROPS BOTH HOOK AND NAGEL

Nagel's Brewery Connections Thought to Have Barred Him from Supreme Court.

NEW NAMES CONSIDERED

Judges Buffington of Pennsylvania and Baker of Indiana, and an Unnamed New Yorker Thought Of.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—A last desperate effort was made this morning by friends of Judge William C. Hook of Kansas to persuade the President to appoint him to the vacancy on the Supreme Court bench, caused by the death of Associate Justice Harlan. It was not successful, however, and the best information obtainable to-night is that not only is Judge Hook practically out of the running, but also that Secretary Nagel, who has been generally regarded as the man who would win in case Hook did not, now stands very little chance of being named.

It was said this afternoon that the President would look for Justice Harlan's successor in Pennsylvania, New York, or Indiana. Judge Joseph Buffington of the Third United States Circuit is the leading Pennsylvania candidate, and Judge Francis E. Baker of the Seventh Circuit is the Indiana man under consideration. It was not learned what New Yorker the President has in mind as a possible appointee. It is certain that the appointment will not be made before next Wednesday.

Senator Curtis and Representative Anthony of Kansas, the chief sponsors for Judge Hook, went to the White House this morning with one of the Kansas Judge's Western supporters and had a long conference with the President. They found that the "Jim Crow" decision in which Judge Hook concurred was the chief reason advanced against his availability for the Supreme bench. No argument they could submit seemed of any value against this decision, although they have obtained the indorsement for Hook of all the negroes concerned in the case in which that decision was given. They could not learn whether there is any other objection to their man which has not yet been made known to them.

No sooner was the report published that Judge Hook had been eliminated than a sharp fight was opened on Mr. Nagel. It was led by certain Prohibitionists who allege that Mr. Nagel was for years the paid attorney of the big brewing interests of St. Louis.

The complaint against him is that he has been perniciously active in politics with this brewery connection, and that he obtained from his beermaking clients four years ago a substantial contribution to the Republican campaign fund. It is alleged that Mr. Nagel was made a member of the Executive Committee of the Republican National Committee through the influence of brewers, and some of the Prohibitionists even charge that it was the brewery influence that put him in the Cabinet.

The Prohibitionists have not yet made it clear how they are going to handle these charges with the President, who was himself the beneficiary of Mr. Nagel's political activities four years ago, but it is evident that they hope by making a public row about it to prevent his appointment to the Supreme Court.

Mr. Nagel is also in for a contest with some of the progressive Republicans in case he should be appointed. They are threatening to-night to fight his confirmation. Their ground of objection is his alleged connection with the Standard Oil Company. This is a revival of an old charge which Mr. Nagel has denied emphatically heretofore. He said that he personally had never done any legal work for the Standard Oil Company, although his St. Louis firm had been retained in two or three minor cases. The progressives are declaring now that Mr. Nagel was on a yearly retainer by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, a Standard-Oil concern, and that only thirty days before he entered the Cabinet he went to the Supreme Court of Missouri and withdrew his name as attorney of record in a case in which he had been appearing for that company.

The character of these objections to Mr. Nagel shows the temper that is being developed about the Supreme Court situation by the long delay in making the nomination.

Mr. Nagel has the hearty support of Attorney General Wickersham and would probably have been nominated long ago if he were not two years over the sixty-year age limit that the President has set for himself in selecting Justices of the Supreme Court.

Judge Buffington is supported heartily by Senator Oliver. Secretary Knox has also indorsed him. Senator Penrose has not been active in the matter, because within the last day or two it has not appeared that any Pennsylvanian had a chance of landing the place. Senator Penrose's first choice is Judge John Elkin of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court. But if he can't win the place for Elkin, Senator Penrose will support Judge Buffington.

Senator Oliver's candidate, Judge Buffington, has been on the Federal bench for twenty years, the last five and a half as a Circuit Judge. The President has an appointment for next Tuesday with a delegation of Pennsylvanians who are coming here to urge the claims of Judge Buffington.

Judge Baker, the Indiana candidate, is a comparatively young man, having been born in Goshen, Ind., in October, 1860. He was educated at the universities of Indiana and Michigan, and has been a member of the bar since 1885. He practiced first at Goshen in partnership with his father, who served for years as United States District Judge for the Indiana district.

After serving three years on the Indiana Supreme Court, Judge Baker was appointed United States Circuit Judge for the Seventh Circuit by President Roosevelt on Feb. 4, 1902. His chief support for the United States Supreme bench comes from members of the bar and from his associates on the bench in Indiana and at Chicago. Some time ago three former members of the Indiana Supreme Court and one of the present members of that bench came to Washington to see the President in behalf of Judge Baker's candidacy for the Supreme Bench. They pointed out to the President the fact that although Indiana had become a State in 1816, no Indiana man had ever served as a member of the United States Supreme Court. They urged that the State was entitled to supply a member of that court, and that Judge Baker was amply qualified for the place.

The President has examined a number of the opinions rendered by Judge Baker on the circuit bench, and has expressed himself as satisfied with the evidence of his judicial ability which they show.

Judge Baker was appointed to the circuit bench upon the recommendation of former Senator Beveridge. Thus far there has been no special political preference by Indiana men in his behalf. Neither the Beveridge faction nor the Hemenway-Watson old guard element has taken an active interest in his candidacy.

Old Chicago Times Building Sold.

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—The old Times Building, one of Chicago's landmarks, is to be replaced by a modern structoure to cost not less than $500,000. The site has been leased to Thaddeus H. Howe for a term of ninety-nine years, one of the terms of the lease being that the new building be finished by Dec. 1, 1926. The annual rental for the first fifteen years is to be $27,000, and $30,000 thereafter. The Times Building was erected shortly after the big fire by the late Wilbur F. Story.

GRADY LEFT BUT $1,000.

Sister of Dead Tammany Senator Becomes the Sole Heir.

Miss Margaret M. Grady, sister of the late State Senator Thomas F. Grady, applied yesterday for letters of administration of his estate. She is the sole heir, as he died intestate. According to Miss Grady, her brother left about $1,000 in personal property. The house in which he died was his sister's property, having been left to her with some other small pieces of realty by the Senator's parents.

Among Senator Grady's effects is a fine collection of missals, or massbooks, from all centuries, beginning with the Middle Ages. Some of these missals are handsomely illuminated and bound. The collection of these missals was his great hobby.

LOSES LEGS; KEEPS SENSES.

Remarkable Vitality of Victim of Subway Accident.

David Drummond, a baker, of 128 Varick Street, fell last night in front of a southbound Subway train at the Canal Street Station, and both legs were nearly amputated. He was conscious when extricated and placed in an ambulance summoned from Hudson Street Hospital. Patrolman Melzak of the Elizabeth Street Station was one of the first to assist in dragging the injured man from beneath the forward truck of the front car.

"Be careful," cautioned Drummond. "I'm still alive."

The patrolman slipped the leather thong of his night stick over the man's right thigh and twisted the strap. With this improvised tourniquet the flow of blood was stayed. With a strip of cloth that had been cut away from the man's trousers by the wheels the patrolman succeeded in stopping the profuse flow of blood from the left leg. While he was being taken to the hospital Dr. Garrett the ambulance surgeon, completed the amputation. During the operation Drummond did not lose consciousness. He cautioned the surgeon to be careful not to cause him unnecessary pain.

"It is remarkable," said Dr. Garrett, "that a man after losing so much blood should retain consciousness. He has a strong physique, otherwise he would have been instantly killed."

Even after Drummond, who is 30 years old, was taken to the hospital he did not lose consciousness. He lay upon a cot, telling the physicians how the accident occurred, and thanking them for not causing him unnecessary pain.

"I really don't know how I came to fall," he declared. "I remember standing near the edge of the platform and seeing the train approach. I had been drinking a little, but had not had enough to make me intoxicated. The last I remember is seeing the lights on the front of the train. Everything became black for a moment, and when I opened my eyes I looked up and saw the blackened mechanism of the truck.

It was later reported at the hospital that Drummond's recovery was hopeless. The accident caused a delay of fifteen minutes in the Subway.

ICEBOUND FAMILY SAVED.

Volunteers from Atlantic City Rescue Starving Prisoners on Island.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Feb. 9.—John P. Conover, his wife, and daughter, Eugenie, were rescued to-day from Eagle Island, a little strip of land about five miles up the bay, where they have been ice-bound and facing starvation and exposure for ten days. Capt. John Bowen led a volunteer life-saving crew at the risk of their own lives in a small power boat up the ice-filled stream in the meadows opposite the cabin on the island where the family lived.

The rescuers then crossed the ice to the cabin, where they found Conover and his family huddled around a small stove, but the heat from it was useless, as many of the boards had been taken from the cabin for fuel.

The rescuers improvised a sled from what were left of the cabin, and on this they dragged the Conovers to the spot where they had left their boat. Here another hard task awaited them, to get the boat back to this city in safety. Pieces of ice were encountered, and several times the little craft was in danger of overturning.

Conover said to-night that he killed some ducks, upon which the family lived, but the experience was beginning to tell upon his wife and child and also upon himself, and he believed that unless he had been rescued soon all would have succumbed.

SHOT AT IN HIS STORE.

Ann Street Assayer Says He'll Get Youthful Gun Man Unaided.

Policeman O'Connor of the Oak Street Station came on Albert C. Sontholl, a gold and silver refiner and assayer, walking slowly last night along Ann Street toward his store, at 53 Ann Street, between Nassau and William Streets. Mr. Sontholl was bareheaded, and to the policeman's questions replied:

"Oh, it's all right. A young chap just came into my store, and shot twice at me. I chased him, but he got away. I'll get him, though. He lives in Brooklyn."

Mr. Sontholl, who is about 50 years old, said that he had been about to close up his place—it was about 7 o'clock—when a young man, clean-shaven, of medium weight and height, and well dressed in dark clothes entered, and asked to have a fob, which he tendered to Mr. Sontholl, tested. The jeweler started toward his backroom where his testing utensils are, and as he stepped through the door there was the report of a revolver and a bullet struck the door beside his head. Mr. Sontholl said he made a quick jump toward his safe to get his own revolver, when there came a second shot which whizzed past his head.

By this time he had got his gun, but as he faced about the youth ran, and though Mr. Sontholl hurried after him, the young man had disappeared around the corner of William Street before Mr. Sonthol reached the corner.

The jeweler seemed to think that he knew the young man, but he wouldn't tell the police how he knew him or give them any more information.

"I'll do my own sleuthing," said he, "and I'll get that young man."

CROWDED CAR JUMPS TRACK.

A Dozen Passengers Slightly Hurt in a Brooklyn Crash.

A Fifth Avenue trolley car, well filled with passengers on their way downtown to the theatres, jumped the track about 7:40 o'clock last night at Fifth Avenue and Thirty-sixth Street, Brooklyn, and hit a car on the opposite track.

A dozen of the passengers were cut with bits of glass, and all were shaken up by the force of the collision. None was hurt badly enough to go to the hospital. Ambulance surgeons from the Norwegian and Seney Hospitals dressed the injuries of Mrs. Catherine Meale of 1,509 Atlantic Avenue and George Cousage of 527 Fortieth Street.

WIRE-CLOTH AIRSHIP TO CARRY VANIMAN

New Fabric the Inventor Hopes Will Bear Him Across the Atlantic.

TESTED BY U.S. SIGNAL CORPS

Sustained Flight of 72 Hours Possible in a Dirigible of Such Material, Says Gen. Allen.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The invention by Melvin Vaniman, the aerial engineer, of a peculiarly strong steel wire cloth is now under examination by the United States Signal Corps and is said to be likely to revolutionize aerial navigation by means of dirigibles. The composition and characteristics of this cloth are but little known outside of the few who are in the secret. It is supposed to be made of a wire drawn from vanadium steel and combining great strength and lightness.

The ductility of the metal is such that the wire is drawn as fine as a No. 80 linen thread, and in the weaving it produces a fabric that holds water. By means of a composition the wire is coated, so as to make it gas tight under high pressures. Samples of the fabric have been put in the hands of Gen. Allen, Chief Signal Officer of the army, and it has sustained various tests calculated to show its availability for the special purpose for which it was designed.

Aeronauts in the army regard the invention as having great significance, and essentially making possible a new era in aeronautics.

"With such material for the envelope of the dirigible," said Gen. Allen to-day, "it is conceivable that sustained flight would be easily accomplished through a period of fully seventy-two hours. It is conceded that for military purposes there is everything to emphasize the value of the dirigible. The aeroplane is valuable, but it has so many limitations and must be used at such high speeds that its application to military uses will always be accompanied by great risk.

"Flight by night with the aeroplane is practically impossible in military operations, and we have all along looked to the dirigible for a solution of the problem of reconnoitering in that way. The dirigible is so much more a ship, carries so much more weight and passengers that its value for war is inconceivably greater. Sooner or later every modern army will be compelled to use them. The cost is greater, but the extent to which one good dirigible may be used in time of war is so great that it is not necessary to have a fleet of them.

"The small dirigible which we acquired in 1908 and which is now at Fort Omaha, where it is used to give officers in the Signal School of the army slight instruction in aeronautics, is practically negligible as military equipment. We really need a large modern dirigible comparable with the best that has yet been attained abroad, where progress in this line has been more substantial and rapid than with this country. Our limitations here are in the matter of adequate facilities for instructing officers. I think the funds would be furnished for supplying a large modern dirigible if we had the officers to use it effectively for military purposes.

"I expect Vaniman's work will lead to valuable results. He is an aerial engineer of great skill and he is likely to accomplish eventually what he has set out to do—make a dirigibe that will cross the Atlantic."

Notwithstanding Gen. Allen's interest in aviation as an aid in warfare, the army bill as it will pass the House will carry a cut of $60,000 from the estimates of Gen. Allen for aeronautic equipment and training. It is not likely that the Senate will increase the amount, and the amount available for the next fiscal year will be $75,000. This will allow practically nothing for experimental scientific work, and therefore it may safely be said that the Government will do as nearly nothing as possible for aeronautics in the near future.

The unfortunate phase of this indifference to a most important and rapidly developing field of military exploitation is that great positive advances have been made within the last few months in other countries in the use of dirigibles for military purposes. Within the last week one of the French dirigibles has made a reconnaissance along the entire Franco-German frontier, a distance of 630 miles, in twenty-one hours in continuous sustained flight. The Germany army is now equipped to construct its own dirigibles with the most approved materials and machinery and is building two of the largest yet attempted.

A SUBMARINE OF THE AIR.

So Vaniman Calls the Dirigible He's to Make of His New Cloth.

Melvin Vaniman's discovery of his new style of balloon cloth is the direct result of his attempt to make a trial trip with the airship Akron from Atlantic City in November. For that trip the Akron was fitted out with a cloth two and one-half times as strong as any balloon cloth then in use. With this extra strength he was able to experiment slightly with the compression of hydrogen in the balloon bag and to effect a landing, which he made after his machinery went wrong, by pumping air into an air compartment within the main balloon until the hydrogen's volume had shrunk enough to bring the big dirigible to the ground.

From the beginning, with the cloth two and one-half times as strong as the normal, Vaniman worked until he has achieved a cloth fifty times stronger than any cloth ever before put into the manufacture of balloons.

"At last the rational airship!" was Vaniman's exclamation when he was asked about the report from Washington that the Signal Service had tested his new cloth and found it practicable.

"I feel so happy over this matter that I can hardly discuss it yet," he said. "It sounds too good to be true. What the new cloth does is simply this: It means no more equilibrator problems, no more ballast problems, no more drag rope problems or sinking into the ocean at midnight.

"We have a prison for the hydrogen at last that will hold it. Put hydrogen in a strong steel case and heat it and it can't expand—it becomes compressed just as steam does and air does and water does.

"By making a cloth fifty times as strong as the cloth heretofore used—see what we have got? We have got cloth strong enough to keep the hydrogen always at a fixed volume.

Lesson of the America's Flight.

"When we were out at sea in the America, the first warm morning we had —whiz!—we went up in the air 3,000 feet before we knew it. And then I had to let our precious gas go to get down again, and then in the next fog we found ourselves dropping into the ocean and had to throw over a big motor to keep from being submerged completely.

"That's where the story of the experiment started. I blamed the equilibrator then because I did not think any cloth could be made that would solve the problem.

"But when Mr. Seiberling of the Goodyear Rubber Company at Akron, Ohio,

ST. GEORGE'S CLERGY ARE ALL TO DEPART

Baltimore Calls the Rev. Dr. Birckhead, and It Is Said He Has Decided to Accept.

ALL HIS CURATES GOING, TOO

But, They Say, That Is Not on the Rector's Account—The Baltimore Church a Small One.

Word was received here yesterday that the Rev. Dr. Hugh Birckhead, the rector of St. George's Episcopal Church in Stuyvesant Square, had accepted a call to the Emmanuel Church in Baltimore, and expects soon to hand in his resignation to the Vestrymen of St. George's Nervous strain on account of the vast amount of work connected with St. George's, which is the largest Episcopal parish in the city, was given as the cause of Dr. Birckhead's determination to seek a new pastorate in a more quiet neighborhood.

The Emmanuel Church in Baltimore, to which he was said to have attached himself, has only 1,000 parishioners, and they are among Baltimore's quieter and more conservative residents. Dr. Birckhead was not at the parish house at 209 East Sixteenth Street last night when friends called to inquire into the accuracy of the report.

It was stated that he had gone away on a vacation to Baltimore and Washington and would not be back until this evening. One report was to the effect that Dr. Birckhead has had some differences with the Vestrymen and that out of sympathy for him all the curates connected with the pastorate intended to resign in a body upon receiving official confirmation of his resignation.

The Rev. Gerald E. Cunningham, senior curate, it was stated, has perfected plans to take a church at Wappingers Falls, near Poughkeepsie, his pastorate to begin in April. The Rev. George E. Norton has accepted a call to occupy the pastorate of a new church being erected in St. Louis. The Rev. Robert McKay, the remaining member of St. George's clergy, was said also to have accepted a call, but where it could not be learned.

The Rev. Mr. Cunningham, senior curate, was asked about his intention to leave St. George's last night. "I am certainly going away," he said, "and it is also true that the Rev. Mr. Norton is going and that the Rev. Mr. McKay is going.

"We have all accepted calls, but that has nothing whatever to do with Dr. Birckhead, our rector. You see, changes are being made all the time. We come to these appointments just out of school, as internes go to hospitals, and our appointments are only supposed to be for two years. I am leaving because my two years are up, and my associates are leaving purely for the same reason.

"I understood that Dr. Birckhead went away on a trip not to look over a place offered to him but to pay an annual visit to his very dear friend, Attorney General Wickersham, whom he visits every Winter. It is all news to me, and I am sure also to my associates that he intends to resign."

St. George's has become widely known on account of the interest taken by J. Pierpont Morgan in its social and missionary work, and on account of the number of notable men serving among its vestrymen.

Among the vestrymen are R. Fulton Cutting, William E. Curtis, Seth Low, William Foulke, and John Seeley Ward.

Inquiry at the home of R. Fulton Cutting last night brought out a guarded statement to the effect that the vestrymen have not yet received official notice of the Rev. Dr. Birckhead's intention to resign.

"Has the matter been talked over among the vestrymen?" Mr. Cutting was asked.

"I prefer to make only the one statement," he replied, "that official notice has not yet been received or acted upon." Mr. Cutting was asked if the Vestrymen were aware of the intention of the clergy associated with Dr. Birckhead to leave the church. He replied that the Vestrymen were well informed of this intention, and that he was quite sure that Dr. Birckhead's remaining or going had nothing to do with their plans.

Seth Low said that he had heard of the plans of the younger clergymen to take other pastorates, but had not heard of the proposed resignation of Dr. Birckhead. Mr. Curtis was quoted as having said that he understood Dr. Birckhead was to go. This statement could not be verified last night.

St. George's is preparing to open a new chapel in a few weeks, erected at a cost of $100,000. The parish missionary work is on a more active and aroused basis than it has ever been before. Dr. Birckhead became St. George's rector as successor to the Rev. Dr. William S. Rainsford, who resigned in 1906.

He came to the parish practically without previous experience after completing his education in Columbia University and at Cambridge, where he specialized in theology. Upon his graduation, in 1902, while still well under 30 years of age, he became a curate in St. George's, working as assistant to Dr. Rainsford. For a time he was chief assistant, and was promoted to Dr. Rainsford's place.

In settlement and missionary work he was an active leader, but fault was found with him on account of the fact that the immense crowds which had attended the church's public meetings in Dr. Rainsford's time ceased to attend under the changed conditions.

St. George's celebrated its one hundredth anniversary a few weeks ago. It has a membership of 5,000 parishioners, who contributed to the parish funds $114,000 last year. The parish once formed a part of Trinity and has considerable endowment.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 9.—Members of the vestry of the Emmanuel Episcopal Church would neither affirm nor deny the report that the Rev. Dr. Hugh Birckhead had accepted a call to that rectorate. Dr. Birckhead was here yesterday in conference with several members of the vestry. He returned this morning. Emmanuel is one of the most exclusive congregations in Baltimore.

The Rev. Dr. Houston Eccleston, late rector of Emmanuel, was run down by an automobile last March, and died from his injuries some weeks later. For nearly a year the congregation has been trying to pick a clergyman to take his place.

PARALYTIC NEARLY DROWNS ON HIS BED

Water from Broken Main Floods Basement Room, Where Cripple Lies Submerged to Chin.

ALL THE FURNITURE AFLOAT

Rushing Water Stills His Cries, Then Unconscious He Is Rescued by a Policeman.

A water main in Forty-eighth Street, near Third Avenue, sprung a leak sometime yesterday, and presently the water seeped through a crack in the asphalt pavement outside of 205-207 East Forty-eighth Street. It rose like a small geyser, about which the children of the neighborhood began to play. The water flowed slowly, but steadily, until it filled the gutter. Then it crept across the sidewalk and tumbled in a small cascade into the areaway beyond.

The children floated chips for boats, and shouted and played about the little torrent, their cries stilling the weaker calls that came from the basement of the big double apartment house. There Henry Frohman, husband of the janitress, a paralytic unable to move from his bed, had awakened when the first soft gurgle of the water working in beneath the windows had changed to a steady splash.

Frohman raised himself on an elbow—only his legs and hips are numbed with his malady—and saw the water already two feet deep in the room. A light chair was floating on its surface. A table, a lounge, and a heavier chair swayed crazily as the rising water played about them. Frohman called for his wife. She was somewhere in the house at work, and he had no doubt that she or a tenant passing through the halls would hear him. He could hear the children without.

But none came and only the constant splash of the water interrupted the children's shouts and laughter. From each of the two basement windows now fell steady streams of water in broad sheets as wide as the windows, and smooth like the water which slips over a dam. Frohman watched the fall hypnotized almost by it, as he explained afterward, until it had risen almost level with his bed. Already the heavier chair was afloat, and the table flung back and forth like a buoy anchored far below the surface. The lounge swayed and halted, only to sway again a moment later.

Frohman watched them, fascinated. There was something weird that held his attention as the table at last floated off atop the water, and the lounge, jerking about as though protesting, at last submitted to the rising flood and joined the table and chairs in a noiseless promenade of the room, round and round, with the motion the infrushing torrent gave to the now swiftly rising pond.

Then the man remembered to call again. He shouted and cried out. He screamed until his throat was hoarse, resting now and then in the hope of hearing an answering cry. There came to him only the shouts of the children and the splash of the water.

Then he strove to save himself. The water rose to the bed and covered it. Now his legs and thighs were awash in the icy water. It was rising slowly around his body. The man hunched himself further up on his elbow. It took all his strength to drag himself thus, and for some moments he rested.

Then he reached down and dragged a blanket from off the bed. He could not turn around, but he tossed it over his head, hoping it would catch on the top of the headboard, dragging on it gently after each cast to test whether it had caught fast. Finally it held, and Frohman, resting again for a few seconds, exerted all the strength of his arms in an effort to drag his body up until he could clutch his arms over the high headboard. His strength failed him. He dropped back upon the bed, and now the water swirled around his chin.

Once again he bolstered himself upon his below. The water still was close about his neck, and it rose swiftly. He yelled again. The shouts of the children and the splash of the water answered him. Then he gave up. He watched the chairs, the table, and the lounge. He began to count the number of times they passed in noiseless review, following each other in perfect alignment. Around and around they went, and around and around again, and then there was a crash at the window. Two men sprung through and one of them caught Frohman just as his head toppled forward, his face in the water, himself unconscious.

It was after he had been carried to one of the upper flats and put to bed there that Frohman revived and told of the experience. It was then, too, that Robert Dawson, a policeman attached to the Telegraph Bureau in Police Headquarters, told how he had come to save him.

Dawson, from his flat upstairs, had noticed the children, and had seen the water. For a time he had watched, unconcerned, until he observed that the water was pouring into the areaway. It was four feet deep there, and suddenly the policeman bethought himself of Frohman, helpless in bed, with nothing but the basement windows between him and the flood which was steadily growing.

He ran down stairs and met Frederick Miller, a chauffeur living in the house. He shouted to him his fears and Miller joined him. The men dropped into the areaway, where the water was up to their waists. They peered in a window and saw the white face of Frohman, propped up on one hand, gazing at the dancing chairs, the table, and the lounge. Then they smashed their way in.

They called a doctor for Frohman later, and he said that the man would be all right unless his immersion resulted in an attack of pneumonia. He feared that it might. The water men shut off the broken hydrant, but besides the basement where Frohman nearly lost his life, many others had been flooded, and much damage had been done.

Until they were called in to bed, however, the children still played and shouted about the stream in the gutter outside the big tenement.

40 SOPHOMORES SUSPENDED.

After-Dinner Pranks Make Trouble for Stevens Institute Men.

Forty members of the sophomore class of Stevens Institute, which numbers ninety-seven men, have been suspended. Monday they will appear before President Humphreys for final disposition of their cases. Meantime, their classmates are alarmed lest the whole forty be expelled.

The trouble followed the sophomore class dinner Wednesday night, when the forty returned from Manhattan to the grounds of the institute and proceeded to storm Castle Point. The old castle is used as a freshman dormitory now, and the sophomores, after smashing several doors, caught two freshmen and gave them a bath in a tub of icy water on the lawn. Next they proceeded to another college building at Twelfth and Garden Streets and smashed doors and windows.

On Thursday three of the ring leaders were suspended, and yesterday the other thirty-seven were notified that the same fate was to be theirs.

Will Marry Princess Elizabeth Marie, Dom Miguel's Daughter, Is Report.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LISBON, Feb. 9.—It is stated here that ex-King Manuel will marry the Princess Elizabeth Marie, daughter of Dom Miguel. The report receives some credence on account of the recent reconciliation between the two families.

The legitimist newspaper Nacas says that Manuel and his mother, Queen Amelie, were godfather and godmother respectively to the last daughter of Dom Miguel, being represented at the baptismal ceremony at Saint Jean de Luz.

JAPAN SEEKS A CREED.

Conference of Denominations Called to Decide on a National Religion.

VICTORIA, B. C., Feb. 9.—The Japanese Home Minister has called a conference of the representatives of Christian, Buddhist and Shinto religions to discuss a National religion for Japan, according to advices brought yesterday by the steamer Canada Maru. Official recognition is now given to Shintoism, a cult for the worship of ancestors. Mr. Tokonami, Vice Minister, said the primary aim of the conference was to bring the religions into closer relation with the State and to raise a God-fearing sentiment and a cult of national morality among the people.

PITTSFIELD BLOCK BURNED.

For Second Time in Two Weeks City Suffers Heavy Loss.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Feb. 9.—Fire to-night destroyed the James M. Burns block in the centre of the business section, causing a loss of $170,000. Five stores were burned out, and three persons were injured. The injured were Charles R. Foote, cut on head from flying brick; Homer Harris, four-inch cut on face from flying glass, and Joseph H. Dudley, injured in back of head and spine.

The entire Fire Department was called out, and firemen fought the blaze in zero temperature.

Defective electric wiring in the Rice & Kelly store is believed to have been the cause of the fire. Mr. Rice said to-night electric lights had not been working well for several nights.

Sheriff John Nicholson and Anson C. Griffen, who were among the first at the fire, say there was a loud explosion and flames burst forth from the second story of the furniture store.

Those burned out, with the estimated losses, were: Burns Block, $75,000; Rice & Kelly, furniture, $35,000; Besse, Clark & Co., clothiers, $30,000; J. H. Dudley & Co., clothiers, $15,000; Fred G. Belden, sporting goods, $11,000; R. B. Donaldson & Co., cigars and stationery, $3,000.

This is the second serious blaze in this city within two weeks. Fire on Jan. 28 last burned the old Academy of Music and two blocks, owned by Mayor Kelton B. Miller, causing a loss of $250,000.

SOCIETY NOT WORTH WHILE

Says Ex-Senator Clark—His Fifth Avenue Home Open to His Friends.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 9.—Ex-Senator W. A. Clark is not contemplating any advances toward New York society, now that his Fifth Avenue home is open. For the Senator, while he thinks the Four Hundred may be good people, believes they are not worth while.

"My house in New York is now open, and we entertain our friends almost daily," the Senator said to-day soon after arriving. "But we seek our friends among people of artistic inclinations and from them we receive the pleasure which others may find in other forms of society, but which I do not consider worth my while.

"My house is open every day to those who desire to see the art objects which I have gathered.

"I have also the desire to entertain bodies of people who may wish to see my collections; for instance, I have invited the Iowa Society of New York to spend a day with me in March, then I intend to invite the Lotos Club of New York, so that, with my friends and others who wish to see what objects of interest I have, I am not likely to be lonely.

"Further, I intend to make my pictures, tapestries, and other collections available for students of art in New York."

JUSTICES IN REBELLION.

Court Rumor Says They Will Rent Chambers in Bank Building.

Reports floated around yesterday in the draughty corridors of the old County Court House, which lawyers and tipsters and the armies of legal hangers-on have converted into their own private chambers, for want of better accommodations, that the Justices had at last rebelled against the pigeonholes which they have been forced to use as their rooms and were going to rent chambers in the new building of the Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank, in Chambers Street.

The recent creation of another Justiceship, compelling the use of the library as a public courtroom, has aggravated the situation more than ever. It was said, moreover, that the old cubbyholes now in use as chambers would be converted into regular courtrooms and that a tunnel under Chambers Street would be constructed, connecting the offices with the Court House.

Justice Giegerich, Chairman of the Board of Justices, would not commit himself.

"Anything definitely pointing to any certain location is premature," said the Justice. "I cannot reveal the result of the discussions which we have had on the subject."

Justice Blanchard, it was learned yesterday, is suffering from acute insomnia. Doctor's orders have compelled him to remain at his home until he finds himself able to sleep.

GUARD AGAINST INCENDIARIES

Nine Fires in Two Years at Wanamaker Estates.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 9.—Members of the Wanamaker family here are worried by the numerous fires of apparent incendiary origin that have taken place on the Wanamaker properties in the last two years, and as a result private detectives have been employed to patrol the neighborhood of the Wanamaker residences in the vicinity of Jenkintown. There have been nine fires in two years.

Two years ago Lindenhurst, the Jenkintown home of John Wanamaker, was completely destroyed. A short time later the stables on the estate were burned, to be followed later by a fire in the tool house.

At Rosemary, the estate of Barclay H. Warburton, son-in-law of John Wanamaker, the torch apparently first was set to the gardener's lodge. This was followed last September by a fire in the house, only to be followed a few days ago by a fire which destroyed one wing of the house.

The other three fires occurred at Meadowbrook Lodge, the estate of the late Thomas B. Wanamaker, whose widow married Dr. Archibald Thompson. There have been three fires at the Lodge, and while none of them have been disastrous, the origin of all is unexplained.

HABEAS CORPUS WRIT ISSUED FOR BRANDT

Justice Gerard Orders Schiff Burglar Brought Here for Review of His Conviction.

HEARING SET FOR TUESDAY

His Plea Improperly Taken, the Petition Charges—Rosalsky Also Asked Directly to Reopen the Case.

Supreme Court Justice Gerard issued a writ of habeas corpus yesterday for Foulke Engel Brandt, former servant of Mortimer L. Schiff. The writ directs Henry M. Kaiser, Warden of the Clinton State Prison at Dannemora, N. Y., to produce Brandt on Tuesday morning in Special Term, Part II., at the County Court House. Brandt's appeal for a commutation of his thirty-year sentence was recently denied by Gov. Dix.

Copies of the writ were served on District Attorney Whitman and General Sessions Judge Rosalsky at the Criminal Court Building yesterday. The writ will be argued either before Justice Gerard or Justice Davis.

Justice Gerard issued the writ on the application of Mirabeau L. Towns, said to have been retained by William R. Hearst. An affidavit signed by Martin F. Huberth of 1,045 Forrest Avenue, the Bronx, was presented.

Huberth is senior member of the real estate firm of Huberth & Gabel, 147 Fourth Avenue. In his petition he declares that he is the "next friend" of the imprisoned man.

The affidavit indicates the grounds on which Brandt's release will be sought. The first is an attack on the legality of his indictment, which Huberth says is based on an examination of the Grand Jury minutes.

Huberth declares that Brandt never properly pleaded guilty to the charge of burglary in the first degree, and that his "alleged plea" was of no effect. He says:

> He * * * did state to the said Judge (Rosalsky) under oath, in an answer to the inquiries or examination conducted by the said Judge of the prisoner, facts showing he had not committed the crime of burglary in the first degree.

This statement refers to Brandt's answer to repeated questions that all doors and gates leading into the rear of the Schiff house were open on the night he entered through the basement.

The affidavit of Huberth also states that Brandt "was not informed of the nature and cause of the crime charged against him, nor was he confronted in the presence of the court with the witnesses against him at any time." Huberth declares he bases these last statements on an examination of the official stenographer's minutes of Judge Rosalsky's interrogation of Brandt at the time he was brought into court to plead and to be sentenced.

Mr. Towns also served upon District Attorney Whitman a notice of motion, to be made before Judge Rosalsky, also on Tuesday, containing an application for the reopening of the whole case on the ground that Brandt was not guilty of the crime to which he was allowed to plead guilty. In this proceeding Mr. Towns will apply for an order:

> Opening and setting aside the alleged judgment of conviction of Foulke Engel Brandt, indicted as Lawrence De Foulke.
> Quashing, vacating, and setting aside the said indictment.
>
> And ordering a rearraignment and a new trial upon said indictment.
>
> And such other and further relief as may be just and proper in the premises.
>
> Upon the ground of newly discovered evidence.
>
> Upon the ground that the court was deceived and imposed upon and acted upon misinformation and under mistake in pronouncing said alleged judgment and making said commitment.
>
> As appears by said newly discovered evidence.
> And that said court was without jurisdiction to pronounce said alleged judgment and make said commitment as appears by the aforesaid record.

This notice also reveals that Mr. Towns has in his possession affidavits made by Carl Fischer-Hansen, who has since served a term on Blackwell's Island for attempted extortion, sworn to on Jan. 26 last and two other affidavits beside that of Huberth. These affidavits were not made public yesterday. At the time of Brandt's sentence Fischer-Hansen was a prominent practitioner in the criminal courts and had given advice to Brandt.

The issuance of the writ of habeas corpus yesterday took precedence over all other plans for reopening the case, including the statement made on Thursday that Judge Rosalsky might himself have Brandt again brought before him.

Mr. Towns said yesterday that he had several precedents for the habeas corpus proceedings. He declared:

"In the case of the People against Fletcher, reported in 35, Miscellaneous Reports, Page 779, the defendant was convicted of receiving a Stradivarius violin which he knew to have been stolen from Prof. Jean Boot. Some three years later upon its being discovered that the violin had been found under circumstances which precluded the possibility of Fletcher having it in his possession at the time of his arrest a motion for a new trial was made before Recorder Goff and was granted."

Mr. Towns quoted Justice Goff's decision on that occasion as follows:

"The purpose of the administration of the law is justice. That is the object which all its rules and provisions are designed to accomplish. It is always in order to do justice. To grant a new trial under proper restrictions as to evidence newly discovered is one of the beneficent means. Each case must be judged on its merits."

Mr. Towns added that there were cases in the law reports in which the judgment had been set aside and a new trial ordered after twenty-one years.

To Notify Attorney General.

It was said last night that, as Brandt is in a State prison, notice of the writ would be sent to Albany by District Attorney Whitman this morning, and that the matter would be out of the hands of the officials of this county unless the Attorney General asked Mr. Whitman to handle the proceedings before Justice Gerard. If this is done Mr. Whitman will present the facts in the case and ask that a rehearing be refused on the ground that the case has already been tried and disposed of by a Judge of the Court of General Sessions.

It was asserted by a lawyer involved in the proceedings that it would be unusual for a Justice to grant a rehearing of the case.

"But it is difficult to hazard a reasonable guess as to what the decision of Justice Gerard will be," said this lawyer. "Justice Gerard is a very independent man and he may go against all precedents and give permission to have the case reopened. I understand that there is also a motion pending before Judge Rosalsky asking that Brandt be placed on trial on the ground that so far he has not had his day in court. In this case District Attorney Whitman would be compelled to act as the opposing counsel. But all he would have to do would be to submit all of the papers in the case and then leave the matter in the hands of the Judge."

Attorney General Carmody was not in Albany last night, and no one in his office would say whether the State would be represented by other than Mr. Whitman at the Brandt hearing. Gov. Dix still refuses to say anything on the case further than that it is a sealed book.

District Attorney Whitman started John Doe proceedings in the Brandt case yesterday. He directed these proceedings toward the investigation of the accuracy of the report made to Judge Rosalsky by the police as to Brandt's record.

This report was in the form of a letter written to Inspector McLaughlin, head of the Detective Bureau, by Detective Sergt. Joseph D. Woolridge. Woolridge was one of the witnesses yesterday. He testified that the copy of his letter submitted to Judge Rosalsky and mentioned as one of the reasons for the severity of the sentence imposed on Brandt was a corect copy of his report to Inspector McLaughlin.

It is District Attorney Whitman's purpose to bring before the Grand Jury every one of the former employers of Brandt whom Woolridge declared in his letter had discharged him for dishonesty.

Mr. Whitman said he had communicated with several of the persons named in Woolridge's report as giving Brandt a bad name for honesty, and had received replies denouncing the detective's quotations.

Ledyard Blair of the banking firm of Blair & Co., whom Woolridge said declared he had discharged Brandt for connection with the disappearance of $25, wrote Mr. Whitman that he had no recollection of such an incident.

C. P. Williams, now living at the Ritz-Carlton, in this city, whom Woolridge wrote had discharged Brandt for dishonesty, made a similar statement to Mr. Whitman.

Carl B. Sampson of the Sampson & Nelson employment office wrote to Mr. Whitman that Woolridge's declaration that he had been forced to blacklist Brandt for presenting false recommendations said that he had never had Brandt on his lists.

Augusta E. Johnson, another employment agent, whom Woolridge quoted as having stigmatized Brandt as dishonest, also wrote a letter to the District Attorney's office contradicting the detective's report.

Arnold Charles Weil, an Assistant Corporation Counsel, made public yesterday a letter he wrote earlier in the day to Einar Chrystie, counsel of the Grievance Committee of the Bar Association. In this letter Mr. Weil called upon Mr. Chrystie to initiate an investigation into the Brandt case under one of the association's by-laws. This by-law prescribes the action to be taken "when any complaint shall be made in writing to the association concerning any grievance touching the administration of justice."

DANNEMORA, N. Y., Feb. 9.—A representative of a New York newspaper came to Dannemora on a special train this morning seeking an interview with Foulke E. Brandt. Warden Kaiser is in Buffalo, and had left instructions to permit no one to see the prisoner in his absence. His orders were obeyed.

The newspaper man left and returned this afternoon with Assemblyman Charles J. Vert of Plattsburg. Mr. Vert, who is a lawyer, requested that he be permitted to see Brandt, asserting that as a member of the Legislature he was privileged to do so. His request was denied by the prison officials.

The prison law authorizes members of the Legislature, among others, "to visit at pleasure all State prisons."

HOW BRANDT PLEADED.

Told Judge Rosalsky He Knew Crime to Which He Was Confessing.

Here is an abstract from the examination of Brandt that was conducted by Judge Rosalsky after Brandt was arraigned and had pleaded guilty to burglary in the first degree:

Q.—How did you gain admittance to the house? A.—The basement gate was open.

Q.—Didn't you get in there through the hoistway by opening up a door? A.—There was a grating there, which was also open.

Q.—You mean unlocked; you don't mean open; you mean unlocked. You had a razor? A.—It was open.

Q.—In getting into the cellar didn't you have to open that door, which was locked? A.—It was a glass door, and about half way open for ventilation.

Q.—Then you raised it? A.—I did not have to raise anything there; I just walked in.

Q.—You gained entrance through the rear of the house? A.—The servants' entrance in the rear.

Q.—Wasn't there a door which led into any part of that building that you had to unlock and enter? A.—The doors were open.

* * *

Q.—You knew what room Mr. Mortimer Schiff occupied? A.—Yes.

Q.—When you entered the house you made your way directly for that room, didn't you? A.—Yes.

Q.—You expected to find Mr. Mortimer Schiff in that room, did you not? A.—No.

Q.—Why did you go up to that floor? A.—I went up there to ask for assistance. I was very poor at the time, and I went there to ask for assistance.

Q.—Then you went there to see Mortimer Schiff? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—What time of the night was this? A.—Ten minutes of 10.

* * * * * * *

Q.—Didn't you think it would be better to announce your presence in the house and enter it through the front door instead of through the rear? A.—I did not expect to get in the front way.

Q.—As a matter of fact, Mr. Schiff did give you some assistance that night? A.—Yes.

Q.—Gave you $50? A.—Yes, he gave me $50 and let me out the front way.

Q.—You know full well what you are saying? A.—Yes, Sir; he shook hands with me and said good night.

Q.—You know now, at present, at this moment—you fully appreciate what you are saying, do you not? A.—Yes.

* * * * * * * * * *

Q.—You know you have entered a plea of guilty to an indictment charging you with the crime of burglary in the first degree? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—You know what the word guilty means—you confess to the commission of that crime? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did I understand you to say that you entered Mr. Schiff's house twice that night, once at 8 and once at 10? A.—I entered it at half-past 8 and stayed there. I only entered once, and that was half-past 8.

Q.—And when did you receive $50, at 10 or half-past 8? A.—About twenty past 11.

NEPHEW IS FOR ROOSEVELT.

Robinson Says ex-President Will Accept—He Wants to be a Delegate.

Special to The New York Times.

UTICA, N. Y., Feb. 9.—Assemblyman Theodore Douglas Robinson announced to-day that his uncle, Theodore Roosevelt, would accept the nomination for President if offered him. The announcement came just at the close of the meeting at Herkimer this afternoon of the Herkimer County Republican Committee. Mr. Robinson stepped quickly to the centre of the room and, raising his hand, said:

"Owing to circumstances which I had not anticipated, I wish to announce at this time my candidacy as a delegate to the Republican National Convention to cast my vote for Theodore Roosevelt if he is nominated for President. I understand that he will accept the nomination if tendered him, and I want to be there. I am not a candidate as a delegate to bring about any factional differences in the Republican Party in this county and I hope it can be arranged so I can be a delegate without arousing any factional differences."

Mr. Robinson recently won one of the bitterest factional fights Herkimer Republicans have experienced. The leaders in Herkimer County had no statement to make to-night. They admit that it may mean a fight. One leader said:

"We regret it because we have just got everything fixed up, and it is a Presidential year, when we don't want a row of any sort."

CRY ROOSEVELT TREACHERY.

La Follette's Friends Say He Gave Pledge Not to Run.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Feb. 9.—Senator La Follette's warmest champions in this State are openly accusing Theodore Roosevelt of treachery to the Wisconsin man. They charge that Mr. Roosevelt gave the positive assurance to Mr. La Follette he would not be a candidate in 1912.

The Milwaukee Journal, La Follette's stanchest supporter in the West, after enumerating the incidents which led it to the conclusion that the Wisconsin Senator had been the victim of double dealing on the part of Mr. Roosevelt, says editorially that the renomination of President Taft might be fraught with less evil than the nomination of Roosevelt. The Journal publishes a statement of the attitude of Mr. La Follette toward Roosevelt. It is as follows:

"As a progressive leader of proved ability, Senator La Follette was drafted as a leader of the fight to be made at Chicago. Col. Roosevelt at that time positively eliminated himself from the 1912 fight and his followers, for the most part being also sincere admirers of Senator La Follette, pledged themselves to the latter.

"La Follette started the fight at a time when the prospects for preventing the renomination of President Taft were ridiculously small. As the movement grew and the indications of possible progressive strength developed, the Roosevelt boom was launched.

"This boom was believed at first by many to be in reality a back fire to split the progressive movement. The crisis was reached when those who pledged themselves to La Follette's support, but who in reality preferred Roosevelt, announced the discovery that La Follette could not win and that the Nation was demanding Roosevelt."

Seating Arrangements for Democratic Convention at Baltimore.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 9.—The arrangements for seating thousands who will attend the Democratic National Convention at the Fifth Regiment Armory next June provide for 15,166 persons. There are eighteen exits and the aisles are numerous and wide. The dotted lines mark the front railings of the galleries above. Just a few minor changes will be made to these plans which were approved by the Democratic National Committeemen at their meeting in Baltimore on Monday.

WILSON IN KENTUCKY ATTACKS 'PRIVILEGE'

Says It's the Ghost That Has Captured Business and Made Men Afraid to Talk.

HE WON'T ANSWER GAYNOR

Does Not Hope to Revolutionize Entire Business Fabric at One Upheaval But Would "Clear the Channel."

Special to The New York Times.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Feb. 9.—Woodrow Wilson to-night declined to discuss the statement made last night by Mayor Gaynor of New York. He was toasted to-day and dined to-night by the Kentucky Democracy. He found the native State of Henry Watterson an open door of hospitality. He spoke to large crowds at both places. He declared that in this campaign it is only necessary for the Democratic Party to deal with facts. It has no time to deal in theories or generalities, but most be specific and suggest effective remedies.

"The indictment is not sufficient unless we have the facts," he said. He declared he was not against "big" business, but against "bad" business.

Gov. Wilson arrived here shortly after 9 o'clock this morning. He came upon the invitation of the General Assembly to address that body upon the issues of the day, and his friends and admirers have made his coming the occasion for a demonstration in his honor. Leading Democrats of the Blue Grass and other sections assembled to greet him and listen to his utterances. In addition to his address before the joint session of the General Assembly in the Hall of the House of Representatives, he spoke this evening at a dinner at the Capitol Hotel.

Gov. Wilson was accompanied here by State Chairman Edward Grosscup of New Jersey, Walter Measday, his secretary; G. N. Lauderdale, and E. L. Underhill. The party was met at the railroad station by a committee of the General Assembly and of citizens, headed by ex-Gov. Beckham. They went directly to the Capitol Hotel where a reception was held.

Gov. McCreary called on Gov. Wilson and spent some time chatting with him. The Kentucky Executive was present at the dinner this evening.

Early in his speech before the Legislature Gov. Wilson brought out his idea of "a system of Trusteeship" which, he said, grew out of the power wielded by the big interests in the political world by "men who could not see farther than across the Directors' table." Charging that representative office-holders were guided by these men, he said, Government virtually resolved itself into a Trusteeship.

"These men consider themselves guardians of the country," he said. "They don't believe the judgment of the people is sound, hence the guardianship. At times it is necessary, in furthering these interests, to promote artificial prosperity or its reverse. We should not be afraid of threats of the reverse, but combat them with facts gained only by as sensitive a knowledge of business as these men have themselves.

"Privilege—this ghost has captured business in this country. No business is free, and the whole situation shows an artificial advantage. Business men are afraid to talk, and this tremor, clutching business, is proof of the grip of the privilege and fear of it.

"Our laws of twenty years ago don't fit conditions as they are to-day. We stand in the presence of a new order of things. Formerly the people were against a change, but now they know it is necessary."

Gov. Wilson said he would not attempt to revolutionize the entire business fabric at one upheaval, but would try to "clear the channel," giving big business interests a chance to readjust themselves on the theory that big business with privilege is bad, but big business properly operated is good.

Gov. Wilson barely touched upon the tariff. Speaking of the "insurgents," he said: "They have swung around and around until their principles are ours with the exception of the tariff, and I have come to believe they would consider themselves impious if they got away from the idea."

ROOSEVELT MEN TO CONFER.

Seven Governors Expected at Chicago Meeting—Taft Men Busy.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—Republicans who favor the nomination of Roosevelt for the Presidency will hold a conference to-morrow. Secretary Edwin W. Sims of the National Committee said it was expected that Govs. Osborn of Michigan, Hadley of Missouri, Stubbs of Kansas, Glasscock of West Virginia, Vessey of South Dakota, Aldrich of Nebraska, and Carey of Wyoming would attend the meeting, and possibly Gov. Bass of New Hampshire would be here. Names of others from outside the city were not given out.

The conference will be secret. It is probable that a committee will be appointed to notify Col. Roosevelt that the Nation is waiting for word from him that he is to be a candidate.

Col. Chauncey Dewey, Chairman of the State Roosevelt Committee, has invited the 1,500 Republican precinct committeemen of Cook County to meet Feb. 21 to express their opinion on Presidential candidates. It is likely some Roosevelt supporter will be present to address them.

The Taft boomers in Illinois will get some public attention to-morrow by opening headquarters at the La Salle Hotel. This step was decided at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Illinois Taft Club. Postmaster Daniel A. Campbell, just back from a conference with President Taft and Secretary Hilles, met with the committee and outlined the plans for a sharp, aggressive campaign.

An elaborate publicity campaign will be started. It is planned to get before the voters an epitome of Taft's record and make an extensive postal card canvass.

CLAIM 780 VOTES FOR TAFT.

Or 241 More Than Needed at National Convention, Managers Say.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The campaign for the renomination of President Taft began in earnest to-day when Representative William B. McKinley of Illinois, who has assumed charge of the Taft headquarters in Washington; Senator Murray Crane of Massachusetts, and C. D. Hilles, the President's secretary, held a conference lasting several hours.

After the meeting was over the statement was made that a thorough canvass of the country as to conditions convinced the Taft managers that the President would have 780 votes on the first ballot in the Chicago Convention, out of a total of 1,076, or 241 more than the majority needed for nomination.

BAR MEXICAN TROOPS FROM OUR TERRITORY

Plea by Gov. Colquit and El Paso Citizens, Who Fear Effect of Their Passage.

NOT NEUTRALITY, THEY SAY

Knox Will Make Inquiry — Present Mexican Conditions Compared with Cuban Before Intervention.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The State Department to-day had as one interesting development of the Mexican situation the receipt of a telegram from an El Paso newspaper protesting against permitting Mexican troops to cross American territory. The protest read:

> Congressman W. R. Smith, Washington:
>
> Half the State of Chihuahua is in arms opposed to the Madero Government. Action by the United States Government permitting proposed moving of regiment Mexican troops from Eagle Pass to El Paso bitterly resented by revolutionists, who maintain United States should be perfectly neutral to both sides. This resentment may find reflection in indignities upon the Texas border, and American resistants in the State of Chihuahua, in which event El Paso will suffer most serious consequences. Vigorously protest against this movement of Mexican troops through Texas.
> EL PASO TIMES.

Representative Smith laid the telegram before the President, who referred it to the State Department. It is pointed out by officials here that the present situation is not one of political revolution with a definite cause or programme, but a state of anarchy, which is more serious than a clearly defined revolutionary movement, and that for this reason this Government should lend every assistance possible to the Mexican authorities to bring order out of chaos.

Secretary Knox to-night made further inquiry from Mexico through the American Embassy at Mexico City, asking the specific purpose of the military expedition, for which permission is sought to travel from Eagle Pass to El Paso in order that points in Northern Mexico may be reached.

Gov. Colquitt of Texas also pointed out to the State Department in messages to-day that residents of El Paso feared that rebels at Juarez might resist the entry of Mexican troops to American territory and precipitate a battle endangering American lives and property. Secretary Knox assured Gov. Colquitt that no permission would be granted until the matter had been carefully studied, and indications to-night are that it will be adjusted in a leisurely manner.

The attitude of this Government toward the present situation in Mexico is rapidly approaching that of the year or more preceding intervention in Cuba. The United States had for three years been annoyed by the necessity of maintaining neutrality, arresting Cuban refugees, and suppressing filibustering parties until patience ceased to be a virtue. The destruction of the Maine was the signal for what would, it is said by high military authorities, have come to pass within a few months otherwise.

The trouble with Mexico to-day is very similar. This country is being put to annoyance and expense by the continued disorder in the neighboring republic. With a long boundary to patrol, the constant danger of revolutionists seeking advantage by crossing, and the activities of revolutionary juntas in towns along the line, this Government is disturbed by the anarchy in Mexico. The danger to the lives and property of thousands of Americans in Mexico adds to the gravity of the situation. It is not strange, therefore, that there are those high in the Government who believe that sooner or later this Government will be forced to intervene.

The Mexican Government has already complained of the sensational treatment of the present situation by American newspapers. It goes without saying that there will be no mobilization of troops on the frontier until it is required by conditions. The movement last year was ordered the first week in March, and it is safe to say that it would not come this year, even if regarded as imperatively necessary, much sooner than that.

The mobilization last year cost this Government a large amount, and it is not to be expected that the United States will be subjected to such expenditure every year as a regular thing. There is reason to believe, from the temper of the officials who are in touch with the reports from Mexico, and can judge what the developments will be, that the action of this Government will be positive and conclusive when it comes.

MANY REBELS IN CHIHUAHUA.

EL PASO, Texas, Feb. 9.—Messages received to-night by Juarez officials confirm reports of the demand by Vasquestas for the surrender of Ojinaga and the refusal of Gen. de la Luz Sanchez, the garrison commander. Coyame, a small town west of Ojinaga, is reported in possession of the Vasquestas.

Wire communication between Juarez and Chihuahua along the Mexican Northwestern Railroad was restored to-day. The district through which the Northwestern lines pass is said to contain about 1,500 Vasquestas under arms. Casas Grandes, Madera, Palomas, Ascension, Sabinal, Santa Sofia, and others are reported in control of these malcontents, who are conducting the municipal affairs.

Many American and Mexican refugees from the interior arrived to-day on the regular train from Chihuahua. No serious outbreaks are reported.

Some persons estimate there are more men in arms against the Government in Chihuahua than there are supporting it. Gen. Pasqual Orozco still declines to take the Governorship.

GUADALAJARA, Feb. 9.—A body of sixty Federal troops came into contact to-day with 200 Zapatistas near Penjamo, in the State of Guanajuato near the Jalisco Railroad line. Seven Federals and fifteen rebels were killed during the battle.

EAGLE PASS, Texas, Feb. 9.—Rebel uprisings in the State of Coahuila are reported in to-night's dispatches. Followers of Guajardoke, who had a prominent part in the Madero revolution, have taken the field in support of Vasquez Gomez, it is stated, and raiding parties have begun operations near Musquiz.

In a clash between Mexican soldiers and insurgents at the town of Nava, thirty-six miles south of here, two Federal soldiers are reported killed.

MACK MAY HOLD OVER.

Gov. Dix Not Sure That Osborn Will Accept State Chairmanship.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 9.—According to Democratic leaders in Albany to-day the Democratic State Committee may not elect a Chairman at its meeting at the Knickerbocker Hotel, New York, on Friday, Feb. 16. While Norman E. Mack has been anxious to relieve himself of the position of Chairman for several weeks, it is believed he will continue at the head of the present organization until it is succeeded by the committee.

If either of the bills now before the Legislature amending the primary law is passed, new State Committeemen will be elected throughout the State at the Spring primary, March 26. Within the ten days following it will be necessary for the new committees to meet and elect their officers. Either bill will also make ineligible for State Committeemen any one who is not an enrolled voter of the district.

Gov. Dix said to-day that William Church Osborn had not given any assurance that he would serve as State Chairman if elected. "So far as Mr. Osborn is concerned, it is up to the committee," the Governor said. "The Chairmanship will have to be thrust upon him. If the committee should unanimously select him, I hope to be able to induce him to accept."

Party committee candidates for State Committeemen must be announced between Feb. 27 and March 5, under the new primary law.

Prof. Royce Stricken by Apoplexy.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 9.—Josiah Royce, the noted educator, has been stricken by apoplexy. The stroke, however, is said to be a light one, and has not caused any paralysis or mental impairment. The attack has produced a temporary semi-loss of sight, but this will soon pass, it is said. Prof. Royce's physicians believe that a thorough rest will bring him back to health. As soon as his condition warrants he will leave this city for a long vacation.

decided that making a balloon trip across the Atlantic was a thing worth helping out, he put his men, with their knowledge of rubber fabrics, to work on a new cloth. We got it as good as we could and then built the Akron. The Akron is now in her house at Atlantic City. She has had one hour's flight. She was the latest word in ballooning last Summer. And now—well, she is a back number already. I am only sorry that my trip across the Atlantic has to be made in her. Because, of course, it has to be made, and the equipment constructed to replace the equilibrator is counted on to take her over.

"But with this fifty-strength wire-woven cloth we have a new era entirely if it only works as it gives every promise of working. It means that a balloon capable of lifting five tons net capacity—more than twice the net lifting capacity of the largest Zeppelin afloat—can be sent up to any level desired and kept there a week, a month, a year, practically without any limit on account of the leakage of gas.

"In the centre of the new balloon I propose to build I will have an air balloonet connected with a powerful engine. When I want to come down I will just turn on the engine, and by this artificial compression of the hydrogen will be able to drop toward the earth.

"The new cloth means that the days of figuring on power plants aboard a dirigible to force it upward are gone also. With your balloon riding steadily on its fixed level, you merely have to furnish power enough to drive it forward or backward, and against winds as strong as you are likely to encounter.

When the Idea Was Born.

"Out in the swampy mud of Grassy Bay, when the Akron was anchored, I began to think, and think hard, if only that cloth which was two and one-half times as strong as the America's envelope, were twenty times as strong—stronger than the expansive power of hydrogen.

"On the door of the balloon shed was a canvas covering behind which ran a network of rope. This made the door so strong that winds could not blow it in. Why not a network of wire through a balloon envelope, I though, and then I began to experiment with wires. I found a steel wire of great fineness, and the Goodyear people loaned me their experts to weave it in with rubber and silk, and it worked out fine. You know they have been making automobile tires stronger and stronger each year. The skill they have gained in that helped in this, and another thing helped also.

"You know all gas bags have allowed a seepage of gas, and so the 'life' of a balloon in the air has been limited in this way, too. This new cloth, when the first patch of it was made up, was coated on the inside with a gummy mixture that never dries—just such as is used in the inside of automobile tires to keep them from leaking when punctured.

"Gas was forced in under pressure—immense pressure—and it was found after an extensive test that it wasn't leaking out again, as it had always done before. That was the first hopeful discovery.

"Then came the matter of the new cloth's weight. I was afraid a large balloon—one large enough to be of real service—would weigh so much that there would be no lifting power left to count on. But when the figures were prepared we found that the new cloth built into a balloon the size of the Akron would weigh only 2½ tons more. The Akron lifts 7½ tons. This left us 5 tons for cargo. So I began to see a chance that the 'bete noir' of all advocates of lighter-than-air craft from Montgolfiers down was at last to be done away with.

Lost Faith in Aeroplanes.

"I once had great faith in aeroplanes. But the one I built smashed whenever I alighted with it, although it flew well when up. I am firmly set in my belief that the aeroplane will never be a cargo carrier, just because if you get it heavy enough to carry a load it will be too heavy to alight without a smash. And there you are.

"You have got to have for the air an exact counterpart of the submarine for the sea. I have long sought to build a 'submarine of the air,' in which I would no longer be at the mercy of the elements we had merely parried with before and never really mastered. The steel armoured bag is the answer, and with it comes the possibility of touring the globe by dirigible, only stopping now and then for gasoline and food. The engineers of the Goodyear Company are already at work building machines to weave the new cloth, and a factory 500 feet long is soon to be erected.

"One new problem comes from the fact that there is no such thing as deflating the new balloon any more than there is a possibility of taking apart the hull of the Lusitania. A special bag will be inserted to take out the air when it is desired to fill the bag, and once full, it will be permanently equipped, never to go into a packing case again."

A bill is being drawn up by Senator Dick of Ohio at the suggestion of army engineers calling for a special appropriation of $500,000 for a dirigible balloon of modern proportions. Vaniman has suggested that instead of appropriating the money outright they offer that sum for a dirigible with full plant and equipment to do, before acceptance by the Government, just three times any dirigible has yet done in the world in all directions—in size of load carried, in length of time in the air, in distance traveled, and in facility to come back to its starting point after starting out. He says he is willing to undertake the construction of a Government balloon to meet the proposed test.

Mr. Vaniman, after a business visit here, left last night for Atlantic City to look over the Akron and see if the frost has gone out of the balloon bag sufficiently to allow its inflation for the opening of the Spring campaign of preparation to go to Europe. Mr. Vaniman's backers are especially anxious that an American cross over from this side before the German aspirants can come from the other side.

FALLS 23 FLOORS TO DEATH.

Window Cleaner Makes Misstep and Plunges from Liberty Tower.

Henry Roshin, one of the army of window cleaners whose business takes them onto the surface ledges of skyscrapers at dizzying heights, was at work yesterday afternoon on the windows that look from the offices of Borough President Miller of the Bronx, on the twenty-third floor of the Liberty Tower, when his foot slipped at a moment when his life belt was unhooked. A window cleaner who was on the job with him was inside the office at the time, saw his friend waver, clutch frantically at the casing, and then drop out of sight.

A patrolman from the Old Slip Station, standing below, near the corner of Maiden Lane and Nassau Street, happened to be looking up at the Liberty Tower, when he saw the man's body start hurtling down through the air, falling with great swiftness toward the narrow and crowded street and sidewalks that were alive with hurrying clerks and stenographers. He ran forward with a shout of warning that scattered the crowd in every direction, just in time to clear the space where Roshin fell, his head striking the curb in front of a group of girls who had not had time to get out of the way. The body toppled over into the street, crushed and mangled.

Joseph Holden, the other window cleaner, was able, after a little while, to tell how Roshin had slipped. It was a misstep, made as he was trying to move past a pillar from one window to the next. The police learned later that Roshin had a brother Charles, now in a hospital here with a broken leg.

CITY MUST BURY WOMAN.

No One to Claim Body of Mysterious Clara Pratt.

Unless friends or relatives come forward to claim the body of a woman known only as Clara Pratt, which is being held at the Hudson Street Hospital, the body will be sent to-night to the Morgue for interment by the city.

Mrs. Pratt was a telephone operator working in the office of Thomas Stephens & Co., 23 Thomas Street. Thursday afternoon she fell unconscious beside the switchboard, and an ambulance from the Hudson Street Hospital was summoned. She died in the hospital that night without regaining consciousness.

Hospital authorities sought to find out from the woman's employers who she was, but beyond the fact that she was known to them as Clara Pratt nothing could be learned. She was about 35 years old, wore glasses, and was well dressed.

It was learned by a TIMES reporter last night that the woman was known at 306 West Twentieth Street, where she had a room, as Mrs. Pratt. She was said to be a widow. Nothing was found to indicate her friends or relatives.

REAL ESTATE MEN ARRESTED IN COURT

Surprising Climax to Civil Action Against Firm Comes Dramatically as Suit Is Lost.

NEW CHARGE IS PERJURY

Max Cohen and Heyman Eckman Made Prisoners Following a Mortgage Transaction with Lawyer.

A simple civil case involving a broken mortgage contract developed dramatically into a criminal action yesterday afternoon in Justice McAvoy's part of the City Court, after the jury had returned with a verdict of $750 against Max Cohen and Heyman Eckman. The two defendants nodded sourly and, thinking that the money loss was the worst possible misfortune that could occur, prepared to leave the courtroom when a severe rap from the bench called them back.

"Close the doors," came the stern order. When the startled members of the real estate firm of Cohen & Eckman had been hustled back to their places the Justice began:

"The verdict of the jury, finding the defendants guilty of breaking their word to Charles J. Lane, to whom they had guaranteed payment on a mortgage, shows that their testimony on the stand has been false, and that they could have had no doubt, when they gave it, that they were lying. Their payment of the $750 will close their account with Charles J. Lane, but there remains a far more important account for them to settle with the City of New York."

By this time the assurance of the two men was beginning to depart. The Justice looked straight at them and continued:

"I hereby remand you men to the Tombs on the charge of perjury, with bail at $3,000 each."

A Deputy Sheriff was summoned and the two men were taken away, while their lawyers scurried out to scrape up the $6,000 necessary for their release.

Charles J. Lane, a lawyer of 299 Broadway, complained in the civil suit that he had bought a mortgage on two houses in Grand Avenue, Bronx, from Cohen & Eckman on Oct. 15, 1910. He said he had dictated the bond in his own office, in the presence of both Cohen and Eckman, and that he had insisted that a clause should be inserted whereby the sellers guaranteed payment on the mortgage in case of the default of the original holder. Lane said that he had insisted on this, because he was suspicious of the validity of the title, and that Cohen & Eckman had agreed to the guarantee.

In their testimony, however, both men declared that the guarantee clause had been inserted after they had signed, and that it did not exist in the original instrument.

Lane is a lawyer and knew how he could show the truth of his contention. First, he called his stenographer, Eva Sherman, to the stand. She testified that she had drawn the instrument and that the guarantee clause had been discussed in her presence and admitted in the agreement. In addition, Lane had searched the records of the City Register's office, where the original mortgage and bond had been filed. It was found that the mortgage was indorsed with the signed statement, "payment of which we hereby guarantee."

Justice McAvoy denied the motion of Alfred M. Bailey, attorney for the defendants, for a retrial, and had the men taken immediately into custody. He had made out and signed the perjury charge before he left the courtroom. Cohen and Eckman will appear before the Grand Jury Tuesday.

CHURCHILL MAY MAR HALDANE'S PEACE AIM

Jingoistic Speech Viewed as Jeopardizing Object of British Minister's Berlin Visit.

GERMANY'S NAVY A LUXURY

Winston Churchill So Terms It—Says Fatherland Can't Outstrip Britain on the Seas.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Saturday, Feb. 10.—While one British Minister in Berlin is endeavoring to pave the way to a better understanding between England and Germany, another made a speech yesterday which satisfies the most jingoistic advocates for a strong navy.

No official light has yet been thrown on the specific nature of Lord Haldane's visit, but, in the words of a well-informed observer to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent, it may be said:

"While the Secretary of War has no authority to make any offer to Germany such as that which a part of the Berlin press has been suggesting would be tangible evidence of the British good-will which the Imperial Chancellor asked for in his Reichstag speech, he undoubtedly has the full approval of the Cabinet in his task of disabusing the German mind of the idea of British hostility."

Winston Churchill's speech in Glasgow in some quarters is regarded as a tactical blunder, likely to impair the success of Lord Haldane's mission, and there is little doubt that a section of the German press will put the worst possible interpretation on it.

The British Government's view, on the other hand, is that the First Lord of the Admiralty's declaration is merely a frank exposition of what England believes to be essential to her welfare and definite expression that in the matter of naval supremacy the British mind is made up and is not to be shaken. "It is playing the cards on the table," added the authority already quoted.

In view of its importance in the present juncture, the following part of Mr. Churchill's declaration may be given in extenso.

"The purposes of British naval power are essentially defensive. We have no thought, and never had any thought, of aggression, and we attribute no such thoughts to other great powers.

"There, however, is this difference between British naval power and the friendly empire—and I trust it may long remain a great friendly power—of Germany. The British Navy is to us necessary, and from some points of view the German Navy is to them more in the nature of a luxury. Our naval power involves British existence in its expansion. We cannot menace the peace of a single Continental hamlet, nor do we wish to do so, no matter how great and supreme our navy may become.

"But, on the other hand, the whole fortune of our race and empire, the whole treasure accumulated during so many centuries of sacrifice and achievement, would perish and be swept utterly away if our naval supremacy were to be impaired. It is the British Navy which makes Great Britain a great power. But Germany was great, respected, and honored all over the world before she had a single ship.

"The Government resolved to maintain the naval supremacy which this country enjoys. We were never in a better position and the country was never more united in its resolve to see the supremacy of the British Navy maintained."

Meanwhile Lord Haldane is holding unofficial conferences in Berlin, lunching with the Kaiser and his chief Ministers, and dining with his Chancellor.

The London Times in an editorial today says:

"It is evident that both Mr. Churchill's speech and Lord Haldane's conversations with the German Emperor and other personages, in the intervals of studying university questions, have been arranged and are part of a plan.

"Mr. Churchill's speech excellently represents the general feeling and disposition of the country. As Mr. Churchill said, we would be the first power to welcome any retardation or slackening of naval rivalry. We should meet any such slackening, not by words, but by deeds; but if there is to be naval increases upon the Continent of Europe, we shall have no difficulty in meeting them to satisfy the country.

"As naval competition becomes more acute we shall not only have to increase the number of ships we build, but the ratio which our naval strength will have to bear to other great naval powers, so that our margin of superiority will become larger, and not smaller, as the strain grows greater.

"Thus we shall make it clear to other naval powers that instead of overtaking us by additional efforts, they will only be more outdistanced in consequence of measures which we ourselves shall take.

"Perhaps a careful consideration of these words will curb the imaginative flights of those journalists at home and abroad who connect Lord Haldane's visit to Berlin with impracticable pacifist proposals. The policy Mr. Churchill announces is not provocative or intended to be provocative, but it is a warning that we mean to keep our place."

Several French papers express apprehension that the result of Lord Haldane's mission will be prejudicial to the entente cordiale. Such fears are officially described as baseless, and The Daily Mail says that Lord Haldane's mission appears to be a sequel to the statement made by Mr. Lloyd-George on Saturday last: "I believe that in the interests of France, Germany, Russia, and ourselves that there should be a better understanding between these nations, and I believe that with candor and boldness it is attainable."

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, Saturday, Feb. 10.—An interesting story of an incident which may have led to Lord Haldane's mission to this capital is told by the Berliner Tageblatt. According to the paper, efforts had been made for some time past from the English side to bring about an improvement in Anglo-German relations. Though they had no immediate tangible result, they evoked the following utterance from the Emperor:

"The English would look at things quite differently if their Ministers would give themselves the trouble once in a while to visit us in person. A man whom I regard as most suitable for the purpose is my friend Viscount Haldane."

This remark, the paper adds, was reported to London and resulted in Lord Haldane's mission.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—Whether the overtures for the visit to Berlin of the British Secretary of War, Viscount Haldane, originated in England or in Germany is a disputed point, but it is impossible longer to discuss the momentous character of the mission. There are not wanting those who believe even that the issues of war or peace depend upon its success or failure.

The visit of Viscount Haldane is largely associated in the public mind with the speech of David Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, at the City of London Liberal Club on Feb. 3, in which the Chancellor declared the moment to be auspicious for a discussion of a reduction in armaments and which was considered as an effort toward conciliation of Germany.

Political activity is not confined to Berlin. Mr. Lloyd-George had an audience of King George to-day, and the King's secretary, Lord Knollys, was busy between Buckingham Palace and the Foreign Office and the residence of Premier Asquith.

According to some newspapers colonial questions and the possible cession to Germany of Walfish Bay, on the southwest coast of Africa, are under consideration. The Daily Telegraph understands that Viscount Haldane will not discuss specific proposals for a reduction in armaments and that no result is likely to follow his visit to Germany except the creation of an atmosphere favorable to the cultivation of more amicable relations.

It is now officially admitted that both the French and Russian Governments were informed of Viscount Haldane's trip to Berlin by the British Government before the British Secretary of War arrived in the German capital.

It was specifically stated in the notification to France and Russia that the visit was of a private character, but it was significantly added that in case political questions should be discussed, France and Russia would be kept informed. This confirms the prevailing impression that behind the ostensible purpose of his trip Viscount Haldane is charged to survey the political ground and sound German sentiment, especially in regard to reducing armaments.

The speech of Winston Spencer Churchill at Glasgow, in which he notified the world that Great Britain would go one better than any other country in naval matters, is thought to be part of a plan to encourage the belief in the uselessness of Germany trying to outstrip her rival in sea power.

BERLIN, Feb. 9.—The German Emperor and Empress to-day gave a luncheon at the Imperial Palace in honor of Viscount Haldane, the British Secretary of State for War. Among those invited to meet Viscount Haldane were Dr. von Bothmann-Hollweg, the Imperial Chancellor; Admiral Alfred von Tirpitz, the Minister of Marine, and Gen. Josias von Heeringen, Minister for War.

It is now generally admitted that one of the aims of Viscount Haldane's visit to Germany is to relieve the tension which has affected Anglo-German relations for some time past. Nothing definite as to the nature of the discussions between the British statesman and the German Ministers has become known.

GLASGOW, Feb. 9.—Winston Spencer Churchill, the First Lord of the Admiralty, attended a luncheon arranged by the Clyde Navigation Trust to-day, and in the course of a speech painted a roseate picture of the preparedness of the British Navy to meet all eventualities.

Mr. Churchill spoke lengthily on the subject of German and British sea rivalry, taking the view that while naval power was necessary to the existence of Great Britain, it was a luxury for Germany. Touching on the subject of the prospective naval increases in the two countries, the First Lord said that there was no need for excitement or panic. Great Britain had the situation well in hand, and there was no chance whatever of her being overtaken in naval strength. Whatever happened abroad, there would be no whining in the British Isles, no signals of distress would be hoisted, and there would be no cries for help. All the money, all the ships, and all the men that were necessary could be supplied by Great Britain.

Mr. Churchill said that he would welcome a retardation of naval construction, but if there was to be an increase of naval strength on the Continent it would only result in foreign powers being further outdistanced by the measures which the British Government was ready to take, and which would enable Great Britain to pursue her path through the world, without seeking a quarrel and fearing none.

CUBANS STEAL $30,000.

Two Suspected of Robbing Santiago Post Office Held—Money Recovered.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, Feb. 9.—Two registered packages containing $30,000, consigned to the Spanish Bank at Havana, have disappeared from the Post Office.

It is supposed that they were stolen by two postal clerks who are believed to have embarked on board ship at Antilla for Jamaica.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Feb. 9.—Two Cubans were arrested here to-day on board the steamer Tagus, charged with the theft of $30,000 from the Post Office at Santiago de Cuba. The entire sum was recovered by the local police. Proceedings for the extradition of the Cubans to Santiago will be commenced immediately.

SEVILLE SWAMPED BY RIVER FLOODS

Populace in a Panic When the Guadalquiver Overflows Banks—Inundations General.

DEEP ATLANTIC COMMOTION

Causes Enormous High Tides, Carrying Away Dock and Quay Walls—Many Drowned.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Saturday, Feb. 10.—Dispatches from Madrid say that the River Guadalquiver has risen rapidly, and though its turbulent waters are restrained by the celebrated Triana Bridge, so well known to tourists, forming a sort of dam, it overflowed its banks to-day, entered Seville, and laid waste the avenues near the river.

A panic ensued, and an enormous amount of damage was done. King Alfonso wished to go there to console the unhappy victims and inspect the flooded districts.

News received from almost the whole of Spain is very disheartening. Abnormally high tides show that there has been an enormous submarine commotion on the Atlantic, because in some places the sea advanced more than 300 yards beyond high water, at several places along the coast being more than thirty feet above normal high tide.

The sea, on retiring, dragged along with it the whole length of quay walls, and in some places tossed about pieces of the dock wall eighteen yards long as if they were lumps of sugar.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

SEVILLE, Saturday, Feb. 10.—The Minister and Director General of Public Works arrived here yesterday after much delay. At first in a coach with water up to the windows, and afterward in launches, they paid a visit of inspection to the flooded districts. I accompanied them on their tour, and on arriving at the Calle de los Martires, we had to retire, as in some places the water reached up to the balconies on the first floor of the houses. The violent rush of the waters made navigation extremely dangerous, particularly at the ends of the streets, where the swirling eddies formed. The people of Seville, however, maintain their traditional good humor, and even jest about their misfortune.

Last night a drunken man fell into the water, and although some policemen on horseback and in a boat hurried after him, he was carried away by the water and drowned. He had been joking about the flood, saying it was not water, but wine from broken casks which had inundated Seville.

A terrible night was spent at Triana. The night watchmen, observing the river still rising, fired revolvers for the purpose of summoning help and arousing the population. The church bells were rung, and the people, in night attire, rushed out on their balconies shouting for help. Soldiers, sailors, and firemen in boats and launches performed acts of heroism and saved many hundreds of men and women, but unfortunately several perished.

The soldiers built temporary defenses against the water with carts, boards, mattresses, bricks, and earth, but all were useless, as the river brought along enormous volumes of water, sweeping everything before it. Triana has been deserted, the inhabitants having abandoned the district and gone to the upper part of Seville. The spectacle is terribly imposing, and the river resembles a rough sea. Houses are continually collapsing and hundreds of drowned animals remain caught by the lower branches of the trees along the river.

The River Guadaina, which flows into the Guadalquiver at Seville, has also overflowed its banks and now is inundating the San Fernando district and increasing the panic, because the collision of two enormously swollen rivers causes violent whirlpools. The gas and electric plants are flooded, and Seville is in complete darkness.

Monte Carlo Wells's Property Raises Anglo-French Extradition Issue.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Saturday, Feb. 10.—An interesting legal point has arisen in connection with the case of "Monte Carlo Wells," who was arrested in England recently on behalf of the French Embassy. One of the conditions of the recent extradition treaty is that a handed-over prisoner "must be accompanied with all his goods and chattels" and financial effects recovered under proceedings following the arrest.

The result of this procedure has been that money, securities, and other effects which Wells had in England have all been secured by the prosecution on behalf of the French Embassy, and it seems possible that the French depositors in Wells's bank, who, it is alleged, were defrauded of £40,000, ($200,000,) might get back most of their lost savings.

But a development has occurred. Wells became bankrupt many years ago—about the time he was sentenced at the Old Bailey, in March, 1893, in connection with patent frauds, when the chief victim was a sister of Mr. Justice Phillimore. From that bankruptcy there has never been any discharge, and now the official receiver has garnisheed all discovered property of Wells, amounting, it is believed, to £30,000, in the interests of the bankruptcy creditors.

HENG FOR CHINESE PRESIDENT

Premier Yuan's Chances Not So Rosy—Manchus to Quit by Feb. 18.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 9.—Tang Shao-Yi, the representative of Premier Yuan Shi-Kai, declared to-day that he was confident of the abdication of the throne being an accomplished fact before Feb. 18.

There appears to be less confidence now than there has hitherto been that Yuan Shi-Kai will be selected for the Presidency of the Republic. On the other hand, the name of Gen. Li Yuen-Heng, the present Vice President, is mentioned, and he may be eventually selected.

The draft of the proposed Magna Charta of the new Chinese Republic has been completed by Dr. Wu Ting-Fang, the Minister of Justice in the Republican Cabinet, and now awaits the approval of the Senate at Nanking. The document provides for a Presidential term of five years, but the Senate will probably make the first term only one year.

It is thought that a compromise may be reached on the question of the future capital of China. President Sun Yat-Sen, however, asserts positively that Nanking will be selected, although he admits that an agreement may be made to keep Peking provisionally as the nominal capital.

Desultory outpost fighting continues in many places, but the reports as to the casualties are very much exaggerated on both sides. Tang Shao-Yi declared positively to-day that there would be no more serious fighting.

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Feb. 9.—The City of Kaiping in the Province of Chi-li was subjected to a severe bombardment to-day by the revolutionary troops. According to the latest reports the town is in flames. The attacking Republican troops brought twelve heavy field guns into action and for several hours fiercely shelled both the city and the fortress.

Twenty-three officers belonging to the garrison of the city were executed by the General in command without trial on suspicion of collusion with the revolutionary commander.

COLOGNE, Germany, Feb. 9.—"The American note to Germany regarding conditions in China will be sincerely welcomed by all striving in good faith toward a peaceful issue of the Chinese conflict," states an inspired telegram from Berlin in to-day's Koelnische Zeitung. "That German policy is thoroughly committed to such a practical programme goes without saying."

PARIS, Feb. 9.—France has not made any change in her attitude with regard to China. Like the United States, France is opposed to the principle of intervention. Should, however, the situation in China require some action France would favor only united action by all the Powers.

TOKIO, Japan, Feb. 9.—The Nationalists in the Japanese Diet to-day made a strong plea for the acquisition of further interests in China by Japan, urging that the present was an excellent opportunity.

Viscount Uchida, the Foreign Minister, replied that everything possible in the circumstances had been done already. The Government, he said, had extended assistance to Japanese seeking to acquire interests in China, but that policy would have to be abandoned now, otherwise it might lead to trouble over the question of neutrality.

AMERICAN LOAN TO REBELS.

Willard Straight Reported to be Arranging One for $5,000,000.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—The newspapers in Peking, according to a Daily Telegraph dispatch from Peking, report that Willard Straight, acting on behalf of an American group of financiers, is concluding the details for a five-million-dollar loan to the revolutionists at Nanking. The security named therefor is the Canton-Hankow Railway.

SOCIALIST VICE PRESIDENT

Beats Conservative for Reichstag Post—Centrist Defeats Bebel for President.

BERLIN, Feb. 9.—Dr. Peter Spahn, the leader of the Clerical Centre Party, was elected President of the Reichstag today, defeating August Bebel, the leader of the Social Democratic Party, by 196 votes to 175.

Philipp Scheidemann, a Socialist, was elected First Vice President of the House, defeating the Conservative candidate, Hermann Christian Dietrich, by 188 votes to 174.

Dr. Hermann S. Paasche, the National Liberal leader, was chosen Second Vice President.

The result of the election of the officers of the Reichstag shows that the old Conservative alliance with the Centre is still in operation. It lacks only three votes in order to obtain a majority in a full House. The opponents of the alliance, composed of the progressive parties, are unable to muster their full strength, as a number of National Liberals are proving untrustworthy when they are called upon to choose between a Socialist and an anti-Socialist.

Efforts to settle upon a generally approved list of presiding officers proved a failure, owing to the refusal of the Conservatives and Centrists to combine with the Socialists, while the National Liberals declined to unite with either side.

Prince Heinrich zu Schoenach-Carolath, the National Liberal candidate, was forced out of the contest for office at the preliminary ballot, and twenty-four of his supporters handed in blank voting papers or cast their votes for Dr. Spahn in the final ballot, thus insuring the latter's election.

BRITISH JAIL TERM FOR GERMAN SPY

Grosse, After Naval Secrets, Is Sentenced to Three Years in Open Court.

GERMAN SECRECY SCORED

Compared to Star Chamber Methods—Lord Chamberlain's Resignation Not Related to Case.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Saturday, Feb. 10.—When Earl Spencer's resignation as Lord Chamberlain was announced to-day it was widely supposed to be connected with the difficulties he had with Heinrich Grosse, who described himself as a Captain in the German merchant service, and who was convicted at the Hampshire Assizes to-day of spying and sentenced by Mr. Justice Darling to three years' penal servitude, the new minimum punishment provided by the Official Secrets' act passed last year.

This trial, coming so soon after the conviction and sentence of Mr. Stewart at Leipsic before the supreme German tribunal, is made the basis of a contrast between judicial practices in England and Germany. Mr. Stewart was tried behind closed doors. No official report of the trial was published. Even a report of the judgment is not officially available, and the only witness produced by the prosecution was a notorious rascal.

As The Law Journal remarks, "The Leipsic procedure was a survival of mediaeval methods which in England were swept away with the Star Chamber. There is no question that our criminal procedure is a model for other countries."

The Attorney General, Sir Rufus Isaacs, when opening the case against Heinrich Grosse, said:

"In this country, under our laws, a man charged as a spy is brought to trial in open court before one of his Majesty's Judges, and before a jury. He is entitled, of course, to all latitude, which is always allowed, as some people think, chivalrously allowed, to the defendant. He has the advantage of being represented by counsel."

Justice Darling in passing sentence delivered a weighty condemnation of all spying as a cause of ill-will between nations.

Inquiries in the best quarters show that the resignation of Lord Spencer of the Lord Chamberlainship has no relation to this case. The sole reason is ill health. Lord Spencer, by the advice of his doctor, is going abroad.

WINCHESTER, England, Feb. 9.—Heinrich Grosse, a Captain in the German merchant marine, who was arrested on Dec. 5 on a charge of espionage, was sentenced to-day at the Assizes to three years' penal servitude.

The trial was attended by a large crowd of people, and excited much attention because it presented a striking contrast to German methods in espionage cases, especially in the trial of Bernard Stewart, the English lawyer, who was recently sentenced by the Leipsic Imperial Court to three years' imprisonment.

Grosse was tried in open court by a jury. He pleaded not guilty. He testified that he was the son of a German Judge and came to England in order to do business in German coal in the event of a national strike in England.

The evidence showed that Grosse tried to get information as to the armament of submarine vessels, the preparations for arming merchant ships in the event of war, the extent of the naval coal reserves and other matters.

LORD CHAMBERLAIN QUITS.

Earl Spencer Resigns Through Criticisms Aimed at Play Censor.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—Earl Spencer to-day resigned his office as Lord Chamberlain.

His action is attributable to the widespread criticism recently of the conduct of the censorship of plays, which is under the jurisdiction of the Lord Chamberlain's office.

Ill-health is also given as the reason for Earl Spencer's resignation, but it is expected that the occasion will be utilized to reorganize the office of censor. The Earl of Chesterfield and the Earl of Granard are mentioned as possible successors of Earl Spencer.

The Right Hon. Charles Robert Spencer succeeded his half-brother as Earl Spencer in 1910. He is the oldest son of the fourth Earl Spencer by his second wife. He is 54 years old.

He has had a long career in Parliament, sitting first for North Northants, 1880 to 1885, and then for Mid Northants from 1885 to 1895. He was appointed Parliamentary Groom-in-Waiting to Queen Victoria in 1886, and was a Vice-Chamberlain from 1892 to 1895. In 1900 he was returned to Parliament, and sat until 1906. He became Lord Chamberlain in 1905, and simultaneously was created Viscount Althorp. He was married in 1887 to the Hon. Margaret Baring, daughter of Baron Revelstroke. Her death occurred in 1906.

Earl Spencer's father was the son of the "Red Earl" Spencer, who was a conspicuous figure in the Gladstone ministries. As Lord "Bobby" Spencer he was a popular and familiar figure in the House of Commons, and was especially marked by his perfect attire and carriage. Stamped with the hallmarks of his class, he created a classic phrase in the course of a speech in the House when he declared, "I am not an agricultural laborer." The house received this wholly superfluous information with great laughter, in view of his spotless garb, and the phrase has clung to him ever since.

PERE HYACINTHE DEAD.

Famous Ecclesiast Renounced Catholic Church in 1869—Was Born Here.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, Saturday, Feb. 10.—Père Hyacinthe, who died yesterday, expressed no desire to receive any sacraments, either Roman or Gallican, on his deathbed, and almost his last conscious words were:

"I can appear before God. I am at peace with my conscience, and with my reason."

PARIS, Feb. 9.—Abbé Charles Loyson, the famous French preacher, better known by his monastic name of Père Hyacinthe, died to-day after an illness of ten days. Before he renounced the Catholic Church in 1869 and joined the Old Catholic movement, which originated about that time, he was one of the most celebrated of Catholic pulpit orators.

The funeral will be held from the Protestant Church of the Oratoire on Feb. 12, after which the body will be cremated.

Père Hyacinthe married an American woman in London in 1872, three years after his withdrawal from the Catholic Church. She was Mrs. Emilie Merriam, a widow of Capt. E. R. Merriam of Ohio. Her maiden name was Butterfield, and she was a daughter of an old New England family.

After his marriage Père Hyacinthe went to Geneva and became a leader of the Old Catholic movement, which sprang up in many countries of Europe at that time, following a number of controversies in the Church, chiefly growing out of the Papal edict of infallibility of 1870. His wife accompanied him and gave him constant assistance in his work, although she had been a Catholic until a short time before her marriage. Later they returned to Paris where the ministry was continued. Mme. Loyson visited America in 1892 to raise money for her husband's work.

In 1879 she and her husband founded the "Gallican Church" in communion with the Old Catholic and the Anglican Churches. Most of the money for the church came from America, and was raised by Mme. Loyson. Ultimately the church was handed over to the Jansenists of Holland.

Père Hyacinthe was born in New Orleans in 1827. He received his early education at Pau, where his father was the rector of the academy. He studied four years at the Theological Seminary of St. Sulpice, Paris, and was ordained a priest in 1851.

Soon afterward he became a professor in the University of Nantes and later at Avignon. He gave this up to join the order of Carmelite monks and preached throughout France with great success. In 1869 he was excommunicated. The same year he paid a short visit to America.

He was the author of several books on the subject of the Church, and was for some years the editor of the periodical Catholique Française.

OUR SAILORS IN HONDURAS.

Petrel's Commander Guards the Valentine Properties at Puerto Cortez.

PUERTO CORTEZ, Honduras, Feb. 7.—There has been a clash between United States and Honduran authorities over the enforcement of a Government decree directing representatives of W. S. Valentine, an American, to surrender to Government authorities the railroad, wharf, and other properties held under lease by the Valentine syndicate.

Seventy-five marines from the United States gunboat Petrel landed and seized the wharf and railroad. Honduran troops were then ordered to stop all trains. The Governor has filed a protest.

The population here was greatly incensed at the landing of the marines.

Acting upon the authority of Congress, which declared the Valentine contracts canceled, President Bonilla directed that civil proceedings be brought against W. S. Valentine of New York, ordered delivery to the Government of the railroad and wharf, and demanded an accounting for alleged damages sustained by the Government.

The decree was served upon A. G. Greeley, local manager of the Valentine syndicate, who asked time to communicate with Mr. Valentine. This request was refused. Mr. Greeley appealed to the American Consul, who asked the co-operation of the commander of the gunboat Petrel, now in the harbor.

The commander of the Petrel requested that the enforcement of the decree be delayed twenty-four hours until the American Consul could communicate with the State Department. The Governor also refused this request, and demanded that the railroad and wharf be turned over to him by 8 o'clock this morning. The commander of the Petrel then landed seventy-five marines and placed them on the wharf and at the railroad office.

The British, Italian, Mexican, Danish, and Norwegian Consuls were summoned and through them the Governor protested to the American Consul and the Petrel's commander against the landing of the marines.

President Bonilla was informed of the turn of events and he ordered that detachments of armed troops be immediately placed at La Guna, one mile south, and at Chamelicon, twenty-eight miles south of Puerto Cortez, with instructions to stop all trains. When this order was announced a number of banana trains were out and its enforcement meant that several ships in the harbor would not be able to get cargoes.

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Feb. 9.—The Congress of Honduras has declared that all contracts made with the American W. S. Valentine in connection with the Puerto Cortez Railroad, wharf and lighthouse are canceled. The Congress directs the President of the republic to take possession of all the property immediately on behalf of the Government.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 9.—The action of this Government in preventing the expropriation by the Government of Honduras of the Honduran Railroad built by American capital is an incident in the history of the proposed Morgan loan to Honduras. In the contract for the loan it was agreed that the claims for moneys advanced by Americans to the railroad and the dock of Puerto Cortez should be arbitrated and provided for in the application of the loan.

When the banking house of Morgan withdrew from the negotiations for the loan because of delays, the Honduran Government decided to take the railroad. Commander Dismukes of the gunboat Petrel receiving word of the plan, went to Puerto Cortez and landed with half a dozen bluejackets, asking Washington for instructions, which occupied the State Department for a day or two owing to the complications. In the meantime a bluejacket was stationed in the offices of the railroad, and Commander Dismukes was on the spot lest any summary expropriation move was made.

The instructions from Washington were that the Honduran Government was at liberty to proceed to take the Honduran railroad if it thought best, but it must do so in an orderly and lawful manner after giving the American claimants due notice. This notice seems to have been sufficient to establish a modus vivendi, and the road was not seized by Honduras.

The Honduran Government is still in the market for a loan, and the Petrel is still at anchor at Puerto Cortez giving moral support to the status quo.

NEW JAPAN ENVOY IN HAWAII.

Viscount Chinda Is Due at San Francisco Feb. 15.

HONOLULU, Feb. 9.—Viscount Stemi Chinda, the newly appointed Ambassador from Japan to the United States, arrived to-day on the Japanese liner Shinyo Maru. He will reach San Francisco on Feb. 15.

In an interview in the Hawaii Shinpo, a local Japanese paper, the Ambassador said that after leaving Yokohama he received a wireless message from his Government stating that provision for Japanese exclusion had been eliminated from the Dillingham bill, now pending in the American Congress.

"For the continued amity of the two nations, I hope that this is correct," said the Ambassador.

GERMAN MONEY TRUST IS ALSO UNDER FIRE

Known as the Princes' Trust, It Is Controlled by Two Royalties Close to the Kaiser.

ITS CAPITAL $200,000,000

Runs Steel Mills, Foreign Banks, Ships, Mines, Timber Lands, Plantations, Hotels, and Stores.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, Feb. 9.—Germany's great "money trust," like its prototype in the United States, is under fire. The crusade has so far not taken the form of a Government prosecution, but it may reach that stage if the bitter newspaper agitation going on be kept up.

The German "money trust" is better known as the "Princes' trust," because it is controlled by the country's greatest two magnates, Prince Christian zu Hohenloh-Oehringen, a distant kinsman of the Kaiser, and the Kaiser's bosom friend, Prince Max Egon zu Fürstenberg.

This combination represents a capital of more than $200,000,000 and includes the ownership or control of vast undertakings such as steel mills, foreign banks, steamship companies, coal and iron mines, timber lands, plantations, suburban lands, great hotels, and department stores.

The "Princes' trust" has not succeeded as brilliantly as it had hoped in financing "communities of interest" on the American plan, which was its avowed purpose when it was organized five years ago. Several of its most important enterprises are badly in need of "reorganizing."

Two of the trust's most powerful allies, the German "Coal King," Fritz von Friedlander-Fuld, and Karl Fürstenberg, the leading Berlin banker, have deserted the combination on account of dissatisfaction at the alleged dictatorial management by the Princes Hohenloh and Fürstenberg.

What the financial press terms the present "crisis" in the princely trust's affairs was brought about by the frank policy of only allowing the investing public to acquire slim minorities of shares in the properties, whereupon the trust proceeds, it is declared, to tyrannize the minority shareholders and treat their interests with contempt.

A good deal of the Kaiser's personal funds are invested, it is said, in the undertakings of the "Princes' trust."

NEW RIFT ON RUSSIAN SUGAR.

Germany Wants 250,000 Tons Output Exported Over Several Years.

BRUSSELS, Feb. 9.—The International Sugar Conference, convened recently to consider a request by Russia that that country be permitted to increase her exports of sugar westward from 200,000 to 500,000 tons, appeared to-day to have been brought practically to a satisfactory conclusion when a fresh difficulty arose Germany, which alone had refused to agree to Russia increasing her exports beyond 150,000 tons, announced that she would consent to the export of the entire 250,000 tons.

The compromise had hardly been accepted when the German delegates declared that only 150,000 tons of the supplementary amount must be exported the current year and that the remainder must be spread over from two to three years. This restriction the Russians resolutely refused to accept.

The conference is greatly disheartened over the deadlock on a question which is considered to be of secondary importance, and an adjournment was taken until Monday, when a final effort will be made to effect an amicable agreement.

MAY SPLIT PEACE PARLEY.

Italy to Quit Brussels Meeting To-day if War Is Discussed.

ROME, Feb. 9.—The meeting of the Interparliamentary Peace Union, to be held to-morrow at Brussels, is regarded here as most important, owing to the decision of the members of the Italian group not to participate and to sever their connection with the union if the meeting insists on discussing and condemning the action of the Italian Government in the coflict with Turkey.

At the last meeting of the Interparliamentary Peace Union held at Paris in October an Ottoman representative presented a motion urging the intervention of the powers in the conflict between Turkey and Italy. The Italian members did not object to this motion, but entered a protest and withdrew from the meeting when other delegates presented a motion blaming the Italian Government.

PRODS ANGER MAYOR, BUT HE ORDERS RAIDS

Resents the Grand Jury's "Nonsensical" Advice in Letters to Clerk of Court.

POLICE GREETED BY BULLETS

Raid Three Places and Make Many Arrests—Campaign to Stop the Revolver-Carrying Habit.

Into the atmosphere of local affairs already surcharged by what Mayor Gaynor calls a most officious and nonsensical attempt of the additional Grand Jury for the January term to advise him and the Police Commissioner, the Mayor fired a broadside yesterday in the shape of two letters to Edward R. Carroll, Clerk of the Court of General Sessions.

In both the Mayor gives his opinion without mincing matters. The letters were accompanied by a quickening of police activity believed to be the beginning of a campaign to close up disorderly resorts. Three places were raided following the receipt of letters at the Mayor's office from persons who have had unpleasant experiences and followed the popular course of telling the Mayor all about them. Many prisoners were taken in the raids. One of these, conducted by the Strong Arm squad, ended in a revolver battle.

When Judge Malone discharged the Grand Jury a week ago the foreman, Thomas W. Slocum, handed up a presentment denouncing the police methods of obtaining evidence in gambling cases and stating that the jury had been compelled in almost every instance to dismiss complaints because of insufficient evidence. This was because the evidence was the uncorroborated testimony of one person, it was declared. Accompanying the presentment was a resolution asking that it be sent to the Mayor. Judge Malone ordered the presentment filed, but through a mistake of a clerk it was forwarded to the Mayor as the Grand Jury had asked.

Gaynor Resents Criticism.

This is the first Gaynor letter to Mr. Carroll:

Feb. 6, 1912.

Sir—I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of Feb. 3, transmitting to me a copy of a presentment of the Grand Jury which they requested should be sent to me. The presentment is that, while the Grand Jury was satisfied that certain persons were guilty of keeping gambling places, there was not evidence enough to prove it, and therefore no indictment could be found.

In the first place, permit me to say that I know of no law which constitutes the Grand Jury the adviser of the Mayor or of the Police Commissioner. Therefore, I do not know why the Grand Jury undertakes to give such advice. Being under no official sanction, duty, or authority, such advice is purely voluntary. It is no better than if the Mayor or Police Commissioner should intrude his voluntary advice on the Grand Jury, whose legal advisers are the Judge and the District Attorney.

In the next place, allow me to say that I am very much astonished to have a Grand Jury say that the evidence of one witness, even with the addition of the captured gambling implements, is not sufficient to enable an indictment to be found. I am very certain they never have received any such advice from the court or District Attorney. If they threw out indictments on such evidence as this they violated the law.

The evidence of one witness is enough. There is no law to the contrary. The evidence of one witness, with the additional evidence of the captured gambling implements themselves, is more than enough. Moreover, a Grand Jury needs only sufficient evidence to make out what is called a prima facie case to find an indictment. The law does not require that they have sufficient evidence to convict the defendant beyond a reasonable doubt, although I am told Grand Juries very often think so.

I must say I am very much astonished to have a Grand Jury say that they cannot find an indictment against a common gambler on the evidence of one witness, and not even when that evidence is corroborated by the capture of the gambling implements in his possession or place. It is very discouraging to the police to have Grand Juries refuse to find indictments on sufficient evidence, and then turn about and say the police are to blame for not producing more evidence. Even if there were more, the District Attorney might very well not produce it before the Grand Jury but reserve it for the trial, for he only needs to introduce evidence enough before the Grand Jury to make out a prima facie case.

Very truly yours, W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.

Edward R. Carroll, Esq., Clerk of the Court of General Sessions of the Peace, 32 Franklin Street, New York City.

Calls Document Nonsensical.

Mr. Carroll called at once at the City Hall and explained that it was all a mistake. He then wrote a formal letter withdrawing the presentment and asking that it be returned. With it went the second letter from the Mayor:

Feb. 8, 1912.

Sir: I am returning to you the presentment of the Grand Jury as you request. I am not surprised to learn that Judge Malone did not direct that it should be sent to me as the Grand Jury requested, for I do not recall that I have ever seen a more officious or nonsensical document. It were well if Grand Juries would attend to their own duties and do them well.

A good many think that on the whole the duties of the Grand Juries are done worse than those of any department or official of the Government, and yet they take upon themselves to obtrusively advise other officials. I have no notion of advising the Grand Juries and I respectfully request them not to advise me, as they have no authority of law whatever in the premises. Very truly yours,

W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.

Edward R. Carroll, Esq., Clerk of the Court of General Sessions of the Peace.

Police Commissioner Waldo was before the Grand Jury. The police are not pleased with the presentment of the jury, as it ignores the corroborative evidence of a great quantity of gambling apparatus seized. One of the cases in which there was failure to indict, according to a police official, was that of a man who, according to the testimony, was seen to shift a revolver from one pocket to another. In this case it was pointed out that when the jury failed to indict it neglected its duty in not indicting the police for conspiracy in putting the revolver in the man's possession, the only logical alternative.

Revolvers Fired in a Raid.

Lieut. Charles Becker, head of the Special Duty Squad, met twelve of his men shortly before midnight Thursday night at Ninth Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street. They piled into waiting automobiles already partly filled with axes, sledge hammers, and other wrecking outfit. The three automobiles swung into West Thirty-seventh Street and drew up in front of a house on the north side of the street, near Eighth Avenue.

As Becker knocked at the door a little shutter opened and a negro looked out and instantly closed the opening. As he scurried away the axes began to fall on the door. Half the squad started around to watch the rear exits. The police had to batter down a sheet-iron door to get into the hallway. There another "ice box" door confronted them. They battered this down and smashed their way into the dancing and assembly room of the "club."

There were nearly a hundred persons in the place. Nearly all were negroes. Three men who had arrived early in the evening on an automobile slumming tour were very popular, for they had proved not only good spenders but excellent singers. They were members of Becker's force, and the only policemen in the place when the raiders broke in.

There was pandemonium when Becker pushed through the opening the axes had made. As the men filed in behind him the crowd suddenly separated, and at the other end of the room a colored woman stepped from behind a partition and raising a revolver began to fire. The third shot had gone crashing into the woodwork of the door, and the crowd was cowering back out of range when every light in the place went out. Three times more the woman fired, and then Becker sprang forward with his revolver in his hand.

"Look out!" he shouted, and then other revolver shots came and the crowd in the darkness came to life and charged the narrow entrance. Becker fired above the heads of the attacking force and at the same time the policeman at the door began to fire. This drove the crowd back. The Lieutenant quietly groped his way down the room until he came to Walter Herbert, Republican District Captain, who is charged with being the proprietor of the place.

"You turn on the lights," he said, and to emphasize his command he shoved his revolver against the man's stomach. Herbert did not argue. He backed against the wall and switched the lights on. More than twenty shots had been fired, but after that there was no trouble.

One man had a revolver. Becker covered him. The man let it slide down in front of him, and, the police say, attempted to conceal it by his feet. One revolver was found on the floor.

Dancers and patrons were lined up in the smoke-filled room and each questioned. Eleven men and two women were arrested. Herbert gave his address as 331 West Fifty-seventh Street. He is charged with conducting a dance hall without a license, maintaining a disorderly house, and violating the liquor tax law. The police seized about 200 gallons of assorted liquor in the place. Theodore Jenkins of 336 West Thirty-seventh Street is the man the police say dropped one of the revolvers. He was later discharged by Magistrate Butts in the West Side Court. The other prisoners were charged with being disorderly persons. Herbert was held in $2,000 bail, and the others in $1,000 each for examination on Tuesday.

While this place was being raided a detachment of police from the West Thirty-seventh Street Station, armed with warrants issued by Magistrate McAdoo, visited the Independent Englander Dramatic and Pleasure Club on Seventh Avenue, near Forty-first Street. This raid is said to have been the result of a letter written by a young man who complained that he had joined the club to cultivate his dramatic talents and had lost a considerable sum of money. The warrants called for the arrest of John and Paul Kelly as alleged proprietors of the place.

The police had little trouble in getting in. They say they found fifteen persons and several sets of dice, crap tables, cards, and other gambling paraphernalia. They arrested John Kelly of 413 West Fifty-seventh Street, and charged him with being the keeper of a gambling house; John Griffo, whom the police say has a reputation as a pugilist, of 390 Broome Street, and Tomlio Smith of 201 West Eighty-fourth Street, charged with being common gamblers. Later in the West Side Court the three prisoners were admitted to $1,000 bail each for trial in General Sessions.

Detective Dockstader led a raid late Thursday night at the Folies Café in West Forty-fourth Street, just off Broadway. More than a thousand persons gathered about the place while the raid was in progress. This place was visited as a result of a letter written by three Columbia students to Mayor Gaynor. They complained that they had lost money in the place and had been roughly treated and ejected when they sought redress.

Michael Goodwin, who said he was a head waiter and lived at 288 West Twenty-fifth Street, was charged with maintaining a disorderly resort. Samuel Kalisch of 526 West 135th Street and Michael Smith, waiters, were arrested, charged with violation of the excise law. In the West Side Court they asked for an adjournment until Wednesday, which Magistrate Butts granted. They were each held in $500 bail.

Police activity was directed along new lines yesterday when a detail of men was sent out to enforce Paragraph 1,914 of the Sullivan law regarding the sale and carrying of dangerous weapons. This rarely enforced paragraph makes it obligatory on the sellers of revolvers and other firearms to keep a register of the time and date of sale, name, age, occupation, and residence of every purchaser of firearms. It also provides that before the purchase the buyer must show a permit for carrying a revolver, and that this must be entered in the register.

The police say that it is impossible properly to deal with the revolver-carrying habit until the dealers comply with the law, which they are said to have entirely disregarded. Detective Bowes yesterday brought into the Essex Market Court Isaac Meyer, who keeps a store at 205 Bowery, in the shadow of the hall occupied by the association named after the father of the law. He was charged with selling a revolver without registering the sale. Magistrate Harris held him in $500 for trial. This is the first case under the new law. Two warrants charging the same offense were served late yesterday afternoon, one on a dealer on the Bowery and the other on one in Park Row.

MINING BROKERS WIN SUIT.

Purchaser Loses, Even If Mr. Guggenheim Didn't Buy Stock.

Augustus Linden brought suit yesterday in the City Court against Arthur Lipper & Co., stock brokers, for selling him stock in a silver mine on the alleged statement that the firm itself had bought $5,000 worth, and that Isaac Guggenheim had invested an equal amount. Isaac Guggenheim testified that he had never heard of the Peterson Cobalt Silver Mining Company, much less having invested in it.

It was alleged by Mr. Linden that an agent of the Lipper Company had offered to let him in "on the ground floor" by selling him at 75 cents stock which was soon to be placed on the Curb, and which would probably soar to $2. Mr. Linden bought 1,000 shares and learned, soon afterward, that he could possibly collect five or six cents on each dollar he had invested. He failed, however, to prove his case against the stockbrokers, and the verdict was in favor of the defendants, who disclaimed any misrepresentation.

"EXES" FORM A SOCIETY.

Former Deputy Police Commissioners Organize Association.

Several former Deputy Police Commissioners have organized an association to which all ex-Deputy Commissioners will be eligible, and to which ex-Commissioners may be admitted also as associate members. The purpose of the association is simply to bring the ex-Deputies together socially and informally.

The association was formed at a meeting Wednesday held in the office of Col. N. B. Thurston, 280 Broadway, a Deputy under Col. Partridge and now Inspector of Small Arms Practice, National Guard. He was made temporary President. Charles W. Kirby, Deputy under William F. Baker, was made Secretary, and Major Ebstein, Deputy under Col. Partridge, and Alfred W. Booream, Deputy under Commissioners Baker and Cropsey, were chosen a committee to suggest plans for permanent organization.

Huron Club to Entertain.

The Huron Club of the First Assembly District has sent out invitations to an entertainment on Feb. 12 at Palm Garden, Fifty-eighth Street, near Third Avenue. Among those who have been invited are Mayor Gaynor, Commissioner Waldo, Fire Commissioner Johnson, and a number of the Justices of the Supreme and City Courts. Former State Senator John Fox, for many years President of the National Democratic Club, will lead the grand march. L. Hitch Harrison is President of the club and John Kennedy is Secretary.

WILLING TO HELP POLICE

Test Suits to be Brought Against Brooklyn Officers Following Execution of New Commands.

The licensed pawnbrokers of the city, of whom there are more than 200, are at odds with Mayor Gaynor because of his recent instructions to Police Commissioner Waldo to compel all pawnbrokers to give up stolen property in their possession to the owner of the property without being refunded for same, and, furthermore, because of Mayor Gaynor's instructions to Chief Wallace of the Bureau of Licenses to institute proceedings against all resisting pawnbrokers for the revocation of their licenses. Civil suits against a few high police officials for alleged illegal arrests are expected to follow.

So far as the return of stolen goods without a refund is concerned, the pawnbrokers are not much concerned in view of the decision of Justice Gerard in the Supreme Court Thursday, holding that stolen property received in pledge by the pawnbrokers cannot be taken away from them without due process of law.

Under this ruling the owner of stolen goods can sue for a writ of replevin or sue for the conversion of the goods, and this, the pawnbrokers say, is all very fair and just. What they are worried about, however, is the Mayor's threat to have their licenses revoked if they do not comply with his wishes.

This attitude on the part of the Mayor, the pawnbrokers say, will have a tendency to thwart the detectives' efforts in the finding of goods in the pawnshops; it will work to the detriment of the Police Department, and, what is most important, to the pawnbroker, it will actually endanger their business so that many are likely to fall by the wayside. They say they can prove this, too, and point out how, in accordance with the Mayor's notion, they will become the dupes of all the clever crooks for miles around.

This is the scheme which the crooks are expected to work under Mayor Gaynor's reform measure, according to the pawnbrokers: A and B will conspire to make an easy hundred dollars. A will give his diamond ring, worth several hundred dollars, to B, and will immediately run to Police Headquarters and report that his ring was stolen. He will give an accurate description of the ring, and the detectives at Police Headquarters will list the ring on the police green lists, which are left at all the pawnshops from day to day.

In the meantime, B, who has the ring, will go to a pawnshop and pledge the article for $100. He will dress neatly, of course, and not reveal the slightest sign that he is a swindler. The pawnbroker will expect him to return within a few days, but he will never see him again.

Enter a few days later, Mr. A with a detective from Police Headquarters. The detective will find the diamond, and A will claim it. The detective will point to the description in the green list to verify A's contention.

Now, under Mayor Gaynor's orders, the pawnbrokers say, the pawnbroker would be compelled to give up the ring to A on demand, thereby forfeiting the pledge of $100. Then A and B will quietly meet, and divide the spoils. Should the pawnbroker refuse to hand the ring over without going to court, according to this interpretation, proceedings for the revocation of his license would be in order.

"Mayor Gaynor has made no attempt to have the police and the pawnbrokers work together," said one pawnbroker yesterday. "He is down on the loan men to the detriment of the Police Department. Whatever friendship exists between the loan men and the detectives has been brought about in spite of the Mayor, and it is due to this good will alone that much stolen property in the pawnshops has been recovered.

"We pawnbrokers should like to make it clear that we are not crooks, as the public probably thinks. Every member of the Pawnbrokers' Association has a telephone, and many crooks are caught by getting into touch with Police Headquarters. Now, even if we get a chance, we'll simply let the crooks pass on and say nothing about it. We won't take his stuff, of course, because we'd lose all that we paid on it. All that the pawnbroker wants is a fair deal, and then he'll help the police in running down crooks. But he'd be a fool to do it if he's going to lose on the deal."

In the Gates Avenue Court, Brooklyn, Joseph J. Friel, a pawnbroker of 1,473 Broadway, Brooklyn, who was arrested a few days ago, charged with receiving stolen goods, was discharged yesterday, Magistrate Hylan saying that the testimony did not bear out the allegations set forth in the complaint.

Following the discharge of the prisoner, Franklin Taylor, representing Friel, as well as the Brooklyn Pawnbrokers' Association, announced that he was preparing to bring civil suits against Police Inspector Edward Hughes and Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty in connection with the Friel case.

VEIT ON FOURTH BALLOT.

Principal of School 114 Is Chosen a Deputy Superintendent.

The Board of Superintendents of the Department of Education yesterday named Benjamin Veit as District Superintendent to success John L. N. Hunt, who was retired on Feb. 1 under the seventy-year limit rule. City Supt. Maxwell and Associate City Supts. Edson, Haaren, Meliney, O'Brien, Shallow, Stevens, and Walsh were present at the secret session.

The nomination was made by ballot, five votes, a majority of the board, being necessary to a choice. Mr. Veit's chief competitors were John P. Conroy, Cecil A. Kidd, and Thomas J. Boyle. It took four ballots to decide the contest, and on one of them Mr. Conroy obtained four votes, or within one of the prize. On the fourth ballot Mr. Veit got five votes. His name will now go before the Committee of Elementary Schools, with the recommendation of the Board of Superintendents in his favor. If the action of the board is confirmed by the committee the nomination then will be acted upon by the Board of Education at its meeting on next Wednesday.

As soon as the Board of Education approves his appointment he will be assigned to some district, probably the one vacated by Mr. Hunt. His appointment will date from the day of his assignment. The term of office is six years, with a salary of $5,000 a year.

Mr. Veit was born in this city in 1867. He attended public school in the Nineteenth Ward, and went from School 59, in East Fifty-seventh Street, to the City College, from which he was graduated in 1886. Shortly after graduation he began to teach in the public schools, his first experience being in No. 43, 129th Street and Amsterdam Avenue. After five years he was transferred to School 83, in East 110th Street. In 1902 he was appointed Principal in School 1, Henry, Catharine, and Oliver Streets. When the new School 114, at Oak, Oliver, and James Streets, was opened he became its Principal, and still holds that position.

TO HOLD COURT IN ASYLUM.

McKim Too Ill to Leave River Crest for Sanity Hearing.

Joseph McKim, 93 years old, formerly a wealthy builder of Far Rockaway, is too ill to leave the River Crest Sanitarium in Astoria and appear before Judge Burt J. Humphrey in the Queens County Court, Long Island City, where he is making a fight to have his sanity established, and also to have William Willett, Jr., discharged as the committee of his estate and person, so a session of court will be held in the sanitarium.

McKim has a wife and two daughters and his estate is valued at about $100,000. He was committed to the sanitarium in July, 1907. Sometime ago his niece, Mrs. Wilhelmina Collins of Brooklyn, applied for a writ of habeas corpus to obtain McKim's release. Later she withdrew from the suit and the action was renewed in McKim's name. Two weeks ago he was produced in court where he testified in his own behalf and made a good impression. Despite his advanced age he has a good memory.

When the case was called yesterday morning, Mr. McKim was not in court and Wallace E. J. Collins, Counsel for Mr. Willett, informed Judge Humphrey that the aged man was seriously ill. Dr. William E. Dold, representing the River Crest Sanitarium, informed the Court that the institution would not be responsible for taking him out in his present condition, as he might die on the way to court.

"Do you think it would be safe for the Court to take the attendants, the lawyers, and witnesses and hold a session in an insane asylum," inquired Judge Humphrey humorously. "Do you think they would let us all out again?"

Dr. Dold assured the Court that he thought it safe. It was then arranged to hold a session of the County Court in the sanitarium on the afternoon of Saturday, Feb. 17, or the following Saturday, Feb. 24, subject to McKim's condition and the convenience of the counsel on both sides.

According to the physicians McKim is afflicted with paranoia and is also suffering from Bright's disease and bronchitis.

LOVES HUSBAND NO. 4 BEST.

Much Married Mrs. Fauser, However, Tells Court He's a Bad Man.

Margaret E. Fauser, who is suing her fourth husband, Gustav, for separation, held the courtroom in rapt attention yesterday afternoon while she poured forth her voluminous observations to Supreme Court Justice Hotchkiss as to what a good wife she had been, and as to what an evil husband—alas! she would never trust men a fifth time—Gustav, had been.

"You have been married four times?" was one of the questions that cross-examining counsel asked the witness.

"Well," the reply was snapped back, "he told me he was married three times before, so I thought we were about even. I helped him more than I helped all my other husbands put together," she went on, "and I loved him more, too. Yes, I am still fond of him."

But even Mrs. Fauser had to admit that she did not love her husband quite so much after she had found him kissing her eighteen-year-old daughter. The difficulty in examining Mrs. Fauser lay in her extreme willingness to tell all about everybody she had ever known. It was all Justice Hotchkiss could do to prevent her from saying why she had been shot by a previous husband.

Before adjournment until next Tuesday Mrs. Fauser's counsel told the court that his client was sorely in need of money. The alimony which Mr. Fauser had given her was discontinued several weeks ago. It was pointed out that she already owed $120 for hotel bills, and that she had no means of support. Justice Hotchkiss expressed his sympathy, but said he could do nothing in the matter.

"What was your maiden name, Mrs. Fauser?" Justice Hotchkiss asked.

Mrs. Fauser wept, but would not tell.

BANK DEFAULTER SENTENCED

John Pucci, Who Stole Nearly $40,000, Will Go to State Prison.

John Pucci, who pleaded guilty to grand larceny, was sentenced yesterday to not less than one year and six months and not more than nine years and six months in State Prison by Judge Mulqueen in the Court of General Sessions.

Pucci admitted that he had stolen between $35,000 and $40,000 from the State Savings Bank, 1,927 Third Avenue.

SLOANE ESTATE $862,115.

Property of Society Matron Who Died at Lenox Goes to Children.

Mrs. Adela Berry Sloane, who died May 4, 1911, at Lenox, Mass., left an estate of $862,115 taxable in this State, according to an appraisal filed yesterday in the transfer tax office of the Surrogate's Court by Deputy State Controller Fraser.

Mrs. Sloane's house at 883 Fifth Avenue was appraised at $410,000, and her property at 160 East Seventy-third Street at $90,000. She held a one-fourth interest in the properties at 222 to 258 West 135th Street, and 1,009 to 1,017 Lexington Avenue, worth $200,000 and $112,000 apiece, making her share in them $50,000 and $28,000. She also owned 651 Palisade Avenue, Yonkers, appraised at $10,500. All this property was unencumbered.

Mrs. Sloane had a large jewelry collection, appraised at $114,109. This list included three pearl necklaces of 165 pearls, about 800 grains, $60,000; pearl and diamond collar, seven strands of pearls, $17,000; pearl and diamond tiara, five large pearls, $15,000; diamond necklace, $2,800; diamond tiara, five stars, $1,600; pair button pearl earrings, $8,000; catseye and diamond brooch, $3,000; lorgnon and chain, $1,100; drop pearl pendant, $1,000, and loose pearls, worth $335.

Among her personal property were seventy-six shares of the Provident Loan Society stock, $76,000; 375 shares of American Surety Company stock, $51,562, and $23,970 worth of paintings.

The sole heirs are two sons and a daughter, who receive the following bequests: John Sloane, Jr., $498,144.71; William Sloane, $98,183.61, and Mrs. Evelyn Sloane Griswold, $264,287.10.

BIERMAN JURY DISAGREES.

St. Louis Butcher's Tale of False Arrest Finds Some Doubters.

Frederick Bierman, the St. Louis butcher who sued the American Express Company in the Supreme Court for $25,000 for alleged false arrest, was unable to convince all of the jury yesterday of his right to the damages. Justice Ford announced that after deliberating all of Thursday evening the jury was unable to come to an agreement.

Bierman was kept in jail seventy-three days on the charge that he had stolen a traveler's check belonging originally to Frederic N. Coudert. He was acquitted before Judge Swann of the Court of General Sessions. He contended that the check had been given to him by a steward of the German liner on which Mr. Coudert had just returned from Europe.

FEARS SHE MAY LOSE HAWLEY FORTUNE

Mrs. Crandell, Just Out of Workhouse, Can Scarcely Credit Her Husband's Riches.

BUT SHE'LL SEEK HER SHARE

Hopes Now to be Able to Educate Her Five Children—Quarrel Over Husband Caused Her Committal.

Mrs. Frederick Crandell, the wife of the disowned nephew of the late Edwin Hawley, was released from the County Workhouse on Blackwell's Island yesterday morning, and when she stepped once more in Manhattan she learned for the first time that her husband's uncle had died intestate and that her husband had thereby been raised from almost squalid poverty to the inheritance of nearly $2,000,000. She heard these tidings with a seasoned calm, as though they made but one more incident in a somewhat melodramatic life, for it was for her, when she was known as Adeline McManus, telegraph operator, that Frederick Crandell parted stormily from his uncle, who thereupon cast him forever out of his favor.

In one sense the change in the family fortune came too late for her, for while she and her husband toiled side by side in hardship for years the news of his sudden accession to wealth found them split by domestic difficulties that were originally responsible for her commitment to the workhouse.

Would Fred and Adeline join hands again and resume the responsibility and the enjoyment of this sudden wealth together or would each go a separate way? This was the question that racked the McManus household yesterday, and through it all Mrs. Crandell looked as though she were haunted by the fear that the whole vision would dissolve in thin air.

"It all may come to nothing," she said, with a shrug. She may have been thinking of the possibility that Edwin Hawley left a will after all and that that will would be found, and some such possibility may have been occupying the mind, not only of Mrs. Crandell, but of Margaret Cameron, the some-time ward and housekeeper of Mr. Hawley, who inherits nothing from his vast estate. Mrs. Crandell, late of Blackwell's Island, reflected on these things in the narrow confines of the McManus flat at 271 West 144th Street. Miss Cameron's reflections were set among luxurious surroundings in an East Sixtieth Street house that used to be Edwin Hawley's.

Miss Cameron remained at home there yesterday, but denied herself to eager interviewers. On story had it that earlier in the week she had gone out to Babylon, L. I., and there ransacked Effingham Park, Edwin Hawley's country home, but if her search was for a will it was fruitless. Another story, and a persistent one, was to the effect that she and Edwin Hawley had planned to marry this month, but at least one man who should know was authority yesterday for the statement that no such idea had ever entered the wealthy bachelor's head. The question as to whether any provision would be made voluntarily for her out of the Hawley millions was one of those that was not answered.

After various ups and downs the five children of the Frederick Crandells were sent to the kindlier air of Chatham, N. Y., the home of Judge Homer Crandell, Fred's father, and Adeline made her home with her mother and two sisters in an apartment in West 134th Street, near St. Nicholas Park. Fred lived there, too, and, according to Sadie McManus, it was "sweetheart" and "darling" much of the time. But after the Christmas holidays, at least, Fred Crandell had lodgings around the corner in the household of Mrs. Blanche.

According to one of the tenants of the house at 2,519 Eighth Avenue, where the Blanches lived, Mrs. Crandell came there repeatedly trying to see her husband, and it was on the last of these visits that she broke the door while making loud accusations until finally the police appeared. That was on the evening of Jan. 20, and for this outburst of temper was sent to the workhouse.

Adeline Crandell is still a young woman and is possessed of no inconsiderable good looks. A little of the comforts of life and a little peace she would become again the pretty woman that Fred Crandell wooed against all opposition. She saw reporters yesterday in the McManus home, in West 144th Street, and seemed most depressed by the fact that one evening newspaper had pictured her arrival home in the frowsled blouse of her workhouse garb, whereas, the reporter might have seen easily enough, she had on a white and black check waist, and a not unbecoming one at that.

As to what she and her husband would do she wouldn't say, but she was willing to dwell with satisfaction on the prospects of a comfortable future, fine home, and the best education for the five little Crandells that are up in Chatham. Her interests are being put in the hands of counsel. For the last three weeks the firm of Stanchfield & Levy, lawyers for the Hawley estate, have been in touch with the McManus family, and it is understood that the plans of the Crandells will take shape within a few days.

Surrogate Cohalan approved a bond in the amount of $2,000,000 filed by the administrators and furnished by a cluster of surety companies. From Chatham comes the information that even had Edwin Hawley executed his will, the estate would, under the State inheritance laws, have been distributed, practically as it now will be, under the provisions of the unexecuted will, the late Mrs. Homer Crandell was to have received a fifth share, and it is that same fifth share which will now pass to Frederick Crandell and his brother and sister.

Edwin Hawley Van Wyck, a godson of the late Edwin Hawley, and at present cashier of P. W. Brooks & Co., bankers of 115 Broadway, made it clear yesterday, that for his part, he proposes to make a fight in the courts for a share in the Hawley millions. He is no relative of the dead man, but he will make a claim against the estate on the strength of Mr. Hawley's past assurances that he would be provided for. Mr. Van Wyck lives at 147 West Fifty-fifth Street.

Knickerbocker Trust Clerk Guilty.

Augustus Plattwickes of 703 Nostrand Avenue, Brooklyn, who was formerly coupon clerk for the Knickerbocker Trust Company, and who was arrested several days ago, charged with the larceny of $250 from the company, pleaded guilty yesterday before Judge Crain in General Sessions. He was remanded for sentence. According to the complaints, the total sum involved in the irregularities is about $10,000.

Then President Munn and Other Officers Ironed It Out as Good as New.

SOAKED IN EQUITABLE VAULT

United States Life Securities Full of Moisture When Rescued, but Laundry Work Prevents a Loss.

Officers and clerks of the United States Life Insurance Company are telling their friends the story of a piece of "financial laundering" which has probably never occurred before in the history of Wall Street.

"The vault in which our company kept its securities was the very lowest one in the burned Equitable Building," said Assistant Secretary Kenway last night. "Tons of water filtered down into it while the Fire Department was fighting the fire. The financial institutions which occupied the vault immediately above us, when they got into their vaults after the fire, found that their securities were hardly damp. But when we came to open the large tin boxes in which $3,000,000 of our securities were kept, we found that there was about a bucket of water in each box. The securities were soaked through, but were not otherwise damaged, and we removed them safely to another vault which we had hired in the financial district, and tried to dry them, first with blotting paper. Half a dozen clerks of our company blotted and blotted away at the wet securities for almost a week, but the moisture refused to come out.

"Finally, President Munn telephoned to one of the electrical supply companies of the city and ordered half a dozen electric fans and half a dozen electric irons. When these were sent down to the vault, we connected the fans and the irons to the electric-light wiring of the vault. We strung other wires across the vault and hung the 3,000 bond certificates out to dry. The certificates were attached to the wires with regulation wooden clothespins. As soon as each security was made partially dry by the breeze from the whirring electric fans, one of the officers of the company, under President Munn's direction, would spread it out on an ironing board and would carefully iron it out with one of the electric irons. About the only thing we didn't use which a laundry does is blueing and starch.

"The ironing of 3,000 pieces of laundry isn't any easy work even for a trained laundress. It took us ten days altogether, and the hands of most of us were red and blistered before we got through. Now, however, that the work is all over, we are quite proud of ourselves, for not one of the entire 3,000 bonds is in the slightest degree torn or damaged."

The uncertainty of business has no more terror for the officers of the company, for, as Assistant Secretary Kenway says, if they are ever called upon to leave the life insurance business they can qualify as first-class launderers.

DID WOMEN FEED FREE?

Women's Federation Suspects That Outsiders Ate Its Luncheon.

Have outsiders been feeding at the expense of the New York City Federation of Women's Clubs? Miss Edith A. Reiffert brought up the question at the meeting of the Women's Democratic Club at the Waldorf yesterday. The Democratic Club is one of the organizations belonging to the Federation and Miss Reiffert attended the Federation Convention at the Hotel Astor a week ago yesterday as delegate from the club.

"It was perfectly scandalous," said Miss Reiffert, "the way they crowded the women into the lunch room like a flock of sheep. You see, the women who live in the hotel find out when the federation is going to have its luncheons and they just hang around and when the time comes they sneak right in and get their luncheons for nothing. Why, there were from 15 to 20 of them who did it at one Federation Convention."

The Democratic Club is going to have its annual dinner in the Rose Room of the Hotel Astor on Jefferson's Birthday and they passed a resolution yesterday to have Mrs. Mary M. Lilly read the Declaration of Independence. Mrs. John S. Crosby, the President, announced that she expects Mayor Gaynor and Gov. Wilson to be guests of honor at the dinner and is sure of having Attorney General Wickersham.

FORGERY CHIEF CONVICTED.

Carlesi Planned a Series of Successful Frauds on Banks.

Charles Carlesi who, when he was arrested on last Election Day, was called by the police the leader of a band of counterfeiters with a national reputation, was found guilty yesterday of forgery in the second degree by a jury in Judge Rosalsky's part of General Sessions. He was remanded to the Tombs for week for sentence.

Carlesi, the police said, arranged the details of the forgeries in his saloon at Thirteenth Street and Avenue A, having the work done by an artist who was a member of his gang, and arranging for the collection of the forgeries with great ingenuity.

One of his plans, the police said, was to have a confederate pose as a small manufacturer, hire a loft and open a fair sized account with a neighboring bank. The business might be kept up a month if necessary, but when Carlesi judged the bank ready to fall a victim to the scheme, the confederate would offer one of the forged checks for deposit and immediately check against it until all the funds in his name, or all except a few dollars, had been withdrawn. Then the business would be closed up and the manufacturer would disappear.

SUBWAY DECISION NEXT WEEK

City Officials Say Again, Engineering Details Worked Out Meanwhile.

City officials were confident yesterday that the end of the long-drawn-out subway negotiations would be at the beginning of next week. For a week now there has not been any conference of importance between the negotiators and the city representatives, but a great deal of work has been accomplished by the accountants and engineers in getting the final details straightened out. The question as to the amount of interest to be guaranteed by the city on any capital supplied by the Interborough in excess of $77,000,000 is still to be settled.

Connected with that question is a difference of opinion as to whether the laying of the rails should come under construction account of equipment, the city favoring the latter. There are a number of technical points of this nature now under consideration, but they are not considered important enough to threaten a breakdown in the negotiations, though they do occasion delay. In going over them A. J. County, assistant to Samuel Rea, Vice President of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, spent some time yesterday with Chairman Willcox of the Public Service Commission and Borough President McAneny.

BRYAN MUST EXPLAIN MONEY TRUST ATTACK

House Banking Committee, Which He Says Is "Controlled," to Call Him in Inquiry.

TOO MUCH TALK, SAYS PUJO

Chairman's Resolution Looking to an Investigation Makes No Mention of the Money Trust.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Chairman Pujo of the House Banking and Currency Committee conferred with his colleagues on the committee to-day regarding the proposed Money Trust investigation, and then offered a resolution in the House seeking plenary power to enable the committee to proceed with its investigation. The resolution makes no mention whatever of a Money Trust. Its preamble recites that the Banking and Currency Committee has been "vested with power to propose to the House all legislation relating to banking and currency," and that the committee is "desirous of securing full and complete information regarding the banking and currency conditions of the country for the purpose of determining what legislation is needed."

The resolution, if passed, will give the Banking and Currency Committee, for these purposes, power to sit during sessions or recess of the House, either as a whole or by sub-committee, compel the attendance of witnesses, send for persons and papers, administer oaths to witnesses, and employ counsel, accountants, clerical and other assistants, the costs of the investigation to be paid out of the contingent fund of the House.

William Jennings Bryan will probably be the first witness to be summoned before the committee. Mr. Bryan trod on the toes of the Democratic members of the committee when he recently declared that the Money Trust thought it could control the committee. The committee insists that Mr. Bryan must explain what he meant, notwithstanding the fact that the Bryan adherents in the caucus on Wednesday night offered a resolution, which was adopted, expressing confidence in the integrity of their colleagues on that committee.

"The committee is a unit," said Representative Pujo to-day, "in the decision that Mr. Bryan must explain to us exactly what he meant."

This is what Mr. Bryan is credited with saying about the committee, concerning which the Democratic members wish to question him:

> Democrats, beware! The money trust having failed in its effort to prevent an investigation is now trying to force an investigation by the Banking Committee. The fact that the money trust wants that committee intrusted with the investigation is proof positive that it thinks it can control that committee.

"There has been much loose talk by uninformed persons about monopolistic control of financial conditions in this country," said Mr. Pujo, after he had announced that Bryan would be called. "Should such conditions exist no doubt legislation along proper lines will not only be recommended by the Committee on Banking and Currency, but will be enacted by the House. The monetary system of this country, in my judgment, is a scientific and not a political question. It should be investigated and considered along those lines."

Lenten Lectures for Cancer Home.

Dr. James J. Walsh will give a series of lectures on the afternoons of Thursdays during Lent at the Hotel Plaza in aid of the Rosary Hill Home, an institution for the care of destitute persons suffering from incurable cancer. His subject will be "The Borderland Between Spirit and Matter," and he will deal with dreams, their origin and significance, on Feb. 22; "Telepathy and Teledynamics" on Feb. 29, "Phantasms of the Living, the Dying, and the Dead" on March 7, "Spiritism, Old and New" on March 14, and "The Influence of Mind Over the Body for Good and Ill" on March 21. The head of the Rosary Hill Home is the daughter of Nathaniel Hawthorne.

TO REDUCE THE CAVALRY.

Abolition of Five Regiments Is Favoerd, Despite Opposition.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 9.—The House of Representatives to-day adopted an amendment, offered to the Army Appropriation bill by Chairman Hay of the Military Committee, to abolish five of the present fifteen regiments of cavalry. Under existing law there must be two negro regiments, and the Hay amendment does not touch those. The amendment provides:

> That on and after July 1, 1912, there shall be ten regiments of cavalry, and no more, in the United States Army, and that the officers who shall be rendered supernumerary by this reduction in the number of cavalry regiments shall be retained in the service, and shall be assigned to vacancies in their respective grades as such vacancies shall occur in the cavalry, or, in the discretion of the President, to such vacancies in their respective grades as shall occur in any other arm of the service.

The Republicans vigorously fought the amendment, which was offered under the Holman provision of the House rules which bars points of orders against "new" legislation sought to be attached to appropriation bills if the amendment would reduce expenditures. Representative Mann made the point that the amendment was out of order because it would not reduce the expenditures, but merely force the officers and men of the five cavalry regiments into other units of the service. Representative Saunders of Virginia, who occupied the chair, held the amendment in order.

Chairman Hay argued that the cavalry arm of the army is top heavy and that neither the Russian nor Japanese armies had strong cavalry arms in the Manchurian campaigns. He estimated that the abolition of these five regiments would do away with about 250 officers and 3,980 enlisted men, who could be "reabsorbed" in other units of the service. He estimated that adoption of the amendment would result ultimately in an annual saving of about $5,000,000.

WHAT EMBITTERED MITCHELL

Resented Being Sentenced on Christmas Eve, He Tells Court.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—John Mitchell's trial for contempt of court, in which he was involved with Samuel Gompers and Frank Morrison, officials of the American Federation of Labor, in connection with the Bucks Stove and Range boycott case, took on a dramatic touch at the hearing to-day.

Mr. Mitchell had seemed to be criticising Justice Wright, and the Justice had displayed some impatience.

"Let me explain," said Mr. Mitchell. "At the time that I was summoned to Washington to appear before this court for judgment I faced a long term in prison. It was on the day before Christmas Eve. I was living in New York. I had not seen my family and children, who were in Illinois, for two months. I had bought and packed in my grip toys and gifts for my children. I asked that the decision be postponed. It was not. I was brought here and sentenced, and I felt outraged that I did not receive the same consideration that would have been given to the worst offender in the land."

"Mr. Mitchell," interrupted Justice Wright, "what reason have you for believing that the court knew of your request for a postponement?"

"I wrote to the President of the American Federation of Labor and asked it, and I supposed that my request had been conveyed to the court."

"No request was conveyed to the court," replied the Justice. "It came as a demand."

Alton B. Parker, attorney for Mr. Mitchell, asked who presented the demand. Justice Wright explained that a Washington lawyer had approached him in chambers.

"I have been under the impression that my request was conveyed to the court and was denied. If I have been wrong in that I would not do the court an injustice, and I regret that I have made it appear so," said Mr. Mitchell.

TELL OF VOTE BUYING.

Senator du Pont's Cash Used, Senate Committee Hears.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—A subcommittee of the Senate Committee on the Judiciary heard to-day that in the last elections votes of white men were bought in Delaware at $10 apiece and negro votes at $5 apiece. These charges were made technically to prevent the reappointment of United States Marshal Cornelius P. Swaine of that State, but they all have to do with the expenditure of money for the election of Senator du Pont. Mr. Swaine is charged with having received the money from the du Pont brothers and spending it in Bridgeville in the purchase of votes.

BURNS SLEUTH WINS LORIMER CASE TEST

Stenographer Takes Notes from Dictagraph as He Says He Did When McGowan "Confessed."

BLUMENBERG APOLOGIZES

Hines Denies Offering Money to Girl Telegrapher to See Detective's Message.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Public hearings in the second Senatorial investigation into the election of Senator Lorimer were declared closed to-day by Chairman Dillingham of the Senate Lorimer committee. Attorney Hanecy, representing Senator Lorimer, filed a brief to the effect that the Senator's election had been adjudicated before the present investigation began, and therefore that it could not be the subject of a second investigation.

The closing hour of the hearing was a veritable love feast. The attorneys explained that they had never intended really to display temper, and the committee added that it had not entertained like intentions. M. W. Blumenberg, the official stenographer, who was discharged for his conduct before the committee last Saturday night, wrote a letter of apology, which was read into the record.

Edward Hines, Chicago lumberman and friend of Lorimer, was the last witness called. He denied he had attempted to bribe Miss Helen Seavers, a telegraph operator, to see a message Detective A. C. Bailey had sent. After his testimony the committee decided at secret session not to inquire further into an alleged combination against Senator Lorimer as a result of the Chicago River improvement or other matters which the committee deemed, after hearing witnesses, did not bear upon the issue.

The early hours of to-day's session were marked by tests of the ability of J. E. Sheridan of the Burns Detective Agency to make a shorthand report by use of a dictograph of a conversation such as he swore he made in a hotel at Toronto when Charles McGowan was alleged to have admitted receiving $1,500 from C. F. Wiehe, Hines's brother-in-law, for perjuring himself before the committee in Lorimer's behalf. The charge was made by Blumenberg last Saturday that Sheridan's notes were "faked," and that he could not make such a shorthand report.

Conditions in the hotel rooms at Toronto in which McGowan met Detective Bailey and H. E. Kerr were reproduced as nearly as possible in Senator Dillingham's offices. In one room where three persons were to hold a conversation was hung a delicate telephonic apparatus. Wires led to the table in the next room. A Bible was used to permit Sheridan to have a weight for one corner of his notebook, while he used his left hand to hold a telephonic apparatus to his ear.

Detective Bailey and Kerr talked with a committee clerk in one room while Sheridan recorded their conversation in another, as in the first test. In the second test Senator Lorimer's secretary talked with them.

Two committee stenographers took notes with Sheridan and the test ended in a wrangle. The Lorimer lawyers maintained that Sheridan "had not made good." Representatives of the other side declared he "had done as well as could be expected."

Immediately after the test Sheridan was put in the witness chair and seemed to have no difficulty in reading his notes. There were frequent breaks, but it was said they represented parts of sentences which he did not record because he had been instructed to take only conversation relating to the Lorimer case.

When Mr. Hines was questioned about the charge that he had tried to bribe Miss Seavers, telegraph operator in a local hotel, to show him a message Detective Bailey had sent to Kerr, he said that on the day in question, upon going to Miss Seavers's table to withdraw a message he had given her to send, he saw a message from Bailey to Kerr about "a hearing postponed."

"She looked up and asked me if I was interested in it," said the witness. "I said 'a little.' Then she turned it face down."

"Did you offer her money to see the message?" Attorney Hanecy asked.

"No. I had already read practically all of it."

On cross-examination Attorney Healy asked Mr. Hines if he had not gone to the operator who relieved Miss Seavers, telling him he was A. C. Bailey, and asking for a copy of the telegram.

"No, Sir."

"And a copy was placed in Mr. Bailey's hotel box?"

"No, Sir."

It is not known when the committee will report its findings on Senator Lorimer's election.

HEARD GUN TALK BY ETTOR.

Reporters Testify to Incendiary Speeches of Lawrence Strike Leader.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Feb. 9.—Two letters, admitted as evidence over the objection of the defense, figured in the hearing in the local police court to-day of Joseph J. Ettor, recently leader of the striking textile workers here, and Arturo Giovanitti, his lieutenant, who are charged with being accessories before the fact, to the murder of Anna Lopizzo, who was shot during a riot Jan. 29.

Another feature of the testimony was the statement by two newspaper men that Ettor in one of his speeches urged the strikers to "keep the gun shops busy," and declared that he was going to get a gun himself.

The letters were taken from Ettor at the time of his arrest. They were from Vincent St. John, General Secretary-Treasurer of the Industrial Workers of the World. One was addressed to Ettor and the other to William D. Haywood. In the letter to Haywood, St. John said:

> I want to suggest that if the strike is to be of any length, the practice of trying to carry it on by paying strike benefits and opening a commissary must be cut out. There is no chance to win anything that way. These are out-of-date methods. Get those 16,000 or 20,000 organized to break into the jail and make the county feed them while they are on strike. Organize them to go back into the mills and fight there. Get them back as an organization with the understanding that they are to continue to fight.

The letter further said:

"A win at Lawrence means a start that will only end with the downfall of the wage system."

District Attorney Henry C. Atwill said the prosecution proposed to show that Ettor made speeches and gave advice to the strikers, which inspired them to violence. According to the District Attorney, Ettor said on Jan. 28 something was going to happen within forty-eight hours. The next day there were riots. The District Attorney said the bullet that killed Anna Lopizzo was fired by a tall Italian at Policeman Oscar Benoit. The bullet missed the officer, but inflicted a fatal wound on the woman.

Haywood, the first witness, refused to answer a question concerning the Industrial Workers of the World on the ground that he might incriminate himself. Nor would he identify a letter, said to have been received by him, and he was excused.

While the hearing was in progress the Strike Committee met at their headquarters, and after a long talk by the Chairman, William Yates, voted to resume picketing. To keep within the law the pickets will form an endless chain, walking in single file, and keep constantly on the move.

STRIKERS' CHILDREN COMING.

Workers Here Will Receive 150 To-day and Keep Them During Strike.

Committees of the Industrial Workers of the World and the Italian Socialist Federation, which have charge of the plan for bringing the children of Lawrence strikers to this city, to be adopted into families of workers while the strike lasts, announced yesterday that about 150 would arrive here this afternoon. They will be marched down Fifth Avenue to Union Square, where a mass meeting will be held. Later the children will be assigned to families.

"All the people who are adopting the children are workers," said Miss Elizabeth S. Flynn yesterday. "There are no rich people among them."

HURLED FROM AUTO; KILLED.

T. S. Haley in W. B. Warner's Machine When It Hits Bridge Railing.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 9.—Thomas S. Haley, Secretary and Treasurer of the Wire Novelty Company of West Haven, was killed to-night when the automobile in which he was riding ran into an iron railing on West Bridge, Congress Avenue, throwing him to the ground and fracturing his skull.

W. B. Warner, Secretary of the D. T. Welch Coal Company of West Haven, the owner and driver of the auto, was also thrown out but escaped injury. He was held under $1,000 bonds pending an investigation by the Coroner.

REAL KIMMEL WAS SLAIN IN OREGON

John Boone Swinney Has Tale of Hunt for Treasure That Led Banker to Death.

CLAIMANT'S EYES AN ISSUE

Judge Amidon Orders Examination by Optometrists as Aid in Identifying Man Who Says He's Kimmel.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 9.—In the United States District Court to-morrow John Boone Swinney will be called as a witness in the Kimmel insurance case, to tell that he saw George A. Kimmel murdered in an Oregon forest on Aug. 14, 1898, and that he killed Kimmel's slayer. He says it was a hunt for treasure that led the Arkansas City banker to Oregon.

Swinney arrived in St. Louis on the first day of the trial and has been in court every day.

The man who calls himself Kimmel was in court early to-day and wore a long black coat and overcoat, striped trousers, and white vest, and had a new derby hat. Outside the courtroom he said:

"I'm going to hear what they have to say about me. And I'm anxious to get on the stand myself and tell everything. Everybody is thinking that I'm the impostor of impostors. But I will prove my identity to the satisfaction of every one.

"The reason my mother and sister will not acknowledge me," he went on, "is the influence of my uncle Charles Johnson. I know why he is against me.

"I am here at my own expense," said Kimmel. "I have no interest in the New York Life Insurance Company's case and the company is not paying my board. What I want is to prove that I am Kimmel. I will do that."

It was 3 o'clock when the claimant again entered the courtroom. He was cordially greeted by the insurance attorneys and took his seat at the counsel table.

Attorney Bacon, addressing the court, said that the man who claimed to be Kimmel was now in court. "As Dr. Wiener is now on the stand," said Mr. Bacon, "and as he has qualified as an optometrist, I would ask the court to grant permission to cease the examination and have the doctor, together with Dr. Campbell, who is also here, make an examination of the plaintiff's eyes."

Mr. O'Bryan, one of counsel for the defense, interposed a vigorous objection.

Mr. Bacon said he had other witnesses for whom he asked the privilege of examining the claimant for the purpose of identifying him.

Judge Amidon said the courtroom was not the place for this physical examination and suggested that a time and place be fixed where the examination could be made by the medical men.

Mr. O'Bryan said any time next week would be satisfactory, and the court set the examination for Monday.

Here Are 3,600 Extra Pairs of Men's 50c. Silk Plaited Socks at 25c.
NOT ONE PAIR REMAINS from our last sale of these Socks, which seem fair evidence of their good value. These are probably the last we shall be able to secure of this lot at the price.
The variety represents thirty-two different color combinations of the most effective kinds, and all are finished with an exceedingly fine luster, which gives them the appearance of a pure silk Hose.
Half Hose, which have sold regularly all over the country at a half dollar a pair, now here for........25c
Main Floor, Elm Place.

Winter Clearances in Men's Suits and Overcoats
EVERY WINTER SUIT AND OVERCOAT in our entire stock that may be designated as "fancy"—that is not either plain black or plain blue—is marked down from the former price.
The price reductions are radical, too, for it is a part of our policy to close out the stocks of a season in that season, so that we may start each season with entirely fresh supplies.
Men know that these Suits and Overcoats are not extreme styles and that they will be just as desirable another winter as they are now. The advantages of present selection, therefore, are obvious.
$15 to $30 Suits
Now $9, $12.50, $14.50, $16.50.
$15 to $30 Overcoats
Now $9, $12.50, $15, $20.
In addition to the special offerings for adult men we have also a fine lot of Young Men's $10 to $15 Suits, $7.75
Smart fancy cheviots, worsteds and cassimeres, made up in the distinctive and well tailored fashion which has won the approval of a large number of young men in this community.
Sizes from 30 to 35 chest measurement, suitable for youths of 16 to 20 years, and for some slight and small men. Main Floor, Elm Place.

Men's 50c. Egyptian Cotton Underwear for 29c.
WHILE THIS IS CONSIDERED a spring weight Underwear, it is a weight which a large number of men wear the year round. It is a part of our first spring importation, and because we have contracted for thousands of these garments, to last through the entire season, we are able to sell them now at 29c. instead of the usual 50c.
They are of fine combed Egyptian cotton balbriggan. Shirts are made with short sleeves and Drawers have French strap backs.
75c. and $1 Underwear at 59c. Natural gray medium weight merino Shirts and Drawers, subject to slight mill hurts.
$1 Underwear at 69c. Spring needle ribbed fine cotton Shirts and Drawers, subject to slight mill hurts.
$1 and $1.50 Underwear at 69c. Natural gray winter weight Merino Shirts and Drawers.
$1.75 Underwear at 98c. Fine ribbed combed Egyptian cotton Combination Suits, in sizes 36 to 44. Main Floor, Elm Place.

Women's 12½c. Handkerchiefs, 9c.
THIS IS A LOT of pretty embroidered Handkerchiefs which we have decided to discontinue. Owing to the increasing number of new designs, it is necessary to dispose of those that are not so new. So this reduction.
They are of fine Shamrock lawn, all with neat hems and embroidered initials, which are set in fancy embroidered wreaths.
We have sold thousands of these Handkerchiefs at 12½c. each, and this remaining lot should go very promptly at 9c. each.
Main Floor. None sent C. O. D.

Women's 50c. Silk Stockings, 29c.
WEEK-END OFFERS of Silk Hosiery at Loeser's are notably fine. The list we print for today is no exception in offering Silk Hosiery of the finer class, and GUARANTEED TO WEAR PERFECTLY, at prices wonderfully low.
Black full fashioned pure thread silk boot Stockings with mercerized tops and soles and spliced heels and toes, 29c. a pair.
$1 SILK STOCKINGS AT 59c.
Black pure thread silk with mercerized tops and soles, spliced heels and toes.
$1.50 AND $2.00 STOCKINGS AT $1.10.
Black pure thread silk with double silk tops and mercerized tops and soles.
35c. AND 50c. STOCKINGS AT 25c.
Black, white and tan lisle, silk lisle and cotton; spliced heels and toes.
Main Floor.

Women's $1 Pique Gloves at 69c.
AN ADDITIONAL PURCHASE of some eleven hundred and sixty-four pairs similar to those which went so rapidly last week.
In quality of materials, good styles and perfect workmanship they are regular dollar values, and there is an excellent assortment of tans, champagne and white in the lot.
One clasp, pique sewn, and 69c. a pair. Main Floor.

(Excepting Evening Clothes; See Items Below)

WHEN we tell you that this sale embraces our entire present season stock of Men's Clothing, it is hardly necessary to add that the styles of materials are strictly "comme il faut" according to the standards of the well-dressed New Yorker. Naturally a store like this could never afford to jeopardize its reputation as a house of distinctive fashions by carrying anything in stock that had any marks of the commonplace about it—nor even the "ordinarily good" clothing of which there is too much these days. ☞ Second Floor.

What an Event It Is When Such Distinctive Clothing as Kuppenheimer's Is Sold at Half Price!

CALLS STEEL TRUST A MAKER OF SLAVES

Brandeis Declares Its Pension and Profit-Sharing Plans Rob Workmen of Liberty.

LONG HOURS FOR LITTLE PAY

Men Unable to Strike for Their Rights—Other Corporations Also Use These Enslaving Methods.

For nearly two hours last night Louis D. Brandeis, speaking on "Big Business and Industrial Liberty" before an audience that crowded the auditorium and galleries of the Ethical Culture Society's Meeting House, Central Park West and Sixty-fourth Street, attacked the United States Steel Corporation as the greatest of industrial despots overriding ruthlessly the liberties of its employes, and subjecting them to abject slavery in impossible conditions on wages lower than the minimum subsistence wage. He charged the Steel Corporation with using as means to accomplish this industrial despotism even its systems of ostensible welfare work among its employes, and declared that under the philanthropic aliases of "pension" and "profit-sharing" systems it grinds out the lives and liberties of its workmen. After his address Mr. Brandeis asked for questions from the floor, and at one point seemed to have become for a brief space the centre of a very spirited heckling.

Mr. Brandeis, who was introduced by Dr. John L. Elliott, Chairman of the meeting, declared at the outset that he had little sympathy with the assertion that big business is more efficient than competitive business in turning out cheaper and better products, but added that though facts disproved even this the question of immensely greater importance was what the trusts bring to our social life. He quoted the statement of Judge Gary of the Steel Trust that the treatment accorded by the Steel Trust to its employes compared favorably with that accorded by any industry to its employes in the present or any other period of the world's history.

"The Steel Trust," he said, "owing to its immense profits, should be in a better position than any other business to make good the boast of Judge Gary. In ten years it has reaped above a very generous return on its actual capital, $650,000,000. Two-thirds of that still remains as an accumulation held by the corporation for its employes; the other third was distributed in dividends on common stock, originally representing water."

He then cited the report of the United States Commissioner of Labor that fully one-fourth of the employes in the steel industry work seven days in the week and twelve hours a day; another fourth twelve hours a day for six days a week. Twenty years ago, he said, the workers in the steel industry might have enjoyed high wages, but to-day the number of skilled workmen has been reduced and the wages of skilled workmen likewise. Two-thirds of the steel workers are unskilled.

"The Associated Charities of Pittsburgh," he went on, "recently determined by actual investigation what it costs for a family consisting of husband, wife, and three children not to live, but barely to subsist. If the common laborers in the steel industry were to work 12 hours a day for 365 days a year they would be unable to earn even that minimum amount; they would fall just $1.50 short of that bare subsistance wage. Of course, it is physically impossible for any man to work 12 hours a day for 365 days. Moreover, there are only two holidays in the steel industry—Christmas and the Fourth of July—and in the shriveling heat of blast furnaces even those holidays are denied. Think of that situation side by side with the enormous profits taken from the American people to be distributed among stockholders of the Steel Trust.

"It is a life so inhuman as to make our former negro slavery infinitely preferable, for the master owned the slave, and tried to keep his property in working order for his own interest. The Steel Trust, on the other hand, looks on its slaves as something to be worked out and thrown aside. The result is physical and moral degeneracy—work, work, work, without recreation or any possibility of relief save that which dissipation brings. The men coming out of these steel mills move on payday straight to the barroom. Think what such men transmit as a physical and moral heritage to their children, and think of our American citizenship for men who live under such conditions.

"There is only one explanation. This great corporation, which exemplifies the power of combination, and in connection with which combination has been justified, has made it its first business to prevent combination among its employes when they sought to procure decent working conditions and living conditions. It stamped out, through its immense powers of endurance, one strike after another. It developed a secret service, a system of espionage among its workmen, singling out individuals who favor unionism and any one 'fomenting dissatisfaction with existing conditions,' as it was called, was quietly discharged. The trust is buttressed on one hand by the powers of the railroads and on the other by the great financial interests; against it stands the poor miserable individual workingman.

"It has instanced as one of its benefits to its employes its pension system, but this is only another system by which it deprives the worker of his just due. Nothing is so everpresent in the worker's mind as the fear of old age and his elimination from business thereby. Under the pension system every one who remains with the corporation may look forward to getting a pension, but he has no right to it. It is absolutely in the discretion of the Directors whether or not he shall get it or if it shall be withdrawn even after it has been granted. Anything that may in their opinion indicate that the worker is not 'loyal' or working for the interests of the corporation, as they interpret them, will result in loss of pension.

"Here you have a corporation that has made it its cardinal principle of action that its employes must be absolutely subject to its will. It is treason for an employe to participate with other employes for combination. In this corporation, and in other corporations, there is growing up under the guise of welfare work and efforts for more humane conditions for labor a system which robs the laborer of that little liberty he should have. It is a condition which explains with peculiar force the term ironmaster."

The profit-sharing system, too, Mr. Brandeis said, in that it is extended only to the Superintendents and Assistant Superintendents, but not to the workmen, is simply a goad to drive the Superintendents to speed up the already overworked laborers. Equally hollow, he said, is the benefit alleged to lie in the trust's policy of allowing its employes to subscribe for shares of stock and get $25 on each share, provided they have remained in the corporation's employ five years and been found loyal and deserving; under that system, they also receive their pro rata of the shares of stock which other employes subscribed for, but on which they could not keep up payments. In 1903, he said, 26,000 employes so subscribed for stock; but in 1908 only a few more than 5,000 were left—all the rest had been obliged to let their subscriptions lapse, the survivors thus reaping the shares of their fallen brothers.

Mr. Brandeis declared that while the Steel Trust was the most conspicuous, the same despotic policy is common to other great corporations.

"Must not this mean that the American who is brought up with the idea of political liberty must surrender what every citizen deems far more important, his industrial liberty? Can this contradiction—our grand political liberty and this industrial slavery—long co-exist? Either political liberty will be extinguished or industrial liberty must be restored.

"The real cause that is disturbing business to-day is not the uncertainty as to the interpretation of 'reasonable' or 'unreasonable' restraint of trade; it is this social unrest of our people in this struggle with which none in our history save the revolution and the civil war can be compared."

After his address Mr. Brandeis, by his own request, was assailed with questions. One man wanted to know if the Steel Corporation controls any of the leading newspapers. Mr. Brandeis couldn't tell him. Another asked if combination among laborers couldn't produce the same dangers as combination of the Steel Trust. Mr. Brandeis said it could, if the labor union grew so strong as to be able to ignore the wishes of employers, but added that most unions up to now have been fighting for existence and seem in no danger of growing so strong. As a means of putting an end to such methods as he had described, he said, he would end the Steel Trust. Moreover, he said, the American people must be educated into understanding that trades unions, despite all the abuses to which they have been and will long be subject, are absolutely essential to industrial liberty so long as the present industrial system exists.

One man jumped to his feet to resent Mr. Brandeis's constant reference to Judge Gary in connection with the Steel Trust.

"Why not name the man behind the situation?" he cried. "Gary is only the President of the board, he is only a clerk!"

"We all know who the real man is!" shouted another in the gallery.

"J. P. Morgan!" yelled another. He was hissed and silence restored.

Other questions were sent up to Mr. Brandeis until he announced that he had a volume of questions still unanswered. They wanted him to go on, but the Chairman called time.

AS SHE FOUND STEEL MILLS.

Homes Squalid and Workers Underpaid, Miss Byington Testifies.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The Stanley Steel Committee had its first woman witness to-day in the person of Miss Margaret Byington, a social investigator of Pittsburgh, author of the book, "Homestead," whose testimony drew a sordid picture of life among the steel operatives at the Homestead plant. She told of the pale faces of Slavic children playing among garbage cans in congested courts, parents living in tiny, filthy, unsanitary rooms, in a valley between two bluffs, where smoke and acid fumes hung in a haze.

She declared that on the basis of an investigation made by her three years ago it was impossible to maintain a normal standard of living on less than $15 a week in Homestead and less than two-thirds of the employes at that time were day laborers at $10.50 a week. A man making $12 a week would pay $1.88 rent for two small, unsanitary rooms and $4.16 for food. Three or four persons slept in a single room, but Miss Byington told the investigators she had seen four double beds in a room measuring 12 by 14 feet, so crowded "that one had to crawl over the beds to get from one side of the room to the other."

Single men, she said, could manage to get sleeping bunks at $3 a month and bare necessities of life for $11.

Chairman Stanley assured Attorney Reed for the Steel Corporation that he believed the company treated its laborers as liberally as any other similar employing concern and perhaps better than some. He said he regarded the conditions at the Colorado Iron and Steel Company's plant at Pueblo as the worst of all.

"We have nothing to do with that," said Mr. Reed.

Remains Quietly in Room, Sees a Few Privileged Friends, and Gets Overwhelming Mail.

Charles W. Morse, the financier released from prison under commutation of sentence, who arrived here Thursday evening from the Federal Prison in Atlanta, Ga., spent his first day in New York yesterday with his family in their apartment at 127 West Fifty-eighth Street, resting from the fatigue of his twenty-six-hour journey.

In the course of the day many friends called at the house to see him, but only a few were admitted to his presence. Mrs. Morse, however, received them all in her sitting room. She said last night that her husband was far too ill to see many visitors. Among the few who saw him was former Supreme Court Justice Augustus Van Wyck. It was said that he did not discuss business with his host.

Besides the visitors a steady stream of telegrams and messages of good wishes poured in on the former banker, and members of his family were kept busy all day answering inquiries over the telephone from anxious friends. Mrs. Morse said she supposed as many as 500 inquiries about her husband had been made by friends.

The family of Mr. Morse and his physician declare that at present he is thinking only of getting well. Dr. A. L. Fowler, who accompanied him from Atlanta, said yesterday that his patient was still an extremely sick man, and repeated that Mr. Morse was suffering from an incurable disease of the kidneys.

Must Remain in the House.

"Mr. Morse," he said, "may live for some time if careful. How long I cannot say. He rested well after his journey, which fatigued him greatly. He is not well enough to go out of the house, and in this weather I would not advise his going driving, for fear he might take cold. He is able to sit up for about five hours at a time, and then he feels fatigued.

"The condition of my patient shows improvement, but he can never be a well man, considering the disease from which he suffers. The newspapers in speaking of his possible restoration to health seem to have lost sight of this fact. There has been no attempt to disguise his true condition, and he is really a very sick man. When he is better he will probably be taken to Germany for the baths, but until he is better a date cannot be set for the journey."

To refute charges that Mr. Morse was not so ill in prison as he was reported to have been a statement was given out at the Morse apartment in the afternoon to the effect that in the middle of last month, while in the Atlanta penitentiary, Mr. Morse was seized with one of his heart attacks, and that for a few minutes the physicians attending him were unable to find a pulse beat, which led them to think Mr. Morse might be dead. He was unconscious at the time. Strychnine was administered, and the patient was revived. Dr. Baker, the Government physician in charge of the medical department of the prison, and Drs. Birmingham, Fontleroy, and Russell were reported to have attended him.

Dr. Fowler visited his patient twice yesterday, in the morning and late in the afternoon.

In talking with reporters Mr. Morse's son Harry took occasion to deny some of the rumors about his father.

"There is no truth," he said, "in the stories that my father is going to engage in business and revenge himself upon his enemies. He is far too ill at this time to think of business. In his present state of health he could not engage in business if he wanted to, and to attempt such a thing would further weaken him.

"He is thinking only now of getting well, and it is the desire of my mother to do what she can to help him get better, and to make him comfortable. The doctor has prescribed rest and quiet. My father will need the best of care and attention. We realize that he can probably never be a well man again. He has improved quite a little within the last few weeks, and when he is able it is my mother's intention to take him to Bad Nauheim, Germany, for the baths. We feel encouraged that he stood the long journey here so well."

It was reported yesterday that Mr. Morse would sail to-day on the White Star liner Oceanic for Cherbourg on his way to Bad Nauheim, but no confirmation could be obtained from the agents at 9 Broadway. In reply to inquiries made it was stated that no reservations had been made so far as the agents were aware for Mr. Morse. The North German Lloyd agents said he was not booked to sail on the Prinzess Irene to-day for Naples or on the Kronprinz Wilhelm leaving for Bremen on Tuesday. The statement made by Harry Morse that no sailing date has been arranged for his father further disposed of these downtown rumors.

Large Mail for Mr. Morse.

Mr. Morse got up shortly after 8 o'clock yesterday morning, and ate a light breakfast. He then received his mail. It was so large that it was impossible for him to go through it all, but the many expressions of good wishes from his friends afforded him much gratification. He was permitted, it was reported, to glance through the newspapers, but expressed no opinion of the published accounts of his arrival in the city. He exercised a little by walking about his apartments and rested at intervals.

Mrs. Morse was kept so busy answering inquiries of friends and attending to the details of housekeeping that on her first day in the city she did not have time to go out of doors. Besides, she preferred to remain at the side of her husband to guard him from any petty annoyances that might arise. She gave out a statement late in the afternoon saying that her husband could not be interviewed, and that the family for the present had nothing to say.

The question of Mr. Morse's civic status since he was pardoned by President Taft, was discussed yesterday with interest. There were those who felt confident that Mr. Morse had lost his citizenship. The status of Mr. Morse was made clear by United States District Attorney Wise.

Mr. Wise said that until Jan. 1, 1910, Congress had never made a clear distinction between a misdemeanor and a felony. Then the offense of misapplying the funds of a National bank was made a felony. As Mr. Morse was tried and convicted before misapplying the funds of a National bank was made a felony he was guilty only of a misdemeanor and could not under the law be deprived of his civic rights. The maximum sentence for a misdemeanor is ten years.

Mr. Morse, Mr. Wise said, was convicted on fifty-two counts, and under the law could have been sentenced to 520 years in prison instead of fifteen. Mr. Morse's status at present is exactly what it was before he was convicted. Possessed of the full right of citizenship he can vote and serve on both petty and grand juries. Many leading lawyers in the city agreed with Mr. Wise on this point.

Chauffeur Whose Car Killed Brooklyn Woman Is Arraigned.

Charles Burton, a chauffeur, who operated the automobile which ran down Mrs. Margaret Hawthorne of 406 State Street, Brooklyn, at Flatbush Avenue and Livingston Street Wednesday night, was arraigned yesterday in the Butler Street Court. Mrs. Hawthorne was taken to her home by Burton and the occupants of the machine right after the accident. Later in the night her family sent for a physician, as her condition was critical. She died early Thursday morning.

In court Burton said he did not know the woman was seriously injured. He denied that he was operating the machine fast. He said that when the accident happened he was on his way to Manhattan with three men who sent a call to the garage at 182 South Portland Avenue a few minutes earlier. He did not know them. Magistrate Voorhies held the accused in $1,000 bail for examination on Tuesday. He was charged with reckless driving.

HAVE YOU BEEN WATCHING THE MODERN ATTEMPT TO EDUCATE EVERYBODY?

READ THIS NEW BOOK

All the Children of All the People

By WILLIAM HAWLEY SMITH
Author of "The Evolution of Dodd"

in which the well-known lecturer shows that this task of educating everybody has proved to be far more difficult than the early advocates of universal education would have dreamed possible. Discussions of this problem fill every educational meeting from the local Teachers' Institute to the annual gathering of the National Education Association. The problem is woefully unsettled, not to say fermenting, and Mr. Smith sets forth strikingly the commonsense of it all, as it effects your children and "all the children of all the people." Cloth, 12mo. $1.50 net.

The Book of Knowledge
The Children's Encyclopedia
Superbly Illustrated with 9,000 Pictures; 350 Magnificent Colored Plates
The Greatest Gift to Growing Minds

Good company after dinner

More interesting than sewing

Absorbed in the pictures

His sports forgotten

The book of her dreams

What he had always wanted

You cannot force a child to learn, but you can win him to learn! That is the wonderful thing that THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE has done for all the children, little and big. The simple, clear and winning language, the thousands of beautiful and singularly interesting pictures, and the arrangement of the entire work so that the child's attention never wearies, but is drawn on from subject to subject and from picture to picture makes learning the real delight that it ought to be. There is no member of the family from the youngest reader to the oldest who does not fall under the spell of these magic volumes.

Simplest Scheme of Universal Knowledge

The long road to learning is not a straight road, it is a beautiful circle, in which all the great departments of knowledge are closely related. The perception of this important truth has made possible the simplest scheme of knowledge ever devised. In the 15 Great Departments is contained what it is essential and important that every child or adult should know. The method of presentation and remarkable drawing power of this new work will at once be recognized upon examination.

Fascinating Familiar Things

It is often the most familiar things about which we are the most ignorant, and it is just these familiar things about which the children ask the thousand and one questions which we cannot answer. THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE contains hundreds of descriptive story-pictures which show and tell all about such subjects as "How a Light House Is Built," "How a Stick of Chocolate Is Made," "How an Oyster Makes a Pearl," "The Story of a Fur Coat," "The Tale of a Knife and Fork," "Where the World's Bread and Butter Comes From," "The Making of Iron and Steel," and other important industrial processes. Fairy tales of Science more facinating than fiction interest and stimulate growing minds.

"The New Democracy"

AN ESSAY ON CERTAIN POLITICAL AND ECONOMIC TENDENCIES IN THE UNITED STATES

By Walter E. Weyl, Ph.D.

You are facing a Presidential campaign more tensely interesting than any since that of 1860. Into the exciting situation many forces enter:—the presence of the "plutocracy" in politics, the growing solidarity of the labor vote, the woman suffrage movement, and a social consciousness awake and groping for "a new democracy." If you are interested at all in the political and social situation, you will find that this book clarifies much which is confusing, expresses your feeling and outlines for you a constructive program of democracy—political, social and industrial—more definite and forcible than any you have ever seen in print.

The Last Unpublished Works of

LEO TOLSTOY

These novels, stories and plays were written during Tolstoy's ripe old age, but not published owing to the author's conviction that he ought to devote his whole energy to the promulgation of social, political and moral ideas. Called into being by the instincts, the habits and the genius of this master story-teller, they represent in the highest degree the work of the author of "War and Peace," "Anna Karenina," and "Resurrection." Matchless stories they are, founded some of them upon great crises of his life, others upon his own intimate family experiences, and told as only this giant among the novelists of the last century could tell them.

EARTH

By MURIEL HINE, author of "Half in Earnest." "Somehow these English novelists manage to get a great deal of human nature into their books and are not afraid to picture life as it is. Muriel Hine has written a society novel that rings true, and while the author's philosophy, which is also Browning's, may not meet with the approval of some, this does not materially affect the interest of the story—which concerns the love affair of a pure, young girl, who is something of an idealist—and who awakes to the realities of life after a somewhat unpleasant experience." —San Francisco Bulletin. Decorated cloth, $1.25 net. A New Book by Pierre de Coulevain author of

The Heart of Life

Another intimate record of a woman's experience. Maia Laserre, too early married and too hastily divorced, finds during her leisurely repenting of both acts a more youthful and vital form of the same happy philosophy which rescued the older heroine of ON THE BRANCH.

THE HEART OF LIFE like Pierre de Coulevain's earlier story is full of fresh and delightful comments on people and places and emotions. Baden, the Swiss, modern marriage, Lausanne, vivisection, Paris, our real attitude toward death—every page has its highly personal view of life and conduct, expressed with the freshness and sincerity which made the previous story so widely successful. $1.25 Net.

ANNOUNCE THE PUBLICATION
TODAY OF MR. RICHARD PRYCE'S DELIGHTFUL ENGLISH NOVEL

CHRISTOPHER

In "Christopher" Mr. Richard Pryce has portrayed one character which should survive in the reader's memory and affections long after the average novel has been forgotten. Christopher's mother is the ideal type of English motherhood. To quote from the London Book Lover: "Mr. Pryce stands out as one of the happiest modern interpreters of female character, be she duchess or dressmaker, factory hand or farmer's daughter, music-hall artist or maiden lady, each is delineated with the same sure and delicate touch."

There is so little sympathy written into books dealing with modern English life, that Mr. Richard Pryce's "Christopher" should stand out as one of the great exceptions of the year. It is only in De Morgan that we find a mellow, sympathetic point of view shed upon mankind in general. The majority of modern English writers are concerned mainly in pointing out the great sex problems of the age, and allowing the reader to form his own conclusions. Mr. Pryce adopts a saner method, although his book deals with the eternal question.

THE LONDON ATHENAEUM says of him: "He is realistic in the true sense, and has steeped himself in the subtle charm of London, which he reproduces rather than describes."

A LINCOLN BIRTHDAY BOOK

DOROTHY DAY

A Novel of the Outgoing Generation

By Wm. Dudley Foulke

The story of the life of a Quaker—it is full of delightful reminiscences of home life among the Friends.

The story takes one back to the early forties, when New York was yet young—and ends with a wonderful and understandable description, filled with intimate personal details, of the great Battle of Gettysburg. It is a character study and gives one a clear idea of how American citizens of the better sort are evolved.

And it is first and last a delightful love story.

TENNIS CHAMPION MUST PLAY THROUGH

Can No Longer Wait Until National Tournament Is Over to Defend His Title.

The National Lawn Tennis Association held its annual meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday afternoon and evening and made some important rules to govern the championship matches under their jurisdiction. Principal among the changes is that the old style of championship play by which a champion is permitted to await the finish of the National championship series and then engage in a special series with the winner shall be abolished. In the future the champion will be compelled to play through the entire tournament and take the same chances that all other contestants take.

Several attempts to bring about such a change have been made during the past few years, but enough opposition always developed to keep the old rule on the books. The resolution was introduced at yesterday's meeting by Lyle E. Mahan of the West Side Tennis Club, and his argument was based principally on the unfairness of the rule, which handicapped all contestants except the champion himself.

Robert D. Wrenn, prominent in tennis circles for years and the new President of the association, followed Mr. Mahan with a plea for such a change, and said that he had interviewed William A. Larned, the champion, previous to the latter's departure for Australia to engage in the international matches for the Davis Cup, and Larned had said at the time that he was perfectly satisfied with such a ruling if it was the pleasure of the association. This announcement brought into the fold practically all the opponents of the proposed change, and the motion, when put to a vote, was carried by an overwhelming majority. The count showed forty delegates favorable and only four opposed.

The Eastern preliminary double championships were awarded to the Longwood Cricket Club of Boston, Mass. The Southern preliminary singles and doubles went to Atlanta (Ga.) A. C. The Pittsburgh Athletic Association was the successful bidder for the clay court championships of the United States. The National ladies' singles and doubles and the National mixed singles and doubles, championships, were awarded to the Philadelphia Cricket Club. The Merion Cricket Club was successful in obtaining three events—the Pennsylvania State championship, the women's championship of Pennsylvania and the Eastern States, and the intercollegiate championship. The Seventh Regiment in this city again was awarded the indoor championships, including the National men's singles and doubles and the National women's singles and doubles. This award is for 1913, as the indoor championships for 1912 start at the armory to-day. The Western preliminary doubles and the Western doubles championships went to the Osawanna Club, Chicago, Ill.

An attempt to have the preliminary matches in the National tournament curtailed to best two in three instead of best three in five, as at present, met with failure. It was thought that by cutting the preliminaries up to the final sixteen men, it would not extend the tournament so long. The suggestion was downed on the principle that the preliminaries gave the players the best opportunity to show what was in them.

After a considerable discussion the old order of the National ranking, which gave individual standing to competitors in the National events, was declared obsolete, and a new ranking was introduced. Individuals in the first ten will be rated numerically, and after that the competitors will be ranked in nine classes, according to their standing. Opinion was almost evenly divided on this score, and the contention was only won by the narrow margin of 71 to 66 votes.

A committee of five will be appointed by the President, (two of the committee, at least, being lawyers,) who will draw up a new Constitution and present it at the next meeting, in 1913.

Practically all of the 250 clubs affiliated with the Association were represented in person or by proxy at yesterday's meeting, which was the thirty-first annual gathering. One important change was made in the list of officers, due to the refusal of James Dwight of Boston to be a candidate for re-election to the office of President, which he had held for several years. Vice President Robert D. Wrenn was elected as Mr. Dwight's successor, and Henry W. Slocum of the Crescent A. C. succeeds Mr. Wrenn as Vice President. A. L. Hoskins of Philadelphia was re-elected Secretary and Richard Stevens of Hoboken was re-elected Treasurer. Dr. Sumner Hardy of San Francisco, S. F. Holterhoss of Cincinnati, and L. D. Scott of Atlanta were added to the Executive Committee.

Contrary to expectations there was considerable opposition shown to the selection of Newport for the National championships in singles and doubles. Roland Hazard, a delegate from the Point Judith Country Club of Naragansett Pier, put in a strong plea for his club for the singles championship. He announced that the club was prepared to offer special prizes and would expect no help from the National Association in conducting the tournament. He also spoke of better facilities and the democracy of the place as strong reasons for a change. On the vote, however, Newport won, 30 to 15. Undaunted by this defeat, Mr. Hazard immediately put in another plea for the Point Judith Club as the place to hold the championship doubles. He again lost, but by a closer vote, 25 to 18. The Crescent A. C. was also a bidder for the championship doubles.

The association took a much needed step to curtail the list of entries in the National Tournament by electing a committee which must pass on all prospective entrants and eliminate all who appear to have no chance. In past years many persons have entered the National championships who had little merit as tennis players, their reason for entering being simply for the sake of being identified as contenders for the championships. This has resulted in the tournament being long drawn out, while these entrants were being eliminated. The committee which is to consider all applications in the future will accept the entries of all who may have any chance for the title, but those of no merit will not be allowed to compete.

GOLD RACQUET PLAY STARTS.

Douglas, Thorne, and Hewitt Winners on Tuxedo Courts.

Special to The New York Times.

TUXEDO PARK, N. Y., Feb. 9.—Three matches were decided to-day for the gold racquet championship on the courts of the Tuxedo Tennis and Racquet Club. J. Gordon Douglas of the New York Tennis and Racquet Club, holder of last year's title, defeated Charles B. Pike of the University Club, Chicago, three games to one, fifty-six aces to forty-five aces, and George A. Thorne of the Chicago University Club easily defeated William P. Burden of the New York Tennis and Racquet Club three straight games, and Erskine Hewitt of Tuxedo won from William B. Dinsmore, Tuxedo, by default.

GARDNER A CHAMPION.

New York Tennis Player Wins First Honors of the Orient at Manila.

MANILA, Feb. 9.—Carlton R. Gardner of New York and San Francisco won today the lawn tennis championship of the Orient. He defeated Edwin S. Gee, who was the winner last year and the holder of the title, by 3 to 1. The contest took place during the annual carnival, at which the championships of all branches of sport were decided.

The amateur baseball team of the Waseda University of Japan has been on a visit here, and played games with American and Filipino teams, by both of which it was defeated.

Canadians Seek Racquet Title.

MONTREAL, Feb. 9.—F. F. Rolland, Alex Molson, and Edward Greenshields, Jr., members of the Montreal Racquet Club, have entered for the racquet championship series of the United States at Boston on Feb. 21. A delegation of local players will accompany them to Boston.

DURLAND SILVER JUBILEE.

200 Men and Women Participate in Equestrian Exhibitions at Academy.

Durland's Academy was the scene last night of a silver jubilee which took the form of a testimonial to William Durland to commemorate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the school. The function developed into what was probably the most brilliant affair of an equestrian nature ever witnessed in this city, being attended by a host of devotees of the horse. Every available point of vantage was occupied long before the time of the grand entree in which 200 horsemen and horsewomen took part.

The amphitheatre was appropriately decorated in National colors, with silver bunting as the ground work of the rest of the trimmings. Dropping from the centre of the roof was a large painting of Mr. Durland, the work of Artist Haas.

In the opening number, which was made particularly effective by the lighting effects, the leader of the riding host was Mr. Durland, mounted on a silver gray horse. Among the divisions noticed in what was designated as a grand entree of the periods in which figured riders and horses of a quarter of a century ago and subsequent years were the New York Riding Club, Manhattan Tandem Club, Lawyers' Club, Durland Polo Club, and Durland's 1912.

The jubilee address was made by the Hon. Morgan J. O'Brien, who eulogized the founder of the academy, finishing with the presentation of two immense bronze horses and a diamond token.

Lieut. David McCarthy of the Police traffic squad, acting as drill master of a squad of thirty of the mounted police, had his men go through evolutions which were the very essence of fine horsemanship and everything akin to it. The two battalions moved as one man in almost every formation, and completed their exhibition with a warlike charge which proved thrilling.

Following this was the number devoted to three saddle-horse classes in which twenty-one animals, ranging from 14.2 to 16 hands, were shown for a trio of silver cups, judged by George C. Clausen, first and only President of the New York Driving Club; Mrs. John Gerken, and Francis Ware.

Earl, a thirty-three-year high school horse, which was ridden in the opening music ride at Durland's in 1887 by Miss Nellie Andrews, now Mrs. Francis Kissam Brown, who still owns the horse, was put through some evolutions in which he displayed all of the fire which marked his efforts of a quarter of a century ago.

Subsequent numbers were the polo match, made up of the 1887 team—M. S. Erlanger, T. A. Cawthra, C. Sherman, and Sidney Erlanger—and the 1912 four—Edward Bloomberg, O. D. Schmidt, Robert Fennell, and W. W. Hurwitz—and the charge of the crusaders—the Durland Masters.

Miss Louise and Robert Cottrell Powell did an equestrian turn which kept the spectators on the tiptoe of expectancy, being followed by artistic manoeuvres by the Manhattan Tandem Riding Club, numbering twenty. The grand finale of the exhibitions called out Mrs. John Gerken, Mrs. Marshall Clapp, Mrs. Albert De Cernea, and Richard E. Sause.

There were seven nominations for the half-mile steeplechase over six brush and timble hurdles and two water jumps, a purse of $100 being hung up for the event. Albert De Cernea was the director of the testimonial, and it was conceded that he had done his work to the satisfaction of all concerned.

BECKER BEATEN AT GOLF.

Dr. Gardner and C. N. Phillips to Play in Pinehurst Final.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., Feb. 9.—To-day's semi-final round in the eighth annual St. Valentine's golf tournament advanced the victors to the final stage rather easily. In the first division, Dr. C. H. Gardner of the Agawam Hunt Club, and C. N. Phillips of the Greenwich Country Club survive, while in the consolation the honor lies between C. M. Fink of Dunwoodie and F. K. Robeson of Oak Hill.

In other divisions metropolitan golfers have better representation, Paul Starrett of Baltusrol and W. E. Truesdell of Huntington remaining in the second division, and P. S. MacLaughlin of Wygagyl in the consolation. In the third division, H. C. Kayser of Scarsdale remain, and in the consolation F. A. Moore of Apawamis. In the fourth division are S. O. Miller of Englewood and W. A. Engleman of Nassau, and in the sixth Dr. Robert Strowbridge of Montclair, and in the seventh division, H. H. Buckley of St. Andrews. Summary of first division:

Semi-Final—Dr. C. H. Gardner, Agawam, beat C. L. Becker, Woodland, 5 and 4; C. N. Phillips, Greenwich Country, beat Robert Hunter, Wee Burn, 7 and 6.

Consolation, Semi-Final—Charles M. Fink, Dunwoodie, beat T. B. Boyd, Bellerieve, 5 and 3; Fillemore K. Robeson, Oak Hill, beat Joseph Curtiss, Rochester Country, 3 and 2.

TRAVIS TO PLAY HYDE.

New York Golfers Reach Final Match in Lake Worth Tournament.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 9.—Walter J. Travis of Garden City will play James R. Hyde of the South Shore Field Club to-morrow for the championship in the Lake Worth golf tournament. While the odds are with Travis, there is enough of a chance of Hyde winning to give some zest to the contest. Walter Fairbanks, the Denver golfer, was defeated by Travis in a close match to-day. As Hyde had an easy victory over H. P. Scott, Jr., of Wilmington, the match between Travis and Fairbanks claimed all the interest in the semi-finals, and there was a big gallery. Both went out in 32. Fairbanks came in in 39 and Travis in 38. In the second division there were two nineteen-hole contests.

Miss Hyde Lowers Her Golf Record.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 9.—Miss Lillian B. Hyle, the Florida and metropolitan golf champion, had an exceptional round of golf this afternoon when she lowered the woman's record for the course from 79 to 76. The record of 79 was established by Miss Hyde a week ago, when she broke a former record of 82 that had stood for a year. Miss Hyde's card to-day:

Out ..........4 4 5 2 4 4 3 5—35
In ..........3 5 6 3 4 6 6 3 5—41—76

Semi-Finals in Bellair Golf.

BELLAIR, Fla., Feb. 9.—J. D. Philbrick of New York was eliminated in the semi-final of the local golf tournament here to-day, losing to C. R. Balch of Cincinnati by 3 up and 1 to play. I. S. Holden was the other winner in the semi-final round.

Commerce Recreation Centre Game.

One of the most interesting athletic meets ever held in the Commerce Evening Recreation Centre was decided on the twenty-four-lap track in its gymnasium last night. The feature was the one-mile race, which was won by W. Grover in 4:51 1-5, and only about two feet separated Grover from W. Beck, his nearest competitor at the finish line. The lead alternated between these runners throughout. When the runners entered the stretch on the last lap they were neck and neck. Near the finish line Grover put on an extra burst of speed and just nosed out his opponent.

Duemig won the half-mile run in easy fashion in the good time of 2:09 1-5. The Walton Athletic Club carried away the point honors, gathering 89 points. The summaries:

220-Yard Dash, Midgets—Won by M. Callahan; T. Minella, second; J. Onid, third. Time—0:32 4-5.

220-Yard Dash, Junior—Won by O. Adamson; G. Gingerich, second; T. Early, third. Time—0:30 2-5.

440-Yard Run, Seniors—Won by W. Beck; J. Haaf, second; J. Ruth, third. Time—1:02 2-5.

880-Yard Run, Seniors—Won by E. Duemig; B. Smallwood, second; R. Ryan, third. Time—2:09 2-5.

One-Mile Run, Seniors—Won by W. Grover; W. Beck, second; D. Sayers, third. Time—4:51 1-5.

600-Yard Relay, Midgets—Won by Walton Athletic Club first team, composed of T. Minella, M. Callahan, J. Anderson, and S. Schrank; Walton second team, composed of M. Hamilton, F. Rohne, J. Hoblitz, and W. Rohne, second. Time—1:29.

900-Yard Relay, Seniors—Won by Commerce Evening Recreation Centre team, composed of D. Sayers, E. Duemig, J. Haaf, and W. Beck; Walton Athletic Club team, composed of J. Ruth, E. Linser, G. Gingerich, and O. Adamson, second. Time—2:01 3-5.

Phillies Release Three Players.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 9.—The Philadelphia National League Baseball Club to-day released Outfielder Beck to Buffalo, Pitcher Stanley to Rochester, and Pitcher Hall to Tacoma. Arrangements were made whereby any of these players can be recalled whenever the Philadelphia Club needs their services.

Pennsy Fencers Beat Harvard.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 9.—The University of Pennsylvania fencing team defeated the Harvard University team here to-night, 5 bouts to 4.

COLLINS PLAYS FINE CLASS A BILLIARDS

Chicagoan Defeats Dr. Douglas in National Tournament with Average of 13 23-29.

Percy Collins of Chicago, playing the best billiards that has thus far been seen in the National amateur Class A tournament, defeated Dr. W. G. Douglas in a runaway match at the Hanover Club in Brooklyn last night by a score of 400 to 153. Collins ran out with an unfinished string of 10 in the twenty-ninth inning, establishing a new average of 13 23-29. Douglas was hopelessly outclassed from the first, and Collins made the match the shortest of the tournament. It was "ladies' night" at the tournament, and many women witnessed the match.

Collins picks his shots quickly and with good judgment. Rarely during the game last night did he hesitate in choosing, and he played so fast that at times he appeared to be careless. He drives the balls hard, and does not nurse a game, but he plays position with much accuracy and uses the cushions constantly. He was best on difficult carroms, and his misses were on two-cushion shots and naturals.

Collins made a run of 56 in the twenty-third inning, and was stopped on a simple two-cushion venture. When about to run out in the twenty-eighth inning he slipped up on a natural carrom when within 10 points of running out. Douglas was far off his game, and only once did he get the balls well under his control. In the twenty-fourth inning he made a high run of 47, but failed to show anything like his best form at any other stage of the match.

Dr. Douglas opened with a solitary carrom, and Collins's start was 2. The Chicago youth displayed high class balkline in the sixth inning, nicking off 44 carroms with ease and promptness. Collins has a tendency to drive with too much vigor in sending the object ball out of balk, but these shots were well timed last night, and he collected them neatly.

Collins passed the first century in the seventh inning with a string of 26. Douglas was unable to get started, and in the first ten innings he made only a dozen carroms. He could not catch his stroke and made flagrant misses.

Collins's playing was smooth and effective, and he followed the balls from panel to panel around the table, with excellent control. A run of 28 in the sixteenth inning carried him past the 200 mark, while Douglas was hopelessly in the rear with 55.

Collins played his best billiards in the twenty-third inning, when a skillfully played string of 56 raised his total to 330. He missed on an easy two-cushion carrom. In the next inning, Collins's run was cut short when he missed a three-cushion shot by a large margin. Collins gave every evidence of reaching his goal in the twenty-eighth inning when he needed 39 points. After neatly gathering a collection of 29, he missed on a ridiculously easy natural. In the twenty-ninth inning, Collins finished with a run of 10. The score by innings:

Percy Collins—2 3 10 16 0 44 26 10 0 1 20 39 0 0 12 28 12 27 2 2 5 15 56 14 5 4 8 29 10—400.
Average, 13 23-29; high runs, 56, 44, 39.
Dr. W. G. Douglas—1 5 0 4 1 0 0 0 0 1 0 20 5 3 15 0 14 3 0 0 8 6 2 47 0 2 0 2 14—153.
Referee—Tom Gallagher.

J. Ferdinand Poggenburg of the Liederkranz Club won the afternoon game from the international champion, Charles F. Conklin of Chicago, by a score of 400 to 332 in thirty-seven innings. Poggenburg's average was 10 30-37 and his best run was 63.

Poggenburg won the bank and run off 34 for a starter. The champion came back with 29. In the fifth inning Poggenburg's stroke was working perfectly, and he totaled 63 before he slipped up on a difficult bank. Another run of 53, in the thirteenth inning, raised Poggenburg's total to 220, while Conklin had reached 170. A collection of 50 in the twenty-fifth inning boosted him to the 344 mark. Throughout the game Conklin was off his stroke and had to contend with many bad situations when the spheres lined up. Poggenburg was especially effective, his nursing game and position play being excellent. The score by innings:

J. Ferdinand Poggenburg—34 0 18 8 63 10 8 0 0 18 0 13 53 0 0 0 0 26 31 0 2 2 9 4 50 2 1 3 0 1 32 3 2 2 7 2 1—400.
Average, 10 30-37; high runs, 63, 53, 50.
Charles F. Conklin—29 18 9 0 15 31 0 4 4 13 21 20 0 25 28 0 1 0 8 0 0 0 4 2 5 9 12 0 1 20 5 16 22 8 1 0—332.
Referee—Tom Gallagher.

TO TRAVEL ON FINLAND.

Red Star Liner Will Be Used by American Athletes Going to Stockholm.

The illness of Col. Robert M. Thompson, President of the American Olympic Committee, and James E. Sullivan, one of the moving spirits in connection with the proposed American invasion of Sweden on the occasion of the coming world's championship sports, has retarded the work of the committee to no small degree, but it became known yesterday that the committee had practically determined upon the Red Star Line steamer Finland as the vessel on which the American team will make the trip.

It is known that the Finland has all the appurtenances for the proper training of athletes, having a gymnasium and swimming pool. She was looked over last Sunday by Albert H. Curtis, acting for Col. Thompson, Matthew P. Halpin, manager of the team, and Paul Pilgrim, a double winner at the Athens games in 1906.

An eighth of a mile track can be laid out on the deck, and arrangements will be consummated for jumping and weight-throwing pits which will help to forward the work of the athletes. It is expected that the vessel will sail June 15 and arrive at Stockholm ten days later, which will allow ten days' practice there before the first day's games.

Dozen Home Run Bats for Baker.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 9.—A dozen of those "home-run bats" is the order John Franklin Baker of the Philadelphia Athletics sent to a Louisville turner. Accompanying the order was the bat with which he made his two famous four-base drives that won the championship for the Athletics over the New York Giants last Fall. It was made in Louisville of Kentucky mountain wood that contains luck, or something equally potent, and he wants the twelve new ones made just like it. Also, he wants the sacred relic of his prowess returned to him at his farm, Trappe, Md.

"Duke" Farrell to Assist Kling.

BOSTON, Feb. 9.—Charles, better known as "Duke," Farrell, the old-time catcher recently with the New York Americans, has been signed by the Boston National Baseball Club as a scout. He will go South with the team on its Spring training trip and help Manager Kling with the young pitchers and catchers.

Princeton Alumni Hosts at Dinner.

The Principals of the high schools and the private schools of the city were entertained at dinner last night in the Princeton Club, as guests of a number of the alumni of Princeton University. One of the objects of the affair, which was informal in character, was to discuss details of the athletic meet which will be open to the pupils of high schools and private schools. This will be held, it was decided, in the Seventh Regiment Armory on March 23. There were about forty present, among whom were P. L. Handy and Wilson Farrand, Trustees of the university; Charles Scribner, President, and H. G. Murray, Secretary of the Graduate Council; C. Ward Crampton, physical director of the Public Schools Athletic League; Registrar Jones of the university, Prof. Raycroft, Director of the Physical Department; Trainer Fitzpatrick, and Profs. McClennahan, Spaeth, Collins, and Hoskins.

Boston Billiardist Defeated.

BOSTON, Feb. 9.—Boston was defeated by St. Louis for the second time in the February series of the National Billiard League three-cushion contest to-night, 50 to 45. Farrar, who wielded the cue for the visitors, had an average of .54, and a high run of 5, and Mason, the home player, an average of .49, and a high run of 8.

WRESTLER BREAKS ANKLE.

A. L. Siff of Columbia Injured in Bout with Pennsylvania Grappler.

Pennsylvania defeated Columbia at wrestling last night by the score of 10 to 6, according to the new way they have of scoring in the Intercollegiate Wrestling League, or by four bouts to three as it is scored otherwise. The dual contest was held in the Columbia gymnasium before a few spectators, but there was plenty of excitement, for every bout was hard fought and five were awarded on decisions of the referee.

In the bout in the 158-pound class, after wrestling for eight minutes, F. D. Bisbee threw A. L. Siff of Columbia to the mat with such force that it broke an ankle of the local wrestler. Although the men had not been contesting for the full nine minutes, the bout was awarded to the Quaker on work done previous to the accident.

Hogg of Pennsylvania and Sinclair of Columbia in the heavyweight class fought each other tooth and nail, and their bout was the fastest of the evening. Although far outweighed, the Columbia man put up a game fight and did not yield until after seven minutes fifty seconds, when Hogg caught him with a half-Nelson and slowly rolled him over. F. E. Dickson of Pennsylvania won the only other bout of the evening in which a fall was scored. He threw J. A. Mullen of Columbia by a head and chancery hold in less than four minutes of wrestling. Mullen was on the defensive throughout and had no chance to get on top of his opponent. The summaries:

115-Pound Class.—M. Hyman, Columbia, defeated J. A. Franklin, Pennsylvania, by decision. Time—9:00.

125-Pound Class.—F. E. Dickson, Pennsylvania, threw J. A. Mullen, Columbia, by head-and-chancery hold. Time—3:25.

135-Pound Class.—A. W. Carruthers, Columbia, defeated G. Smith, Pennsylvania, on decision. Time—9:00.

145-Pound Class.—W. S. Boyce, Columbia, defeated M. M. Worth, Pennsylvania, by decision. Time—9:00.

158-Pound Class.—F. D. Bisbee, Pennsylvania, defeated A. L. Siff, Columbia, by decision. Time—8:00.

175-Pound Class.—J. W. Seckler, Pennsylvania, defeated J. Catacouzinous, Columbia, by decision. Time—9:00.

Heavyweight Class.—A. Hogg, Pennsylvania, threw C. G. Sinclair, Columbia, with a half-Nelson. Time—7:50.

YALE SWIMMERS BEST.

Columbia Defeated in Home Pool by Point Score of 42 to 11.

Yale carried off the honors last night in a dual swimming meet held with the Columbia University team in the latter's tank by a score of 42 to 11.

Capt. Culman of the Columbia team made the best showing on the part of the home team, capturing first place in the fifty-yard swim in a stirring race against Carl Schmitt of Yale, and losing first place in the 100-yard event to P. Roberts by less than six inches.

A second victory was gained by the New Haven swimmers in the water polo game with the Columbia team. In this the fast, aggressive team work of the visiting aggregation was too much for the scattered playing exhibited by Columbia.

In the open interscholastic fifty-yard race, held in connection with the college meet, A. Selby of Lawrenceville School swam to a close victory, with L. Smith of the same school second, and F. Frerichs of Commercial High School, Brooklyn, third. The summaries:

200-Yard Relay.—Won by Yale with J. C. Stoddart, P. Roberts, D. T. Meyers, and C. Schmitt; Columbia, second, with H. S. Osgood, L. Dinklespiel, J. S. Pulleyn, and F. Culman. Time—2:15 2-5.

Fancy Diving.—Won by J. C. Stoddart, Yale, with 121 points; R. S. Wilson, Yale, second, with 120¼ points; T. M. Barrett, Columbia, third, with 108½ points.

150-Yard Swim.—Won by F. Culman, Columbia; C. Schmitt, Yale, second; D. S. Meyers, Yale, third. Time—0:27 2-5.

220-Yard Swim.—Won by H. S. Palmer, Yale; J. C. Stoddart, Yale, second; W. M. Campbell, Columbia, second. Time—2:53 2-5.

Plunge for Distance.—Won by T. Smith, Yale, with a plunge of 64 feet 6 inches; E. L. Barbour, Yale, second, with a plunge of 64 feet; H. Kottek, Columbia, third, with a plunge of 57 feet.

100-Yard Swim.—Won by P. Roberts, Yale; F. Culman, Columbia, second; C. Schmitt, Yale, third. Time—1:02 3-5.

50-Yard Interscholastic Swim.—Won by A. Selby, Lawrenceville; L. Smith, Lawrenceville, second; S. Frerichs, Jr., Commercial High School, third. Time—0:28 4-5.

Physicians Revive Beaten Boxer.

PARIS, Feb. 9.—Bob Scanlon, an American negro pugilist, knocked out "Blink" McCloskey, a white American fighter, in the eighth round of a boxing bout here to-night. The decisive punch was a straight right to the point of the jaw, which landed with such force that McCloskey was unconscious for half an hour. The usual restorative methods were used by McCloskey's handlers, but proved ineffective, and it was with difficulty that three physicians who were hurriedly summoned revived the defeated man.

Mantell Outpoints Marlow.

Eddie Kelly of Harlem, who was matched with Battling Mantell for the star bout at the New Polo Athletic Association last night sent a physician's certificate to the club managers to the effect that he was unable to box because of a severe cold. Young Marlow of Philadelphia was substituted for Kelly, and he went the full ten rounds against Mantell, but was defeated very decisively. In the first three rounds Marlow made a strong impression and was able to hold Mantell even, but from the third round to the finish Mantell was always the master. He used an effective left jab and landed on Marlow at will. The latter, however, was always strong and took all the punishment without going down. In the six-round semi-final Young Reddy and Johnny Quinlan boxed to a draw.

Corbett in New Athletic Club.

James J. Corbett is at the head of an athletic club which has been formed in Bayside. The former champion pugilist declined the Presidency, as his theatrical work keeps him out of town too much, and Herman H. Kimmel was elected to the place. Corbett was elected a Vice President, the others being James F. McKenna, John J. Strettle, and Henry Medicus, treasurer of the Brooklyn National League Baseball Club.

Lost, Twelve Members of A. C. A.

One of the peculiar features of the fight now being waged in the Automobile Club of America over the revision of the by-laws and constitution is that the addresses of twelve members of the club cannot be ascertained. Although the members are carried on the club roll, directories and biographical reference books fail to locate them, and as a result the members have not received the statements of the committee opposed to the proposed changes. Experts engaged by the opposition have failed to secure any trace of the whereabouts of the twelve members.

Minnesota Retains Coach Grant.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 9.—Richard Grant, a graduate of Harvard University and track coach of the Universitly of Minnesota, has been re-engaged for the coming year by the athletic Board of Control.

AMATEUR MAY RUN AUTO RACE MEETS

Contest Board May Abolish Paid Chairmanship Owing to Lack of Sanction Requests.

Unless the applications for sanctions for racing dates show a marked increase before the end of the month it is probable that the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association and the Manufacturers' Contest Association will not appoint a successor to Samuel M. Butler, but keep the position of Chairman of the Contest Board, as it is at present a non-paying one. The majority of the members of the Executive Committee of the A. A. A. would gladly wash their hands of contests, and turn the entire racing game over to the Manufacturers' Contest Association, but the lack of applications for racing sanctions may result in abolishing the salaried position of Chairman.

Up to the present not more than eight applications for sanctions have been granted by the Contest Board. Several promoters have announced their intention of holding meets, but no efforts have been made to obtain actual dates. This, together with the fact that several makers have withdrawn their racing teams makes the outlook for automobile racing far from promising. The cost of the maintenance of the Contest Board last year was more than $3,000 in excess of the receipts from sanctions and other sources. The present indications point to a falling off of fully 50 per cent. of last year's contests. This means a heavy loss of income and really obviates the necessity of a big salaried man to attend to the details of racing. If during the next few weeks several of the prominent makers decide to return to racing and a material increase appears in the number of applications for sanctions, the appointment of a salaried Chairman will be seriously considered.

From present indications, however, the board will be made up of amateurs, with a new Chairman. William Schimpf, the present head of the Contest Board, is anxious to be relieved of his duties, as they occupy too much of his time. It is probable that his request will be acceded to and another member of the Executive Committee on Contest Board of the A. A. A. appointed to succeed him. Several names have been considered for the position, but nothing will be done until the end of the month, when the applications for sanctions will determine the action of the Contest Board.

Dallas is in earnest in its efforts to secure the Vanderbilt Cup race, but not unless it is guaranteed a sufficient number of entries to make it a paying institution. There is very little prospect of Savannah again entering the field, which would leave Dallas the only bidder. President Baker of the Dallas Automobile Club has been in communication with the Contest Board of the A. A. A., but nothing definite is likely to develop until the Texans can be assured of a big entry list. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., is now on the ocean, and is expected to reach New York about next Wednesday, when the question of the race will probably be taken up.

The National Reliability Tour is already gaining favor with the motorists. It is expected that New Orleans will indicate to the Contest Board within two weeks whether it wants to entertain the contestants in this year's tour. If New Orleans does not want it, the finish of the run will be made at Galveston, Houston, Dallas, or some other extreme Southern city. Although nothing definite has been done regarding the starting point, it is understood that it will be from Cleveland, Detroit, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, or Columbus. Seattle has been eliminated from consideration owing to the poor roads in some of the Northwestern territory.

RUTT AND STOL WIN.

Former Victors in American Six-Day Bicycle Race First at Berlin.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, Feb. 9.—The last day of the Berlin cycle race was conspicuous by the absence of the Crown Prince, the withdrawal of Walthour and Connies, and by the failure of the Macfarland combination to qualify in the final. Connies's interference with Rotnick caused him to be fined 200 marks, which he agreed to pay, but Rutt and Stol refused to ride unless Walthour and Connies were penalized one lap.

The judges fined them one lap, and Walthour and Connies refused to ride.

In the final spurt Rutt, Root, Folger, and Drobach took the places in the order named. Rutt set his own pace and won by six inches. Folger did not seem to extend himself. Every seat was sold at advanced prices, and the spectators were very enthusiastic over the German team's victory.

The riders looked fresh at the finish and showed no signs of fatigue. The distance covered was 2,435 1-3 miles. The loafing of the last day reduced the lead on the record to 10 kilos.

Wrestlers Ready for Bout.

Giovanni Raicevich, the Italian champion, and Stanislaus Zbyszko, the Polish wrestler, are ready for their coming wrestling match, which takes place Monday night at Madison Square Garden. All details concerning the event have been completed, with the exception of the referee. Indications point to Charlie White, Tom Jenkins, or George Bothner as the likely third man, assisted by an Italian interpreter.

Yale Club Chess Team Wins.

Reinforced by several intercollegiate players, members of the Harvard Club and the Yale Club of this city, played their fifth annual team chess series at the clubhouse of the former, yesterday, with the result that the Yale Club won by the score of 4½ to 3½. The summary:

| Boards. | HARVARD CLUB. |  | YALE CLUB. |  |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 1 | A. E. Goddard | 1 | S. B. Chittenden | 0 |
| 2 | C. E. Nixdorff | 0 | J. H. Watson | 1 |
| 3 | W. M. P. Mitchell | ½ | A. S. Jameson | ½ |
| 4 | E. F. Weld | 0 | E. Domick | 1 |
| 5 | R. S. Litchfield | 1 | W. Carmalt | 0 |
| 6 | M. Hyman | 0 | E. B. Burgess | 1 |
| 7 | R. Pope | 0 | J. S. Wood | 1 |
| 8 | B. Merrill | 1 | S. Thaw | 0 |
|  | Total | 3½ | Total | 4½ |

The Harvard Club had white on the odd numbered boards. Referee—H. Helms. The return match will be played at the Yale Club three weeks hence.

Yale and Columbia in Hockey.

Yale and Columbia will engage in the final game of the Intercollegiate Hockey League championship at St. Nicholas Rink to-night. Their meeting has been looked forward to with keen interest by the followers of both teams, and if Columbia wins Yale will be relegated to third place in the race for the 'Varsity championship honors.

AFTER BALLOON CUP.

Aero Club Sends Challenge to Germany for a Race.

America will be represented in the race for the international balloon championship, which will be held at Stuttgart, Germany. The challenge was sent yesterday by the Aero Club of America, to the Deutscher Luftschiffer Verband, which is the National Aeronautic Club of Germany. An elimination contest will be held at Kansas City to determine the three balloons to represent the United States.

The contest will be held in Germany this year owing to the fact that the Championship Cup was won last year by Lieut. Hans Gericke, when six balloons, representing three countries started. Only countries affiliated with the International Aeronautic Federation are eligible. As England and France have indicated they will enter two or three balloons each, there will probably be four countries represented.

Syracuse Wins Rough Basket Ball.

In a basket ball game, marred by unnecessary roughness and delayed by continual wrangling between players and officials, the Syracuse University quintet triumphed over the New York University five at the latter's gymnasium last night, 33 to 21. Five minutes before the second half ended the teams were tied at 21 points, and then Syracuse made a runaway finish, principally through long and spectacular shots from the centre of the floor.

The rough play began to crop out almost with the opening whistle, and there was no let-up until Ryan, left forward of the Syracuse team, was ordered from the floor for "slugging." This drastic action by the officials had a tendency to curb the inclinations of the athletes somewhat, but a feeling of bitterness was manifest at times during the remainder of the game. The move proved a lucky one for Syracuse, as it paved the way for the entrance of Blum into the game, and his work was a distinct feature. At the time of the change Syracuse was far behind, and Blum was the most consistent worker in putting his team to the front, scoring four field goals and five from the foul line during his short service. He also led in the passing. The line-up:

| Syracuse. | Position. | N. Y. University. |
| Regan, Blum | Left forward | J. McLaughlin |
| Motman | Right forward | Brennan |
| Castle | Centre | C. McLaughlin |
| Riehl | Left guard | Joseph |
| Davy | Right guard | Moore |

Field goals—Blum, 4; Motman, 4; Riehl, 3; Ryan, 1; Davy, 1; J. McLaughlin, 4; C. McLaughlin, 3; Joseph, 1; Moore, 1. Foul goals—Blum, 5; Motman, 2; Joseph, 2; Moore, 1. Referee—Frank J. Quigg, New York A. C. Umpire—"Sandy" Shields, Twenty-third Street Y. M. C. A. Time of halves—Twenty minutes.

Bucknell Defeats Manhattan.

The Bucknell University basket ball team defeated the Manhattan College quintet on the latter's court last night by the score of 27 to 25. The game was slow and rough at times. In the first half the Bucknell University team outclassed the local lads and ended the period with the score in their favor by 22 to 12. The Manhattan played better in the last half, but could not overcome the large lead gained by the Bucknell five in the preceding half. The line-up:

| Manhattan. | Position. | Bucknell. |
|---|---|---|
| Suarez | Right forward | Bartholomew |
| Young, Ryan | Left forward | Follmer |
| Leonard | Centre | Fisher |
| Loesch | Left guard | Schaffner |

School Basket Ball Results.

The Syms School basket ball team defeated the Columbia Grammar School quintet yesterday afternoon in Dr. Savage's Gymnasium, in West Fifty-ninth Street, by the score of 20 to 6.

The Collegiate School basket ball team suffered its second defeat of the season yesterday, losing to the Adelphi Academy team in a closely contested game on Collegiate court, 15 to 13. Collegiate School was without the services of Snedeker, the star guard, and this necessitated a shift in the line-up.

Ethical Culture School yesterday defeated Sachs School in basket ball by the score of 32 to 5 in the Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory.

Australian Cricketers Lead.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—A cable from Melbourne, Australia, says that the Australian cricket team was leading in the first day's play of the fourth test match with England by 191 to 52.

Raicevich Wins at Utica.

UTICA, N. Y., Feb. 9.—Giovanni Raicevich, claiming the Italian wrestling championship, made short work of Oslof Grodofoski, the Polish Giant, here to-night. The Pole acted on the defensive all the way, and was thrown twice, in eleven and six minutes, respectively.

Ever hazy about what to wear in the afternoon?

VISCOUNT HALDANE'S "CONVERSATIONS."

It would be interesting to know what Viscount HALDANE talked about in his conversation with the German Chancellor and the Minister of Foreign Affairs. Almost as interesting is the list of subjects which the British press suggests for the distinguished gentlemen's discussion.

Curiously, the recent condemnation of a British lawyer as a spy, which a few days ago excited such heated comment, receives the least attention in this connection. That is apparently regarded as an accident which, in time, will be made right. The most important matter conjectured is the expansion of German control in Africa, especially the purchase and division of the Portuguese possessions by Germany and Great Britain. This would practically mean an understanding between the two countries on the one point about which there has been the most bitterness in the past. The English press is singularly amiable on this topic. The Spectator, which has been very earnest—and a little narrow—in its criticism of German policy and still more of German temper and manners, sees no objection to this new plan, if Portugal's assent can be secured. It even goes further and suggests, notwithstanding the treaty relations of Portugal and Great Britain, that the time may come when Portuguese misgovernment of her possessions may compel their forcible rescue. It is not disturbed by the vision of formidable new naval stations for Germany, and contemplates placidly a German African empire stretching "across the continent from sea to sea."

If this be the spirit in which the British War Secretary chatted with the German statesmen, they must have had a pleasant visit, full of peaceful augury. Perhaps they took up also questions in which the United States is directly interested, common action in China and the arbitration treaties to which England and France have agreed with the United States and which Germany is ready to negotiate. Certainly these topics would not have disturbed the friendly atmosphere. In China Germany has practically the same sort of interests as the United States, and though both Germany and England have a closer relation there than we, they are apparently sincerely devoted to the same general policy. If the three Governments should be found working together for like aims by like methods, it would obviously strengthen the tendency toward friendly feeling between the two European Powers. The fact that these two, as well as France, the close friend of one and the former enemy of the other, were bound to the United States in treaties of general arbitration would greatly reinforce that tendency.

Nor is it impossible that the three statesmen took a glance at the situation in Europe as affected by the Tripoli adventure of Italy. Both in Germany and in England the disturbance of the Triple Alliance by this adventure has been freely discussed. It has been recognized as practically paralyzing the effective aid that Italy could give to the other parties to the alliance. It would not be surprising if Germany and Austria should seek in other directions the security the alliance was intended to give. Austria is reported to be making tentative approaches to Russia, and the exchange of courtesies between members of the two imperial families has been arranged for. It would be but natural if Germany should show a like disposition toward Great Britain.

It is, of course, quite probable that none of these subjects were talked of at the luncheon in the British Embassy at Berlin, but it is interesting to note that the British press is ready to believe that they all may have been, and the discussion of any one of them would make for peace.

PERE HYACINTHE.

As he was an eloquent preacher, who charmed great crowds at the Madeleine in his younger days, a writer of knowledge, force, and sincerity, the defection of CHARLES LOYSON from the Church of Rome in the early seventies of the last century created much excited comment, not only in France, but throughout the world. He had been at odds with Rome several times over matters of discipline before he finally defied the Pope and the law of the Church by marrying, in London, in 1872, an American lady, Mrs. MERIMAN. Notwithstanding his excommunication he continued to preach and to write on religious subjects during the remainder of his life, and retained his following. He called his church the Eglise Catholique Gallicane, and, of course, was regarded by three successive Popes as an exile in outer darkness. But he was a good man, deserving of respect, though if LUTHER had done nothing more in defiance of Church rule than marry a wife and rear a family he would not have lived so long in history.

Père HYACINTHE he was called, affectionately, to the end. He was well remembered in this country, where his lectures drew great crowds, especially in Boston. He died yesterday in his eighty-fifth year.

COMPARISONS.

Don Quixote was accustomed to find in the practices of knight errantry the example and justification of all his doings. If he went forth from an inn without paying his bill, he would say that the knights errant never paid for their keep at the castles where they put up. If he kept sentinel's watch by the tavern horsetrough, he could point to the custom of the knights in the days of chivalry, who used to keep night-long vigil lest some giant or marauder should appear, intent upon doing bodily harm to the inmates of the house. So Mr. THEODORE ROOSEVELT has fallen into the habit of appealing to the example of LINCOLN as a justification of his performances. If they complain of his attacks upon the courts, he replies that LINCOLN severely criticised the Supreme Court of the United States. When he is reproached for his silence about the third term, he quotes long passages from the letters of LINCOLN, in which he gives reasons for his reticence upon public or personal matters. The parallel is pretty close. Don Quixote is knight errantry in burlesque. There are many who feel that Mr. ROOSEVELT stands about in that relation to Mr. LINCOLN. What unnumbered woes might have fallen upon this land if he had been President during that time of trial, instead of the wise and patient man who was then at the helm!

Since we are in the way of literary comparisons, here is another. When the coxcomb BULWER-LYTTON, in his "New Timon," took a fling at Mr. TENNYSON, TENNYSON replied in those well-remembered verses "The New Timon and the Poets," published in Punch in 1846. He pictured forth the old Timon "with his noble heart," and then turned to the new:

> But you, Sir, you are hard to please;
> You never look but half content;
> Nor like a gentleman at ease,
> With moral breadth of temperament.
>
> And what with spites and what with fears,
> You cannot let a body be:
> It's always ringing in your ears,
> "They call this man as good as me."
>
> * * * * * * * *
>
> A Timon you! Nay, nay, for shame:
> It looks too arrogant a jest—
> The fierce old man—to take his name,
> You bandbox. Off, and let him rest.

CUBA.

The news from Cuba is reassuring. If President GOMEZ really means to heed the demands of the majority of his party, and not to force his candidacy for a second term, there is no reason to doubt that the young republic will get through its second Presidential campaign without serious trouble. The National Convention of the Liberal Party will be held next week, and if the compromise ticket selected at the recent caucus of Liberal Senators and Deputies is placed in nomination, there is little doubt that it will win at the polls. There will be a Conservative ticket, of course, but it will have little or no chance of success.

The principal trouble President GOMEZ now has to face is the French claim for damages to property during the revolution. France, or some Frenchmen, have acted too hastily in this matter, by the refusal to list Cuban securities on the Paris Bourse, and there has been some foolish talk in the French Chamber, which has led to a movement for a discriminatory duty on French goods in Cuba. But as the President has now decided to pay all the well-attested French claims, and leave the others to arbitration, perhaps by President TAFT, the trouble with France may turn out to be a tempest in a teapot. The Veterans are silent; and the political disturbances, which seemed so menacing a few days ago, have been allayed. So that the possibility of another intervention by the United States has been removed, a fact upon which we may congratulate ourselves as well as the Cubans.

THE INDICTMENT OF GAMBLERS.

Do our Grand Juries labor under the impression that they are courts? We think the public will share Mayor GAYNOR's astonishment at the presentment of a Grand Jury which refused to indict notorious gamblers on the evidence of one witness and the captured gambling instruments. To Clerk CARROLL of the Court of General Sessions, who transmitted the presentment, the Mayor says:

> The evidence of one witness is enough. There is no law to the contrary. The evidence of one witness, with the additional evidence of the captured gambling implements themselves, is more than enough. Moreover, a Grand Jury needs only sufficient evidence to make out what is called a prima facie case to find an indictment. The law does not require that they have sufficient evidence to convict the defendant beyond a reasonable doubt.

That is sound logic and good law. Police Commissioner WALDO cannot enforce the law against gamblers if Grand Juries insist upon trying cases and pronouncing judgment instead of making indictments on proper evidence. Some of the courts, we regret to add, are to blame for the impression Grand Jurymen get as to what constitutes sufficient evidence in gambling cases. In his annual report Commissioner WALDO speaks of cases in which Judges have actually restored to gamblers their guilty instruments offered in evidence against them. The testimony of a single policeman should weigh in any case of this sort.

Washington Market is one hundred years old, and looks its age. A good way to celebrate its centenary would be to rebuild it, on its present site, or one more accessible, and transform it into one of the finest markets in the world, from an architectural and sanitary point of view, as it already is in the quantity and quality of the things to eat displayed on its stalls.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Romance Turns to Reality.

Though the late EDWIN HAWLEY seemed to be about the least romantic of men, and to be, as nearly as a human being could be, without other interests, and ambitions than those provided by the game of big business and that high finance which is usually decorated with quotation marks, there is now gathering about his name—and his fortune—a surprising number of stories of exactly the kind that abound in the romantic fiction which is supposed to have little relation with the realities of life.

He was, for instance, a man so methodical and foreseeing that he was sure not to die intestate. Yet he left no will. Death caught him unawares, as we are, or used to be, so often warned it is likely to catch us all, and from that one fact, or from that one fact combined with the other fact that he had accumulated an enormous fortune, it results that to a considerable number of people there has happened what happens so often in books and so rarely in life—wealth entirely unexpected has come to them through mere blind luck, through no effort or merit of their own.

What has been to innumerable thousands, when weary or discouraged, the escape from all their troubles that dreams, and dreams alone, supplied, is for these persons substantial, tangible. Some of them, too, the messages of relief reached when they were in almost the lowest of the prisons that poverty builds, and for at least one of the amazed heirs this reference to prisons is literally as well as metaphorically true.

What Mr. HAWLEY would think of all this, how he feels about it if he still has attention for terrestial affairs, nobody seems to care. He was not much given to sympathy while alive, and not much—apparently none—of it is given to him now. As for those to whom his money will go, perhaps they are the objects of some envy, but the whole course of events as regards them is so out of the ordinary that the envy cannot be very bitter, and the general emotion seems to be one of gladness that for once people have really gone to sleep poor and awakened rich—absurdly rich—so rich that for the rest of their lives they can live without work, do what they choose, and have what they want without spending the whole of their incomes. For, of course, to such as they—and to the vast majority of the earth's inhabitants—even a single million of dollars is so many dollars that there is no end to it.

A Suggestion for the Publishers.

In many of the appeals for contributions to the Dickens Fund, and in many of the letters on the subject which are sent to the newspaper offices, there is becoming audible a tone of reproach—a veiled accusation that the American public, which confesses heavy indebtedness to the great writer, is reluctant to pay in money any part of its obligation.

Yet that same public is proverbially responsive to claims upon its sympathy, and promptly and generously responsive, too, whenever needs are brought to its attention. Certainly it has given again and again from full hands for the relief of sufferers from all sorts of misfortunes, not less often abroad than at home.

The slowness and the smallness of the answer in this case is not easy to explain. Nowhere has been or is DICKENS more loved than in this country. In our young and more sensitive days he once humiliated and therefore angered us by telling unwelcome truths with something of exaggeration, but that emotion long ago lost what little bitterness it ever had, and certainly we now are quite ready to smile with the rest of the world at criticisms the essential justness of which we coolly admit. But the American part of the fund grows slowly.

Possibly the explanation lies in an instinctive feeling that all an author can with full right demand of his readers is that they shall buy his books if they want them and praise his books if they like them. Of praise DICKENS has had from us endless amounts, and as for his books, we have bought, and continue to buy, those literally by the million. Edition follows edition in endless sequence, some cheap, some expensive, but they all sell, and ever the cry is for more.

That these purchases never brought DICKENS much, and are bringing to his heirs nothing, is true, lamentable and reprehensible, but—and now we are getting to the point—the responsibility for that is only remotely with the American public, too remotely for them really to feel. The American publishers of DICKENS's works, however, are in a somewhat different position. They have made money out of him—lots and lots of it—and they continue to make money out of him. If they recognized that they owed him, besides gratitude, a part of their profits, and hastily filled up that dragging fund, what a graceful act it would be!

Naturally they could and would get it all back, and more, too, from the "ultimate consumer" of Dickens. That would be all right, and nobody would either feel or mind it.

A Husband Revolts for Cause.

A Philadelphia man who is suing his wife for divorce says that he didn't much mind that she and her mother attacked him with an axe as a part of their last Christmas celebration. What he does mind, however, and what he can't and won't stand, is that they insist on keeping nine cats.

The grievance is new, but there is reality in it, and, for all we know, the keeping of nine cats against a husband's protest is in the State of Pennsylvania an adequate cause for divorce.

It might well be in any State containing husbands unable, if they choose, to extrude cats from their houses as well as to protest against their presence therein. For one cat is as many as anybody really needs, and it is beyond reasonable question that when nine cats are kept in any one house where the keeping of cats is not a business followed with joy and from inclination, it is done out of malice and hatred.

But if that Philadelphia husband were not a rather poor creature, instead of suing for divorce, he would square accounts with his wife and mother-in-law by adding to the home menagerie nine dogs, carefully selecting them from the breeds particularly assimilative of cats. Almost any of the larger terriers would do. The result would be, first, sport, and second, peace.

No family can regard itself as really well supplied with dogs until it has at least nine of them. More are better, but nine can be called a "comfortable" number of dogs.

CHEAP FISH AND FUEL.

That is, the Producer Parts with Them Cheaply.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

While shooting on the Great South Bay recently I had occasion to talk with men who were catching flounders for the New York market. They told me that they sometimes obtained 4 cents a pound from the middleman and sometimes nothing, if they happened to send in large quantities at any time when the market was filled. They averaged about 2 cents a pound for their flounders. They had to risk property, in boats and nets, which suffer injury from storms—sometimes very serious injury; they have to be out at 3 o'clock in the morning in cold weather and in storms in order to get their 2 cents a pound for flounder.

I was at that time paying 18 cents a pound for flounder at an uptown Sixth Avenue fish market for home use. The market man explained the difference in price by saying that he had to send a wagon all the way downtown to get his fish. This was no doubt at a comfortable time of day, with no exposure, and little risk to his wagon, if his driver did not dispute the right of way with too many automobiles.

Firewood and lumber are very expensive in New York. I own a large forest less than thirty miles from the Grand Central Station, and have found it almost impossible to dispose of forest products. Dealers pay $5 a cord for hickory wood, delivered at their yards, when they are not overstocked, and I have not as yet found them ready to take any of my hickory wood; always overstocked. Mixed hardwoods cannot be sold, unless one devotes a great deal of time to finding opportunity to get cordwood into the market at $3 or $4 a cord.

Wishing to clear out an area of large chestnut trees on my property the services of expert foresters were obtained for making an estimate of the value, which was placed at about $11,000. After trying for three years to sell this wood for lumber, ties, telegraph poles, &c., it was finally sold for about $2,500.

I had some forty cords of mixed hardwood, cut and stacked in my woods, which could not be disposed of, and I finally offered to give one cord to every one who would leave an alternate cord at my barn. A few cords were disposed of in this way, and the rest has been allowed to remain and rot in the woods.

After disposing of the chestnut trunks previously referred to, I offered the tops, which measured about 200 cords of good wood, to any one who would cut and carry off the wood, and this is being done very slowly by one man to whom I gave the privilege, in addition, to cut a large number of oak, maple, birch, and other hardwood trees, that were crowding. I could not afford to cut them, and had to give them away—thirty miles from New York City.

Dickens as a Kindergartner.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Dickens was one of the earliest, if not the earliest of Englishmen to recognize the merit of the kindergarten, to realize the great influences for the good and happiness of mankind that are inherent in Froebel's educational principles. But apart from this, Dickens's works teem with pedagogical suggestions of value to all teachers.

In his exceedingly interesting volume, "Dickens as an Educator," James L. Hughes, Inspector of Schools, Toronto, Canada, treats at length of Dickens from this standpoint.

As a lover of Dickens and as ex-editor of The Kindergarten Magazine I would like to suggest that, inasmuch as one of the granddaughters of the great novelist is a kindergartner it would be peculiarly appropriate that kindergarten teachers, either as individuals or as societies, should contribute to the Dickens fund.

Wants More Battleships.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It does seem extraordinary after a Republican Congress has built up the United States Navy to a position of second in the navies of the world that the first Democratic House should crowd in and endeavor to destroy our prestige. The idea of "economy" is certainly misplaced. Twenty millions of dollars saved in the construction of these new ships is in what ratio to the ultimate loss should we be called on to fight with ships anywhere from ten to twenty-five years old?

Early Wireless Chess Game.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

An earlier chess game by wireless than either of those mentioned in your columns was played on the Atlantic in September, 1904, from some time toward evening of the 3d to about 4 o'clock in the morning of the 4th, between passengers on the S. S. Ryndam and on the Minneapolis. The game ended in a draw.

This game was mentioned in the papers a few days later, after the Ryndam landed in New York.

American Publishers of Dickens.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Has any one suggested the idea of making a list of the American publishers who have profited by the sale of uncopyrighted editions of Dickens with a view of suggesting the propriety of their subscribing liberally to the fund for the impoverished heirs? And would it not be interesting to look over the list of those who have already contributed to see whether any of these same people are represented?

President Taft's Renomination.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your statement of the confusion in Presidential candidates in this morning's issue is very good. But, do you emphasize sufficiently the candidacy of President Taft? He is entitled to a renomination from his party. He has done much better for the party than the party has done for itself. The party should approve him; whether he can be elected is a problem for the future.

Business Men for Taft.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It may interest you to know that among the Republicans that I come in contact with, who, of course, are almost entirely of the commercial and manufacturing class, the sentiment for the renomination of Taft is almost unanimous. They all admire Roosevelt immensely, but want a safe, sane, and conservative head of the Nation for both patriotic and business reasons.

DOUBTS DR. JACOBS'S COUNT.

Walter Laidlaw Questions His Figures on City's Jewish Population.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read with interest your excerpts from the articles of Dr. Joseph Jacobs, in The American Hebrew, concerning the number of Jews in New York.

In June, 1902, some months in advance of Dr. Jacobs's computation, in that year, of the number of Jews in the city, the Federation published the following distribution of the population of New York as in 1900:

| | |
|---|---|
| Roman Catholics | 1,266,561 |
| Protestants | 1,572,629 |
| Jews | 598,012 |
| Total | 3,437,202 |

This computation was based on seven years of house-to-house racial, religious, and social censuses of New York's population, in the course of which we had ascertained the ethical structure of over twenty of the political subdivisions of the city. In all of these political subdivisions we had computed the percentage of the various nationalities whose families reported themselves as Jewish, Catholic, or Protestant—a form of sociological inquiry which had not then, and has not even yet, been applied in extenso to any other American city.

Dr. Jacobs in 1902 put the number of Jews in New York at about 600,000, confirming the Federation's estimate.

I am unable to agree with Dr. Jacobs's estimate of the present number of Jews in our city. Since the year 1902 the Federation has continued its house-to-house religious and social censuses, covering as many as 120,000 families in the single year 1906. Looking over the percentages applied in 1902, in view of subsequent scientific study of our populations, I see no reason to lower them as applied to the Federal census nationality count of New York as at April 15, 1910. Some of them need raising rather than lowering.

It is profoundly to be regretted that a plea which was made by some of us for adding to the questionnaire of the thirteenth census, concerning nationality, an additional inquiry concerning race, was not successful. The thirteenth census has told us that the number of people born in Russia living in New York City in 1910 was 297,772 larger than the Russian-born population of the year 1900—an increase of over 160 per cent.—but it does not tell us how many of these Russian-born people are of the Slavic or of the Semitic race. In the absence of such information from the Government returns—and until the actual inquiry made into the mother tongue has revealed its results—the Federation's percentage figures, the result of scientific count of the mother's religion in hundreds of thousands of families in New York City, all taken since the year 1895, are certainly a better basis for estimating the Jews in New York than the birth rates and death rates of the Jews in the United States in 1890, which are the basis of the computation of Dr. Jacobs.

Applying to the nationalities in New York in 1910 even the same percentages as were applied in 1902, I estimate the religious structure of New York City, as at April 15, 1910, as follows: Roman Catholic, 1,665,750; Protestant, 1,840,281, and Jewish, 1,260,852.

By another method of computation I find a Jewish minimum, as at April 15, 1910, of 1,217,675, and a maximum of 1,300,303.

Of the Protestant total as above given, a probable minimum of 40,000 belong to Eastern Orthodox Churches, outside the Latin communion. For round number purposes, the religious make-up of New York, April 15, 1910, was not far from the following:

|---|---|
| Roman Catholic | 1,665,000 |
| Protestant | 1,800,000 |
| Jewish | 1,265,000 |
| All others | 36,883 |
| Total | 4,766,883 |

The detail, by nationalities, will appear when the Federal census has issued its bulletin on the population of New York by nationality and parentage.

A Policeman's Thoughts.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Mayor is too ready to entertain complaints made against policemen.

When criminals who (after being sentenced to prison) are brought down the river to testify against a policeman it is time for us to leave the thugs alone.

Some of the gangs who hang out on the street corners and hold up passing citizens for a dime to buy a can of beer will actually tell the man on post that if he so much as draws his night stick they will frame up a complaint against him and send it to Mayor Gaynor. The policeman who wants to keep out of trouble is afraid to take a chance with these gangs. Lawyers' fees are high, the policeman's salary is small, and some of us can't get a square deal at Headquarters.

In my precinct the Captain receives on an average nine complaints a day, some of them begging him to take some action against the disorderly gangs of young men and boys.

It's not so long ago that some Captains were instructing their patrolmen every day to make all the arrests possible, as they (the Captains) wanted the honor of having a large record of arrests, but of late the Captains are not encouraging their men to make arrests, so of course the most of us mind our own business and see nothing.

PATROLMAN.

Negroes in Orchestra Seats.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your recent editorial article on colored people in theatres misinforms on one point. The higher courts of New York, in deciding the case of Mr. Metcalfe, the dramatic critic, said:

> A theatrical manager, owner, or lessee of the theatre can exclude any one from the premises in the absence of any express statute controlling his action.

Now, in this new case, there is a specific statute which says that a person cannot be excluded from a theatre "on account of race or color," and this law has been upheld by the courts.

Moreover, if the statute is again upheld, I very much doubt if this interpretation will be antagonistic to the best public opinion of this city. I do not think that any decent man in New York objects to sitting in a theatre beside another decent man simply because that man has a darker skin; and if some do object, is it good public policy to let such persons have their way and make me suffer because of their whims?

TO SAVE WASHINGTON MARKET

Dealers Ready to Confer with City About Wiping Out the Deficit.

The Washington Market Dealers' Association, which was formed two years ago when the market was remodeled and lighted and the sidewalk stands taken inside, will hold its first annual beefsteak dinner on Wednesday next. Mayor Lew Shanks of Indianapolis will be the guest of honor. Plans will also be talked over at that time for the celebration in October of the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of the market.

Since the remodeling of the market every stall has been occupied, and yet the city has had to meet a deficit of about $8,000 each year. A committee of the association, headed by M. Micolini, is arranging for a conference with the Superintendent of Markets and Controller Prendergast, on the question of wiping out this deficit. Some of the dealers believe that the expense of cleaning, lighting, supervising, and collecting can be reduced by at least 25 per cent., but if this doesn't solve the problem the dealers are ready to talk over higher rents. The Bureau of Markets has a plan for rearranging the stalls and aisles, which, it says, would increase the rental value and make up the deficit.

When the announcement was made that the Fulton market must go because the city was losing heavily, the Washington Market dealers thought it was time for them to take some action. Their business had been good and all things pointed to a prosperous season. These are the officers chosen to guide the association: Carl A. Koelch, President; Edward Eldridge, Vice President; Arthur Kracke, Secretary; George I. McKelway, Treasurer; Philip Reid, Chairman of the Board of Directors.

The value of the market and land on the books of the city is put at $1,000,000, and in addition to the carrying charge of $40,000 there is the added expense of maintaining the place.

DR. FLEXNER TALKS ON GERMS

He Explains the Spread of Infectious Diseases and Their Prevention.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The third Hamilton Fund lecture of the Smithsonian Institution was delivered by Dr. Simon Flexner of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research in the auditorium of the United States National Museum last night.

Dr. Flexner discussed the part played by bacteria, protozoa, and submicroscopic parasites in causing infection and the occurrence on the surface of the body of many kinds of disease-producing germs. The manner in which they are excluded by skin and mucous membranes was discussed, as well as their ability to enter the body by these channels when they were imperfect. In this way a variety of diseases is produced, including diphtheria, meningitis, and probably infantile paralysis.

The germs that enter the body encounter a second and even more efficient set of defenses in the blood, with its devouring white corpuscles. When disease occurs, in spite of and because of the inadequacy in the defensive mechanisms, then the body, under the influence of the parasitic germs, sets about creating new defensive principles through the process of immunization.

It is immunization that vaccination produces, which is a protection to smallpox, he said; and it is through purposive immunization of animals that the curative serums are prepared that by injection bring about an artificial and premature cessation of such diseases as diphtheria and epidemic meningitis.

FOR PRACTICAL CHARITY.

Cincinnati Judge Suggests That Citizens Care for Police Court Prisoners.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Feb. 9.—Police Court Judge Arthur Fricke issued a challenge yesterday to preachers, business men, and women of Cincinnati to prove in a practical way how much they care to assist in helping unfortunate men and women who come before the bar of his court.

Judge Fricke called for one hundred representatives of each class he named, each to be responsible for one man or woman to be taken from the flotsam and jetsam of the police court. The 300 wards of the court are to be supervised personally for a year, to be supplied with clean clothing, a place to live, and jobs which will enable them to support themselves in a self-respecting manner.

In the preface to the code of resolutions, carrying a pledge to care for the unfortunates, which Judge Fricke has challenged the preachers, business men, and women to sign, the Police Judge has embodied the statement, "Sin, crime, and vice cannot be restrained by force. They must be conquered only through personal contact with a character stronger than that of the victim."

TO DRAW LIABILITY BILL.

Governor of Pennsylvania Names Commission to Draft Measure.

HARRISBURG, Penn., Feb. 9.—Gov. Tener announced to-day the members of the State commission which is to draft a Workmen's Compensation or Employers' Liability bill to be presented to the next Legislature. The members of the commission are David R. Reed, Pittsburgh, lawyer, Chairman; J. Barry Colahan, Philadelphia, lawyer; Morris Williams, Philadelphia, and George C. Hazel, Chester, representing employers; Francis Feehan, Pittsburgh, district leader of the miners' union, and John J. Cushing, Monessen, rod mill roller, representing employes; Prof. Francis H. Bohlen, law department of the University of Pennsylvania, expert and Secretary of the commission.

Because many of the country's greatest industries are in Pennsylvania more than ordinary interest is being taken in employers' liability legislation in this State.

MORE YERKES LITIGATION.

Louis Owsley, Executor, to be Examined in Suit Brought by Woman.

Supreme Court Justice Davis issued yesterday an order for the examination of Louis S. Owsley before the trial of a $50,000 suit brought by Miss Mary A. Fitzpatrick, who was employed as secretary by Mrs. Charles T. Yerkes.

She says that Mrs. Yerkes promised her the amount which she is now seeking to collect from her estate. Owsley is executor of Mr. Yerkes's estate, which is involved in litigation with the Mrs. Yerkes estate. Miss Fitzpatrick wants him examined relative to a conversation between herself, Mrs. Yerkes, and him, in which she says Mrs. Yerkes spoke of giving her the $50,000 and Owsley opposed the gift.

GRANGERS SEEK REFORMS.

Would Repeal Levy Electors and Primary Laws and Favor Protection.

AUBURN, N. Y., Feb. 9.—The State Grange adopted the following resolution to-day:

> Submitting a constitutional amendment striking out the word "male" in the suffrage clause.
>
> Petitioning Congress to defeat any change in the present legislation affecting oleomargerine.
>
> Directing Committee on Legislation to co-operate with all shipping associations in obtaining a bill that will place such regulations on commission men as will protect the interest of shippers.
>
> Requesting Congress to restore the duty on cream to correspond with the duty on butter.
>
> Repealing the Levy law.
>
> Repealing the present direct primary law in toto or enacting a new law that meets the demands of the advocates of genuine direct primary legislation.
>
> Submitting a constitutional amendment for an additional $50,000,000 appropriation for good roads, the amendment to include a specified list of roads to be improved under equable distribution.
>
> Requesting Congress to repeal the reciprocity treaty with Canada.

Gold watches were presented to retiring State Master F. N. Godfrey and Mrs. Godfrey.

CHOATE SEES EVIL IN RECALL SYSTEM

In an Address on Lincoln and Grant, He Declares They Would Oppose This Dangerous Step.

TRIBUTES TO HIM AT 80

Ex-Ambassador is Guest of Honor of Genealogical Society—Wants to be Harvard's Oldest Graduate.

Joseph H. Choate, who recently celebrated his eightieth birthday, was the guest of honor and chief speaker at a meeting of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, held in honor of that eightieth birthday at the society's headquarters, 226 West Fifty-eighth Street, yesterday afternoon. It was announced that Mr. Choate would speak on "Abraham Lincoln and Ulysses S. Grant." But the venerable statesman and orator decided, in the midst of his address, that he wasn't going merely to reminisce.

"Instead of speaking about Lincoln and Grant," he declared, "it is much more important to conjecture what they would say about us to-day in the great problems now tugging at the heart of the American people."

And with that he launched into an advocacy of the pending arbitration treaties as conducive to world peace, a protest against the present anarchical condition in China, and an ignoring of the open-door policy, which, he said, it was his privilege first to propose to Lord Salisbury, and a still more vigorous attack on recall of Judges, which he characterized as a "new-fangled nostrum" that would sweep away the wisest safeguards of the Constitution.

"Can we doubt for a moment how Lincoln and Grant, both great lovers of peace, even though it fell to their duty to wage a great war, would stand on the question of peace to-day, peace among all nations, for which our great President at Washington is now making such strong efforts? We may be sure both these great men would have held up his hands, were they living to-day. The great arbitration treaties which are now hanging fire in the Senate do tend to promote such peace and to prevent the possibility of provoking war, and I can conceive of no more powerful advocates of them than Lincoln and Grant."

Defense of the Constitution.

Above all, though, Mr. Choate declared, Lincoln and Grant stood for the preservation of the Constitution of the United States, in the support of which the people behind them rallied even for war.

"Now we hear every day of every new sort of nostrum and device under the sun," he declared, "all tending to impair the Constitution. It is an instrument designedly drawn by the founders of this Government providing safeguards to prevent any inroads by popular excitement or frenzy of the moment. And what is the object of all these new-fangled amendments proposed? To brush aside the constitutional safeguards; to transform our free representative government into what they call 'a true democracy' by appealing to the passions of the people in moments of wild excitement, appealing from the President, from the Legislature they have chosen, and even from the judgments of the Federal courts.

"I can conceive of no agitation that would have evoked the opposition of these two great men more than this for the new-fangled nostrums undermining our constitutional safeguards. The great drift therein is not toward the well-regulated democracy which Jefferson, Madison, and even Jackson ever upheld and applauded—each department of the Government being co-ordinate and independent of the other and also independent of the immediate impulse and excitement of actual conditions at any one moment. We've all got to be students and to consider carefully and study well even these new-fangled movements. We are never too old for that. But I have faith in the sober judgment of the American people, that they will reject these radical changes and retain the well-regulated system of Government established by the founders of the United States, to make this truly a Government of the people, for the people, and by the people."

Mr. Choate's Ambition.

Clarence Winthrop Bowen, President of the society, announced after Mr. Choate had spoken, that the Trustees of the society had at their last meeting elected him an honorary member, and asked whether he would accept the membership.

"Will I accept?" cried Mr. Choate, with a grin that he seemed to enjoy as much as the audience. "Why, if I become an honorary member of this society it satisfies my last ambition, and I won't want to become a member of anything else. And yet," he added in a gentler tone, "I don't mind telling you that I've long had one long, lingering ambition—I want to live to be the oldest living graduate of Harvard College. This honor you have just conferred upon me so cheers me that it makes me hope I shall achieve that other ambition, too."

Ambassador Reid paid tribute to Mr. Choate for his long record of service, and expressed no regret but that Mr. Choate might live the last forty years of splendid achievement all over again.

"But if we cannot turn the wheels of time backward," said Mr. Reid, "we can at least rejoice that he has grown old so gracefully and with such excellent, optimistic, and noble spirit, and such readiness to lend his facile and genial rhetoric to every good cause at any time."

Gen. Stewart L. Woodford and Gen. James Grant Wilson also spoke in tribute of Mr. Choate and in prophecy that he'd add a long line of other birthdays to his eightieth.

Andrew Carnegie was to have attended the meeting yesterday, but he was kept at home with a severe cold and sent instead a letter in simplified spelling, as a modern tribute to the venerable guest of honor. Mr. Carnegie wrote:

> Dear Mr. President: I hav been confined to the house for several days by a severe cold, and to my disappointment the doctor refuses me permission to attend Friday's meeting, the one ceremony of all others I wisht more to participate in.
>
> What a career, that of our "grand old man," Joseph Choate! Honors hav sought him; not he them. Every position held he has dignified by stamping his own impress upon the work.
>
> I know of no man of whom it can be more truly said, he remains unspotted before the world, still stedily growing alike in public and private esteem and in personal influence. Today he stands among us in his eighty-first year, "whole in himself, a common good, and in his simplicity sublime." Long life to him!
>
> Our society is indeed to be congratulated upon its latest honorary member. Yours truly,
>
> ANDREW CARNEGIE.

Among those present at the meeting yesterday were Henry A. Andrew, D. Harris Underhill, Mrs. L. Holbrook, Frank S. Gerrish, Theodore Sutro, Albert B. Tait, Mrs. William Woodward, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Newell, Spencer Joseph Este, John B. Pine, Mrs. Isabel H. Crombie, P. Gilbert Thebaud, Mrs. Rene Carrillo, Mr. and Mrs. W. Lanier, C. L. Wescott, Mrs. Colin Smith Carter, Walter Sanders, David Cromwell, Miss Faith Moore, Thomas T. Sherman, Col. Asa Bird Gardiner, Henry Parsons, Clyde Gordon Benedict, William B. Osgood Field, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Vanderbilt, and Theodore Frelinghuysen Jackson.

HEART-MENDERS PRAISED.

Attorneys Lauded from Bench for Trying to Patch Up Divorce.

Supreme Court Justice Hotchkiss commended from the bench yesterday H. A. Callan and A. La Far, attorneys in a separation suit brought by Cecilie Caine against her husband, Charles T. Caine, a carpenter, for their efforts to reconcile the parties. He said:

"It is the highest function of counsel to endeavor to reunite parties whose marriage has proved unhappy because of trivial differences or misunderstandings. It should be the duty of attorneys to try to bring about a reconciliation. Your efforts in this direction meet with the Court's hearty approbation."

The case was marked reserved, pending the result of the reconciliation overtures. Meanwhile Mrs. Caine will have the custody of her six-year-old daughter, Mona, and Caine has permission to see her as often as desired.

DEBUTANTE DANCERS RIDE IN PRIVATE CAR

Mr. and Mrs. E. Hicks Herrick Take Their Young Guests to Princeton.

ORCHESTRA GOES WITH THEM

After Dinner at the Inn They Dance with University Students at the Cottage Club.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Hicks Herrick of 723 Park Avenue took a party of society girls to Princeton, N. J., yesterday afternoon, and gave a dinner dance last night at the Cottage Club at Princeton, of which Mr. Herrick is the founder. There were many of this season's débutantes in the party.

A private car was chartered by Mr. Herrick, and it left the Pennsylvania station at 4 o'clock. Mrs. Herrick and Mrs. W. Bayard Blackwell chaperoned the débutantes.

Besides their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Herrick took a retinue of servants and an orchestra, the former to wait upon their guests en route and while in Princeton, and the latter to furnish the music at the dinner and later at the dance.

The trip was in the way of an innovation socially, and a jolly time was promised. After arriving at Princeton the host and hostess took their young guests to the Inn for dinner, where later came the members of the Cottage Club, numbering about thirty-six, with a few junior and senior students of the university. Mr. Herrick was graduated from Princeton, class of '88.

The dance last night at the club was a social event for Princeton, and the presence of so many prominent and pretty New York girls caused quite a flutter socially. The party will leave Princeton about noon to-day, returning to New York.

The girls who made up the party included the Misses Mary Baker, Anna Ballard, Priscilla Bartlett, Cornelia V. A. Chapin, Lila Fairchild, Margaret Ferris, Eugenie Fuller, Elizabeth Griggs, Louise and Margaret Herrick, daughters of the host and hostess; Gertrude Hoyt, Coline Ingersoll, Elizabeth Klapp, Hazen Symington, Gertrude Moran, Ethel Outerbridge, Dorothy and Sally Parker, Star Paris, Evelyn Scott, Elizabeth Thompson, and Constance Williams. W. Bayard Blackwell also accompanied Mrs. Blackwell.

DANCE AFTER THEATRE AFFAIR.

Mrs. Charles H. Ditson Entertains for Miss Dorothy D. Porter.

Mrs. Charles H. Ditson gave a theatre party of fifty last night for her niece, Miss Dorothy Dwight Porter, the débutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Hobart Porter. After seeing "Little Boy Blue" the guests were taken to Sherry's, where a seated supper was served in a private dining room, adjoining the tapestry room, and afterward there was dancing in the tapestry suite.

The guests included beside Miss Porter, the Misses Zoe Hannah, Anita Emmet, Phyllis McVickar, Marjorie Weeks, Julia Gilbert, Dorothy Adriance, Elizabeth Kendall, Mary Haskell, Urling Sibley, Betty Carson, Gertrude Behr, Eugenie Philbin, Justine Ingersoll, Ada Bryce-Gray, Katharine Sands, Louise Flint, and also John Stevens, Frederick Wooley, Grosvenor Farwell, J. Henry Harper, Jr., Richard Stevenson, Frederick Watrous, George Harris, Howard Hitchcock, Ralph Romaine, Bartow Farr, Charles Hickox, Harold Tappin, Warren Mayou, T. F. Stevens, Dudley Carleton, and Howard Cushing.

A few additional guests came in after supper from other parties.

BOX PARTY FOR MISS FISHER.

After the Theatre the Guests Go to Sherry's for Supper.

A small theatre party was given last evening for Miss Vieva M. Fisher. As Mrs. Fisher is in mourning, Mrs. Francis A. Dugro chaperoned it. The guests, thirty in all, occupied the five lower boxes at "Over the River," and after the play they were taken in busses to Sherry's for supper.

The guests included the Misses Frances Wyeth, Mildred Dodge, Helen Hartley Jenkins, Natalia Slocum, Helen Hyde, Julia Dick, Hope Malcom, Eleanor Hastings, and also the Marquis Strozzi, Norton Miller, Francis Thorne, Howard Bonbright, Oliver Wagstaff, John Jay Ide, Rudolph Kunhardt, J. Ellis Fisher, James Lenox Banks, Jr., William C. Bowers, 2d, George McCook, and Mr. Dugro.

MUSIC AT MRS. ALEXANDER'S.

Mme. Namara-Toye, Miss d'Alexandrowsky, and Henri La Bonte Sing.

Mrs. Charles B. Alexander gave the second of her series of musicales yesterday afternoon at her residence, 4 West Fifty-eighth Street. The artists were Mme. Namara-Toye, Miss Luba d'Alexandrowsky, and Henri La Bonte.

Mme. Namara-Toye sang an aria from "Madama Butterfly," and later a duet from the same opera with Mr. La Bonte, followed by a duet from "La Bohème." Miss d'Alexandrowsky sang, among other selections, Scarlati's "Pastorale" and "Cappriccio." Mr. La Bonte gave an aria from "La Tosca."

Luncheon for Miss Gillet.

Mrs. Reginald Ducat gave a small luncheon yesterday at her apartment, 45 West Eleventh Street, for Miss Mildred Gillet, whose engagement to Mr. Sanford was announced some time ago. The guests included Miss Gillet, and the Misses Dorothy Fox, Phyllis Moore, Joan Sanford, and Katharine Rice. Miss Rice of New Haven is visiting Mrs. Ducat, who will give a small tea on Tuesday for her.

Edison to Have a Birthday Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Edison will give a dinner and reception this evening at Llewellyn Park, their home in Orange, N. J., to mark Mr. Edison's sixty-fifth birthday. There are to be about thirty at the dinner, for which menus embossed in gold have been made by Delmonico's, and about 100 additional guests have been asked in to the reception.

Miss Thursby's Musicale.

Miss Emma Thursby gave her weekly musicale yesterday in her Gramercy Park studio. Mr. Hintze played two piano solos, "By the Sea" and "By the Brook;" Miss Grace Kearns sang three songs, by Mrs. Hill, also the aria from Puccini's "Madama Butterfly," and Miss I. Gresson sang Bemberg's "Chant Hindoo," and Ware's "Boat Song." Mme. Sapio, (Miss Clementine de Vere,) was the guest of honor.

"Lobetanz" at the Metropolitan.

"Lobetanz" received another performance at the Metropolitan Opera House last evening. The cast was the usual one, including Mme. Gadski, Mme. Sparkes, and Messrs Jadlowker, Hinshaw, Witherspoon, and Murphy. Mr. Hertz conducted.

SOCIAL NOTES.

Mrs. John I. Kane and her daughter, Miss Mary Elisabeth Kane, who was one of this Winter's débutantes, are leaving for the West, where they will spend a few months.

Mrs. Sanford Bissell has recalled all her invitations, owing to the death of her aunt, Mrs. Samuel R. Satterlee.

Among those sailing for Europe on Tuesday on the Kronprinz Wilhelm are Mrs. Elisha Dyer and her daughter, Miss Laura Swan, and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney J. Colford, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Maitland Griggs motored in yesterday from their place at Ardsley, and are at the Hotel Gotham for the week-end.

Lady Henry is sailing for Europe to-day.

Mrs. James B. Clews is giving a dinner to-night at her house in East Eighty-fifth Street for her niece, Miss Leta Sullivan of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Pierre Mall will give a small and early dance at 8 Fifth Avenue this evening for her daughter, Miss Gertrude Mall, who is not yet out.

Mrs. George W. Jenkins will give a small dance this evening at her Madison Avenue home for her daughter, Miss Helen Hartley Jenkins.

William Gunther Gardner, British Vice Consul of this city, who is to marry Miss Marion Edith Regan next Wednesday, will give his farewell bachelor dinner to-night at the Plaza.

Mrs. John A. Logan will entertain with a small informal dance on Monday evening for Miss Edith Logan.

Among those who are booked to sail for Bermuda on the Oceana within the next fortnight are Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Schiff, Mr. and Mrs. J. Kennedy Tod, and Frederick Townsend Martin.

Mrs. Schuyler Warren gave a small luncheon on Thursday for Miss Agnes Irwin, the Dean of Radclyffe.

JOINT HOSTESSES IN STUDIO.

Mrs. Todd and Mrs. Moore Give Dance for Debutante Daughters.

Mrs. Henry Alfred Todd and Mrs. John Bassett Moore gave a dance last night in the Burritt Studio for their débutante daughters, Miss Anne Moore and Miss Lisa Todd. Mrs. Todd and her daughter and Mrs. Moore and her two daughters, Miss Phyllis Moore, a bud of last Winter, and Miss Anne Moore, a débutante of this season, received together. The studio being done in Oriental effects, no other decorations were used save palms.

There was general dancing until midnight, when a seated buffet supper at small tables was served, followed by more dancing.

The guests, who numbered about 150, were young unmarried people, including many of this year's buds and also last year's.

Among those asked were the Misses Bessie and Agnes Claflin, Margaret Strong, Mary Riker Haskell, Pauline Mallet-Provost, Helen Hiss, Katharine Moore, Mary Woodin, Anne Hardon, Frances Wendell, Charlotte Chalmers, Marion Whitman, Harriet Bullock, Dorothy Dominick, Elizabeth Wisner, Alice Guernsey, Doris Porter, Beulah Hepburn, Mildred Gillet, Evelyn Weekes, Ruth Baldwin, Lucy Turner of Virginia, Marjorie Dodd, Florence Rand, Frances Henry, Elizabeth Beers, Mary Bangs, Vera Van Buren, Eloise Bloodgood, Dorothy Baldwin, Margaret Suckley, Gladys Clarkson, Dora Clover of Washington, Helen Hartley Jenkins, Eleanor and Priscilla Lockwood, Josephine Nicoll, Florence Rogers, Allison Pierce, Dorothy Fox, and Alida Livingston, and also J. ## SOMERSAULTS ALLAH'S SHEIK

Camel Tries to Break Up Stage Children's Benefit Performance.

A performance for the benefit of the National Alliance for the Protection of Stage Children was given at the Century Theatre yesterday afternoon, with an audience that almost filled the big auditorium. It was a remarkable programme, and it was made more so by an amusing accident that happened at the beginning of the show. Augustus Thomas had introduced Mrs. Fiske, and Mrs. Fiske had told something about the children of the stage, and then the desert scene of "The Garden of Allah" was put on.

At its conclusion, just as the sun is peeping above the horizon, an old Sheik, mounted on a camel, makes his appearance. Ordinarily the camel kneels, the Sheik dismounts, and prays toward the rising sun. But yesterday the camel, not liking an extra performance, did not stay on his knees long enough. He started to get up, camel fashion, front legs first, and the Sheik did a graceful somersault over the animal's back and landed on all fours almost in the footlights. He recovered himself and returned to the attitude of prayer, but it was to the accompaniment of a rather loud tittering on the part of the audience.

Mr. Thomas and Mrs. Fiske had several things to say in favor of fair legislation for the protection of stage children, and the rest of the long bill consisted of Lewis Waller in a recitation, an act from "Bought and Paid For," Mme. Alma Gluck, Clifton Crawford, Mme. Simone, Pasquale Amato, George M. Cohan, an act of "Bunty Pulls the Strings," Arnold Daly, Ina Claire and "The Quaker Girl" chorus, Gertrude Brian and the girls from "Little Boy Blue," something from "Over the River," Raymond Hitchcock and part of "The Red Widow," Fuller Mellish and company in "Waterloo," Helen Shipman, and a ballet of children in "The Doll Fairy."

MILK TALK AT THE ASTOR.

Club Women Hear Some Facts About the Unclean Refrigerator.

They talked about the unsanitary refrigerator of the rich yesterday afternoon at the First Judicial District meeting of the New York Federation of Women Clubs at the Hotel Astor. It is not alone poor cows or bad milkmen that spoil the milk, and it is not only the poor who don't know how to care for it, they said.

"The trouble is not all with the milk as it comes to you," said Mrs. A. M. Palmer. "Even Dr. Lederle says that. You would be amazed," she continued in shocked tones, "at the good houses that have dirty refrigerators." The women looked at each other in pained surprise.

"How about doing your own cooking?" broke in Mrs. Gerard Bancker, with almost an air of levity. "If we ask our cooks to clean the refrigerators they are going to leave."

"Personally I think it is every housekeeper's duty to see for herself that her refrigerator is clean," said Mrs. Frank Cronise. "She ought to visit it at least once a day."

"There are not many who do," said Mrs. Bancker with cheerful persistence.

"And my cook likes to have me come into the kitchen," continued Mrs. Cronise. "I treat her right and she always receives me amiably."

"We must educate public sentiment," said Miss Mary Garrett Hay, President of the State Federation of Women's Clubs. "Talk about pure milk all the time, and keep the subject of clean refrigerators going even when you are playing bridge."

"Take this matter home to your own refrigerator," said Miss Sara Palmer, who is Chairman of the district, pleadingly.

"Ladies," said Mrs. A. M. Palmer, "believe me, you don't want to solve problems. When you do you will rally and get what you want."

THEATRICAL NOTES.

George M. Cohan, Raymond Hitchcock, William Collier, and Maud Raymond have volunteered their services for the annual benefit of the Treasurers' Club of America, the organization of theatre treasurers, to be held at Wallack's Theatre on Feb. 25.

Effingham Pinto and George Pierce have been added to the company that is to support Henry Miller in the new A. E. Thomas play, "The Rainbow." The piece will be produced at the Apollo Theatre, Atlantic City, on Feb. 26, and will be brought to New York after a week's engagement at the Columbia Theatre, Washington.

BERMUDA AWAITING CRICKETERS' VISIT

American Sojourners' Interest Now Centred in the Coming International Matches.

OUR TEAM SAILS ON FEB. 17

All-Philadelphians to Play Three Times—Professional Baseball to be on View, Too.

Special Correspondence THE NEW YORK TIMES

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Feb. 6, 1912.—The interest of American visitors is now centered in the arrival of the All-Philadelphia Cricket Team, which sails from New York on the Arcadian on Feb. 17, for the annual international cricket match. On Feb. 20 and 21, the visitors play the Hamilton Cricket Club, on Feb. 22 and 23, they meet the Queen's Regiment of West Surrey, and on Feb. 24 and 26, they play a picked All-Bermuda team. These matches have been played since 1907, and are of great interest to followers of the branch of sport, as the Bermuda team ranks very high in the cricket world, two of the players, "Raggie" and Gerald Conyers, having international reputations. The former is known for his batting, while the latter is noted for his bowling. It was Gerald Conyers who won the game and match for the Bermudians at Philadelphia last July against the All-Philadelphia Cricket Team, by performing the "hat trick" twice in one inning.

Still another event which is eagerly looked forward to by tourists here is the coming of forty-five members of the Philadelphia National baseball squad, who will leave New York on the Arcadian on Feb. 24. The wonderfully even climate of Bermuda makes it an ideal place for Winter training and the management of the Philadelphia team has decided to take advantage of this fact and do the first three weeks of the season's work down here.

The Belmont was the scene of another gathering of artists, writers, and those of kindred tastes, when Larry Chittenden, the Bermuda poet, gave a reception several nights ago in honor of Frank Ver Beck, artist and illustrator, and his wife, who as Anna Rion has written many charming stories. One of the best known of Mr. Ver Beck's works is his illustrated children's book, called "The Ver Beck Bear Book." Many of the original black and white drawings for this book, as well as a number of Mr. Ver Beck's water colors were on exhibition. Among the Americans present were Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, Mrs. J. Morton Fiero, Mrs. E. D. Putnam, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick S. Greene, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Newman, Mrs. Harriet Underhill, Miss Marguerite Schuyler, Miss Vera Fitch, Miss Florence E. Whelpley, Ettinger P. Roe, Baron George A. Glaenzer, and E. S. Van Tassel, all of New York; Mrs. A. E. Bliss of Malden, Mass.; Mrs. N. A. Peck of Pittsfield, Mass.; Henry I. Richmond of Boston, Mrs. Sarah D. Cropley of Dorchester, Mass.; Col. A. A. Campbell, Robert Wallace, and Mrs. Hilliam, all of London, Ont.

Mrs. George W. Quintard, 2d., of New York, entertained at dinner before the Tuesday dance, at the Hamilton. Her guests were Mrs. Guy Scott-Dahlgleish, Miss C. Edith Higgins, and Messrs. Arthur S. Cragin, Ralph C. Thayer, and E. S. Van Tassel, all of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. William M. Conyers gave a chafing dish party a few days ago at their home in Pembroke, the following guests going over after the dance at the Princess: Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Thomas, Emerson Foote, E. S. Van Tassel, all of New York; Miss Edith Whelan of Baltimore, Miss Lydia Loring of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Stillman W. Eells, and Mrs. Franklin Douglas of Cleveland, Miss Edna Waterman of Minneapolis, and Capt. Alyeene and Lieuts. Hamilton and Esdale, of the Queen's Regiment, and stationed in Bermuda.

Mrs. Stillman W. Eells gave a large tennis party recently, at her Bermuda home, the Casuarinas, which is situated in Warwick parish. A number of interesting sets of mixed doubles were played, after which refreshments were served at the house. Among the Americans present were Truman H. Newberry, ex-Assistant Secretary of the Navy, and Mrs. Newberry, Miss Carol B. Newberry, and Miss Lydia Loring, all of Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Thomas, Mrs. Frederick Brooks, Mrs. Guy Scott-Dahlgleish, Miss Madeline Tompkins, Emerson Foote and E. S. Van Tassel, all of New York; Miss Edith Whelan of Baltimore, Mrs. Franklin Douglas of Cleveland, Miss Edna Waterman of Minneapolis, and George Singer of Pittsburgh. The guests also included a number of Bermudians and officers of the Queen's Regiment.

Among the recent arrivals registered at the Hamilton from New York are Mr. and Mrs. H. Plummer, Herbert J. Riley, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Dietz, who have with them Mrs. M. E. Tourny of Philadelphia; Thomas Stokes, Charles H. Leland, Miss Maud Leland, Miss Emma S. Wray, and Mrs. William K. Harcourt. The following from Brooklyn are at the Hamilton: Mr. and Mrs. Otto Reimer, Rudolph Reimer, Mrs. J. W. McCormick, Miss Madeline McCormick, and Miss Elinor McCormick.

Recent arrivals registered at the Princess from New York include E. M. Bicknell, Mrs. J. L. Adams, Miss Wardwell, Mrs. George P. Brett, Miss Clare L. Brett, Miss M. Blair, William Carter, Mrs. W. C. Lyford, Mr. and Mrs. E. Kempshell, and Miss Kempshell. Mrs. Fayette Smith of Morristown, N. J.; Mrs. John Dix and Mrs. E. H. Shelton of East Orange, and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. W. Littell of Newark, are also recent registrations.

MUSIC NOTES.

Andrew Dippel, the general manager of the Chicago-Philadelphia Company, which will present "Carmen" at the Metropolitan Opera House on Tuesday evening, was in town yesterday. He announced that Massenet's "Cendrillon" would be presented at the second Tuesday visit of the company, and Wolf-Ferrari's "I Giojelli della Madonna" at the third.

Mrs. Homer and Pasquale Amato will take part in the performance of "Tristan und Isolde" to be sung in Boston on Monday evening under the direction of Felix Weingartner.

Charles M. Schwab, President of the Bethlehem Steel Company, has guaranteed half the expenses of this year's beach festival in Bethlehem, giving $2,500. Bach's B minor mass will be sung by the choir on May 31 and June 1, under the direction of Dr. J. Fred Wolle.

Miss Amy Grant will give a lecture recital on "Mona" to-morrow afternoon at her studio, 78 West Fifty-fifth Street.

Count and Countess Fabri gave a musicale last evening in honor of Maurice Nitke, violinist, at their home, 15 East Thirty-eighth Street. The Nitke Trio made its first appearance on this occasion.

Theodore Roosevelt, it is announced, will attend the performance of "Konigskinder," to be given on Thursday afternoon at the Metropolitan Opera House for the benefit of the Legal Aid Society.

DENTISTRY

The employment of specialists in each of the dental branches is one great feature of my practice.

But there is another; work in my office is done without pain. I know this is what the quacks say. But mark the difference. I do not offer my unsupported word, but furnish the names of hundreds of well-known people in Brooklyn and Manhattan (not at a distance, mind you) who have been coming to me for years, and enthusiastically indorse my methods. These names, with the addresses, are in a booklet called "Dentistry by Specialists and the Gentle Art of Painlessness." Let me send you a copy.

THREE FIRE CHIEFS IN PERIL.

Overcome by Gas with Four Other Firemen in Sub-Cellar.

Seven firemen, among them Deputy Chief Binns and Battalion Chiefs Kuss and Marshall, were overcome by gas yesterday morning while fighting a fire in the sub-cellar of the building at William and Spruce Streets, and were rescued with difficulty.

The sub-cellar is used as a pressroom by the New York Staats-Zeitung. The gas was liberated when the pipes in the cellar melted. In addition to the firemen who were overcome one other fireman was injured when a heavy roll of printing paper fell on him.

The firemen who were overcome with the three chiefs were Roach of Engine Company 32, Tower and Marron of Engine Company 4, and Ryan of Hook and Ladder 10. All seven were carried out of the gas-choked cellar into the street by other firemen who had to work with their heads covered in order to get to them. Several of the men were in such bad shape when taken out of the cellar that the doctors had to resort to artificial respiration methods to restore them to consciousness.

Edward Veroth of Truck 10, upon whom a heavy roll of paper fell, was taken to St. Gregory's Hospital suffering possibly from internal injuries. It was said that he would recover.

The fire started in a room used for the storing of printing paper, and so intense was the heat that the gas pipes were melted before the firemen arrived. The smoke was dense.

The three chiefs, one of whom—Marshall—is the successor of the late Battalion Chief Walsh, who was killed at the Equitable Building fire, got to the fire about the same time as the apparatus, and they led the way into the burning pressroom. When the three chiefs reached the rear part where the fire was burning they were seen to fall, and the four firemen who rushed to the rescue collapsed before they had a chance to reach them.

The rush of gas was so stifling that the rescue proved to be a terrible task. The firemen, however, never hesitated a second, but holding their breath and covering their faces with cloths groped their way to the unconscious chiefs and their men. All of the firemen were in bad shape when taken out of the cellar, and Chief Binns was under the care of Dr. Woods of the Volunteer Hospital for nearly an hour before he was permitted to return to his duties. The others were all able to return to their work.

Chief Kenlon directed the rescue of Binns and the other firemen, and had the men removed to a near-by building as soon as they were carried from the cellar. Had it not been for the gas the work of extinguishing the fire would probably have been a matter of only a few minutes. As it was, no headway was made until the gas was turned off, and then the firemen got at the actual blaze. The fire was out in about an hour. The loss is about $2,000.

The evening edition of the Staats-Zeitung was printed yesterday on the presses of the German Herold. As soon as the fire was out Herman Ridder set men to work repairing the damage to the presses. This morning's edition of the paper was printed in THE TIMES office.

ORIENTAL CURIOS SOLD.

Japanese and Chinese Ivories and Bronzes Features of Halsted Sale.

Japanese ivories, old Chinese carvings in stone, and fine old Japanese and Chinese bronzes, part of the collection of Richard H. Halsted, were sold yesterday afternoon at the American Art Galleries.

A cribbage board of Chinese carving went to Mrs. Gerald L. Hoyt for $12. Four antique Spanish fans with mother of pearl sticks, carved, the decorations in brilliantly colored scenes and landscapes, were bought by David Belasco for $140. They were all in cases.

A Japanese bird cage of vermilion lacquer mounted on a stand of black lacquer, and decorated with crests and other designs in different colored lacquers, went to Mrs. Henry Clews for $55. In the cage was a canary which sang throughout the sale.

Mrs. C. K. G. Billings paid the highest price of the afternoon, $350, for a beautiful old Chinese vase of bronze, oviform, with spreading neck and tubular handles. A pair of old Japanese bronze fonts went to Mrs. Billings for $125. Capt. J. R. de Lamar paid $145 for an elaborate fender done in precious metals, bronze, and shakudo. It was in an openwork bamboo design, with intertwining temple gateposts, surmounted by life-sized Buddhistic figures. It was from the Joseph W. Sprague collection, and was made from original designs by the celebrated artist, Sano Takachika. A Japanese bronze temple lantern, padoga shaped, 5 feet 7½ inches high, and 2 feet 3 inches square, went to Capt. de Lamar for $90.

A large Japanese Champlevé censer in lotus flower shape, with a bronze cover, was bought by Mrs. R. H. Williams for $135. E. S. Hawes paid $95 for a Japanese bronze okimona, a recumbent tiger, modeled by Yoshi Kiyo, on a carved wood stand, for $95. Mrs. Robert W. de Forest paid $85 for a small Chinese screen, a polished stone panel, the ground of white, with brown veins resembling a mountainous landscape. An interesting piece of Japanese articulated work, a dragon in iron, went to Mrs. Cooper Hewitt for $30. Carved woods, Japanese chairs, teakwood cabinets, screens, and hangings will be sold to-day.

E. Wayne Richards.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 9.—E. Wayne Richards, a widely known wholesale and retail hardware dealer of this city, died early this morning at the Hotel Chelsea, Atlantic City, where he had gone to attend the convention of the Pennsylvania Hardware Dealers' Association. Mr. Richards was stricken with heart failure yesterday morning and failed to rally. The body was brought to Philadelphia this morning. Mr. Richards had been in the hardware business here for the last thirty-three years.

The Rev. Dr. Andrew M. Fairbairn.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—The Rev. Dr. Andrew Martin Fairbairn, Principal Emeritus of Mansfield College, Oxford, died to-day. He was born in 1838. Dr. Fairbairn, besides being one of the best-known educators in England, was the author of numerous works on religious subjects. Yale University conferred upon him the degree of Doctor of Divinity in 1889, and in 1891-92 he was Lyman Beecher lecturer at the New Haven university.

"TED" MARKS IS DEAD.

Theatrical Manager Long a Noted Broadway Figure.

Theodore David Marks, better known for thirty years as Ted, died yesterday morning at the Hotel Metropole. As an international impresario of vaudeville artists he was known to all theatrical people in America and England.

For more than thirty years he was a familiar figure along the streets. Always immaculately dressed in frock coat and top hat, with an inevitable white carnation in his buttonhole, he was conspicuous on the "Rialto" from the time that that imaginary public place was located near Fourteenth Street until it was moved up to Times Square.

He was born in Louisiana, near New Orleans, on Nov. 14, 1853. His mother was a daughter of Isador Newman, the founder of a family of wealthy New Orleans bankers and merchants. At 18 he began his career as a cigar salesman, and was, in turn, a window draper, and a jewelry drummer in San Francisco. Thirty-three years ago. Shook & Palmer gave him a position in the box office of the Union Square Theatre, and thus began his theatrical career.

Later he became an advance agent for Daniel Frohman, and then, when Oscar Hammerstein opened the Olympia, now the New York Theatre, he was made house manager. Previous to that time he managed the Imperial Music Hall, at Twenty-ninth Street and Broadway, later the Weber-Fields Music Hall. His last engagement as a house manager was at the Plaza Music Hall when it opened two seasons ago.

But it was as an agent for vaudeville artists that he was best known. He brought here from England and the Continent many noted stars, and he had crossed the Atlantic more times than any one else in the theatrical business.

In New York he inaugurated the idea of Sunday concerts at the American Theatre, and made it possible for "sacred" concerts to be given without police interference and with paying patronage.

Mr. Marks was a member of the Masons, the Elks, and the Friars. The funeral services will be held at the Merritt undertaking rooms to-morrow, with Masonic services, and the body will be taken to New Orleans for burial.

A benefit planned for him at Cohan's Theatre on Feb. 15 will be held notwithstanding his death, and the proceeds will be used toward a monument to be erected to his memory.

MGR. BURTSELL'S FUNERAL.

Cardinal Farley at the Mass in the Cathedral—3,500 in the Church.

More than 3,500 persons, including Cardinal Farley and nearly 100 Monsignori and priests, attended the pontifical requiem mass in St. Patrick's Cathedral yesterday morning for Mgr. Richard L. Burtsell of Kingston, who was formerly rector of the Church of the Epiphany, in Second Avenue.

Bishop Cusack was the celebrant of the mass, and the Rev. Isidore Meister of Mamaroneck the assistant priest. The Rev. John E. Burke, National director of the work among colored people, was deacon, while the Rev. T. M. O'Keefe, pastor of the Church of St. Benedict the Moor, was sub-deacon, and the Rev. J. J. Bryne of the cathedral, master of ceremonies.

Although it is twenty-two years since Mgr. Burtsell was removed from the Epiphany Parish, a huge star of white roses and immortelles "from his old Epiphany friends" stood just inside the entrance to the cathedral.

At the close of the sermon, delivered by the Right Rev. T. J. Shahan, Cardinal Farley came down from his throne on the altar and pronounced the final blessing in the aisle beside the coffin. Despite his recent indisposition, the Cardinal seemed quite vigorous, and his voice was strong.

After the ceremony the body lay in state, clad in purple robes, while the big congregation filed past. Interment was in the Burtsell family plot in Calvary.

DR. H. W. SPANGLER DYING.

University of Pennsylvania Dean Stricken with Heart Failure.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 9.—Dr. Henry Wilson Spangler, dean of the Mechanical Engineering Department of the University of Pennsylvania, is dying from heart failure at his home, 4815 Springfield Avenue.

For years Dr. Spangler has suffered with an affection of the heart, but his condition did not become serious until yesterday, when Provost Smith of the university was summoned to his bedside. To-day the Provost said there was practically no hope of saving the life of Dr. Spangler.

Dr. Spangler has been at the head of the Engineering Department since its institution, twenty-nine years ago. He is a consulting engineer to the United States Government and is a retired officer in the United States Navy. In addition to being head of the Engineering Department he is the Whitney Professor of Dynamical Engineering.

EX-MAYOR OF BUFFALO DEAD.

Stricken While Visiting His Successor—Long a Prominent Democrat.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 9.—James Noble Adam, ex-Democratic Mayor of Buffalo and founder of the dry goods house of J. N. Adam & Co., died here at 3 o'clock this morning after a brief illness.

Mr. Adam was seized with a fainting spell yesterday afternon while visiting the office of Mayor Fuhrmann, his successor. He apparently was suffering from an attack of acute indigestion, but was able to walk to his automobile and was taken home. Up to midnight his condition was not regarded as serious, but early this morning another attack, apparently of apoplexy, caused his death.

He was 70 years old. He retired from business life in 1906, and had devoted most of his time ever since to public affairs. His term as Mayor expired last year.

Mr. Adam returned recently from Peebles, Scotland, his birth place, where it was his custom to make an annual visit. He came to America in 1872 after serving his apprenticeship in commercial life in Scotland, and was a resident of New Haven, Conn., until 1881, when he came to Buffalo. For a score of years he had been a conservative Democrat of National prominence.

The Rev. Frank Dewitt Talmage.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 26.—The Rev. Frank Dewitt Talmage died at his home here to-night of heart failure, superinduced by a nervous breakdown. He was 44 years old. Dr. Talmage was pastor of the Chambers-Wylie Presbyterian Church. He came to his last charge from the First Presbyterian Church of Los Angeles, Cal. He had also occupied pulpits in Chicago and Pittsburgh.

Obituary Notes.

The Rev. Father MAURICE BIERL of the Franciscan Order died at St. Joseph's rectory in Utica, N. Y., yesterday on the fiftieth anniversary of his entering the priesthood. During his priesthood Father Bierl had been stationed at Pittsburgh, Penn.; Camden, N. J.; Terre Haute, Ind.; Syracuse, and London, and was for seventeen years the English confessor at St. Peter's, Rome. He was a native of Bavaria.

SAMUEL A. CLARKE, prominent as a knitting mill man, died at his home in Cohoes, N. Y., yesterday. He was born in Cohoes in 1856, and was an alumnus of Union College. He was President of the Manufacturers' Association, composed of mill owners.

Mrs. ELIZABETH J. MAGEE, 102 years old, died on Thursday at Woonsocket, R. I. She was born in Glasgow, Scotland, and formerly lived in Douglas and North Uxbridge, Mass.

DIRECTORS LIABLE FOR EXCESSIVE LOANS

Banks Here Learn Controller Murray Is Making Repetition of Morse Financing Impossible.

MUST KEEP IN LEGAL LIMIT

Losses on Loans Beyond Statutory Provision Can't Be Met Hereafter Out of Surplus.

National banks in this city learned with interest yesterday that Controller Murray had decided to hold Directors responsible for losses incurred through loans in excess of the legal provision. A National bank is not permitted to make any loan which shall exceed 10 per cent. of the capital and 10 per cent. of the surplus. Mr. Murray is to notify bank examiners that in future banks shall be required to include in their record of loans the initials of the Directors who pass on loans in excess of the legal percentage, with the idea of holding such Directors personally responsible for any loss in connection with such loans.

The consensus of opinion among several bank officers seen yesterday was that the Controller was entirely within his rights in making this stipulation, and that the strict enforcement of the rule would cause greater care by Directors in sanctioning loans. It was said that the National banks have been much more careful in this regard since the 1907 panic, and that the larger institutions have drawn the line sharply against any international overextensions of credit. At the same time, it is not always possible to prevent a temporary violation of the 10 per cent. regulation.

Banks in Wall Street, for instance, are accustomed to hold blanket notes signed by brokers, who may come to an institution several times a day for call money, leaving ample collateral to protect their loans. At the end of an active day it sometimes develops that a firm engaged in heavy transactions has drawn more than it is entitled to under the 10 per cent. provision. An overextension of this nature is remedied as soon as the bank has had time to balance its books at the end of the day, and part of the loan is called at the opening of business on the following day.

As these over-extensions of credit are protected by good Stock Exchange collateral, the bank is taking no especial risks in allowing more than the legal amount of loans to one customer.

It will not be necessary for the Controller to go to Congress for authority to hold Directors responsible for losses resulting from an abuse of the bank's loaning privilege. It has been held by the courts on several occasions that the Directors are personally liable for any loss resulting from their negligence. It has been the practice of some institutions to charge any loss incurred through an over-extension of credit to the bank's surplus, and it is this custom that the Controller is seeking to remedy.

Following the failure of the Bank of North America, of which Charles W. Morse was Vice-President, Charles A. Hanna, who was acting as receiver, brought suit against the Directors severally to recover on losses suffered by the bank through the loans made to Morse under his own and others' names in excess of the legal maximum, and the suits were only prevented from a determination by a settlement reached out of court. Under the decisions handed down in similar cases the receiver could have held Morse's fellow Directors responsible for any losses borne by the bank through their failure to insist on a strict observance of the banking act.

"So far as New York is concerned, I do not believe that Mr. Murray's determination to end this practice of lending a customer more money than he is entitled to will mean any change in the method of doing business," said the Vice-President of one of Wall Street's biggest banks yesterday. "We had our lesson in 1907. Among some of the smaller banks out of town I believe that there is still an occasional complaint on this score. In some cases this is due to the practice of allowing the Cashier to make loans and submit them to the Directors at their next meeting for their formal approval.

"In some cases I think that these banks should be allowed to advance more than the 10 per cent. of their small capital. I have in mind the not unusual instance of the necessity of increasing a customer's liability to save the business on which the legal amount has already been lent. But this should be a matter for the Directors' business judgment, and it is only right that they should make good to the bank any loss incurred through such over-extension."

It not infrequently happens that a National bank subscribes to an issue of bonds in amount more than 10 per cent. of its capital and surplus. In such cases, however, other banks or firms are brought in as underwriters, so that in the event of failure to resell the bonds on a profitable basis the bank in whose name the issue was taken does not have to stand an undue share of the loss. An exception is made in the case of Government issues, which the banks do not regard as loans in the ordinary use of the term.

PHILADELPHIA CO. EARNS LESS

But Assurances Are Given of 7 Per Cent. Dividend Will Be Continued.

A statement issued by the Philadelphia Company of Pittsburgh says that gross earnings for the nine months ended with Dec. 31, 1911, decreased $138,275, while net fell off $815,410. This would indicate a surplus of 9 per cent. on the stock, as compared with 11 per cent. earned in the fiscal year which closed with March 31, 1911. The decreased net earnings resulted from heavier maintenance charges brought about by a large amount of repaving work done by the city.

It is said that in January the company did the biggest business in its history. With a pronounced revival in business conditions in Pittsburgh it is expected that this improvement in earnings will continue. Important financial plans which have nearly been concluded are expected to enable the company to reorganize its railway situation and place these properties on a sound basis. The company believes that stockholders may look forward with confidence to a continuance of the 7 per cent. dividend on the common stock.

INSURES BIG COAL MERGER.

Syndicate to Underwrite Southern Combination's Bonds Is Completed.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 9.—The syndicate to underwrite bonds to be issued under the plan for merging the Alabama Consolidated Coal and Iron Company and the Southern Iron and Steel Company has been completed, according to advices received to-day. Harvey Fisk & Sons of New York will be the syndicate manager, and the underwriters will include influential institutions in this country and abroad. This practically guarantees early completion of the merger of these companies.

The new company is to be known as the Alabama Consolidated Iron and Steel Company, and is to have a capitalization of $33,986,000.

Failed to Prove Railroad Conspiracy.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Feb. 9.—The Missouri Supreme Court en banc to-day sustained a demurrer to the petition of the Attorney General for the ouster of all the sixteen railroads in the State on allegations of combining to fix passenger and freight rates. The opinion by Judge Brown held the petition was insufficient to the charge of conspiracy.

NEW HONDURAS LOAN TERMS.

Size Is Reduced to $6,000,000, with Interest at Five Per Cent.

The new contract with Honduras for a loan under the terms of the treaty now before the Senate, which is being negotiated by the Whitney Central Bank and Trust Company of New Orleans, it was learned here yesterday, will contain a provision for the collection of the customs by an American official in case of default in the interest on the bonds. The same provision will apply in case of war between Honduras and any other Nation. This is an important point in the future relations of this country with such Nations as Honduras. New Orleans dispatches were in error in saying that this provision was to be eliminated.

The new contract, however, will eliminate some of the features of the agreement negotiated by the syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan & Co., which has now lapsed, that were objectionable to Honduras. The old contract provided that out of the proceeds of the bonds $1,700,000 should be set aside for the payment of American claims against Honduras, provided they were allowed by arbiters. The new contract will not touch this point, which involved a tacit admission by Honduras that such claims exist.

The size of the loan is also to be reduced from $10,000,000 at 4½ per cent. to $6,000,000 at 5 per cent., with a corresponding reduction in interest from $450,000 a year to $300,000. The old arrangement provided funds for the completion of the railroad for which one of the old loans, now to be refunded, was made, and this also is to be eliminated. The loan will now apply only to the refunding of the external debt of the country.

Customs collections in Honduras amount to about $750,000 a year, so that the $300,000 interest will be amply secured by the clause providing for American supervision in case of default or war.

William C. Sheldon & Co. of this city are associated with the Whitney Central Bank in the matter, but no other interests will be included in the syndicate. The New Orleans Bank recently loaned $500,000 to Honduras and was thus brought into business relations with that Government about the time the project was abandoned by the Morgan-Kuhn-Loeb syndicate.

BATHTUB RULING TUESDAY

On the Jurisdiction of the Michigan Courts, Which Defense Questions.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 9.—The questions of jurisdiction and what acts constitute a conspiracy featured to-day's session of the trial of the Government's criminal suit against the so-called Bath Tub Trust. The case was adjourned tonight until Tuesday morning, when it is expected Judge Angell will give a definite ruling on the matter.

It is the contention of the defense that any acts of the defendants toward the establishment of the alleged license agreement and re-sale prices that were not agreed upon unanimously by all of the defendants, do not constitute conspiracy. The Government argues that although the final agreement, which it charges was a conspiracy in restraint of trade, was not signed by all of the defendants until May 6, 1910, in New York, the conspiracy was in the process of formation for several months when meetings of several of the defendants were held in Mt. Clemens, Mich., Chicago, and other cities.

To substantiate its argument the Government has offered as evidence alleged agreements drawn up at these meetings and signed by different members of the defence. The defendants, however, maintain that prior to the meeting on May 6 none of the so-called agreements was accepted by all the manufacturers and were never effective, hence no alleged conspiracy had taken place unless it did transpire, as charged by the prosecution, at the meeting on May 6, in New York. Therefore, it argues, the case is not in the jurisdiction of the Michigan court.

Edward L. Wayman, who, it is said by the Government, drew up the trade agreements, was on the witness stand all day.

SOUTHERN RAISES DIVIDEND.

Semi-Annual Preferred Payment Puts Stock on 4 Per Cent. Basis.

Directors of the Southern Railway declared a semi-annual dividend of 2 per cent. on the preferred stock yesterday, putting that issue on a 4 per cent. basis. The last previous dividend was 1 per cent.

The Southern resumed payments on its preferred stock a year ago. At that time President Finley said that it would be the company's policy to increase the rate as earnings justified it until the full 5 per cent. was paid. The first six months of the current year have shown earnings at the rate of about 12 per cent. on the preferred.

The Southern's dividend has never been a fixed quantity. In 1897 and 1898 the stock received 1 per cent., which was increased 1 per cent. each year until 5 per cent. was being paid. In 1907 the rate was reduced to 4 per cent. and then passed.

A BARGAIN IN RUBBER.

Two Hundred Tons Sold at Close to $1 a Pound.

B. G. Worth, President of the B. F. Goodrich Company of Akron, Ohio, manufacturers of automobile tires, came to New York this week, and yesterday the rubber trade was electrified by the news that he had bought 200 tons of valorized Brazilian rubber from August Belmont & Co. at figures close to $1 a pound. Mr. Worth said to a TIMES reporter:

"I won't tell you the exact price of my purchase, nor will I confirm or deny the report that Belmont & Co. lost money on the deal. That some one lost a lot of money is evident, because when the market price was $2 a pound, some time ago, this particular 200 tons was being held for still higher figures. Now, the new crop of rubber is just about to come on the market and the prevailing price is $1.08 and may be lower, though no one can be sure of that, because the manufacturers seem able to absorb all that will be offered—at reasonable figures—so good is the outlook for business prosperity in 1912."

Business men, commenting on the sale, said it proved the futility of trying to control prices by the valorization method.

IMITATION CURB PANIC

Beat Anything in Reality—Enacted to Oblige Moving Picture Man.

The days of the big smash in Nipissing, which started the collapse of the Curb's mining stock boom in 1906, and the equally wild few hours when Lawson's first advertised market in Yukon Gold opened one eventful morning, all paled for a few brief moments, just long enough to use up a moving-picture film. The made-to-order "panic on the curb" was to oblige a photographer who had set his machine up in a convenient doorway on Broad Street.

The Curb men were willing actors. At the word of the camera man a bedlam broke loose which surpassed in noise and motion any reality of a panic market. The Curb learned from the camera man they had obliged that they had helped manufacture one chapter of the "Broker's Revenge," which is soon to appear at the picture shows.

STUDY MIDDLEMEN'S PROFITS

Food Commission Inquiry Begins In New York and Will Cover the State.

ALBANY, Feb. 9.—Raymond A. Pearson, former Commissioner of Agriculture, at the request of the New York Food Investigating Commission will devote the next two months to an investigation of the market conditions in the State outside of New York City, with special reference to the gross amount of business done by middlemen, the proportion retained by them for expenses and profits, and the resulting share received by the growers of crops.

Market conditions in New York City are now being investigated by a committee of the commission, composed of William Church Osborn, Ezra Tuttle, and Calvin J. Huson, State Commissioner of Agriculture.

To Investigate the Horse Shoe Trust.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The Department of Justice will investigate the National Horse Shoe Manufacturers' Association, which it is charged controls the sale price of horseshoes throughout the country. Complaint was made to the Department by Representative Barnhart of Indiana, who to-day received a letter from Attorney General Wickersham saying an investigation will be started soon. Mr. Barnhart charged that retail dealers who declined to recognize sale prices fixed by the National Association could not get further supplies of shoes.

WOULD PUT CUSTOMS RECEIPTS IN BANKS

Lobeck Bill, with Such a Provision, Unanimously Reported to the House.

NOW IN THE SUB-TREASURY

Except in Some Case Which Leads to Charge of Discrimination—For Transferring Internal Revenues, Too.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Important action was taken to-day by the House Ways and Means Committee when it unanimously reported the Lobeck bill authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to deposit customs and internal revenue receipts in depositary banks. The bill as reported also authorizes the transfer of such deposits to the credit of disbursing officers in Sub-Treasury cities and Washington as elsewhere.

Had there been such authority of law it would have been within the power of the Treasury to deposit $219,000,000 of customs receipts in depositary banks in New York City in the fiscal year 1910. That sum was deposited in the New York Sub-Treasury and not a dollar in banks.

Near the close of the last Congress the act of March 2, 1911, was passed authorizing the receipt of certified checks by collectors in payment of customs and internal revenue and made it lawful for the collectors to received certified checks of National and State banks, and trust companies in payment of public dues. But the law made no provision as to how these checks should be collected, where they should be deposited, and what should be done with such deposits.

Complaint has been made that the Treasury Department, finding in certain sections of the revised statutes an obstacle to uniformity of administration, does not follow in certain cities its universal practice elsewhere or adhere even in the same city to a common rule when applied to different revenue collecting officers.

Report Unanimous.

As a result of this situation the Lobeck bill was introduced and the unanimous report of the committee filed to-day by Representative Francis Burton Harrison of New York declares it is necessary to provide in the law that checks received in public payment at Sub-Treasury cities may be deposited in National banks, and that for purposes of disbursements, credits arising from the deposits of the checks may be transferred to disbursing officers.

The Harrison report recites that on March 30 last Assistant Secretary Andrew of the Treasury asked the solicitor for opinion whether receipts from customs could be deposited in National bank depositories in the Sub-Treasury cities. The solicitor ruled that they could not be so deposited in the National bank depositories of Washington, nor in the Sub-Treasury Cities of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, New Orleans, San Francisco, Baltimore, and St. Louis, but that they could be deposited in the National bank depositories in Chicago and Cincinnati.

Upon the basis of this ruling the Secretary of the Treasury issued instructions to collectors of customs and internal revenue regarding the acceptance of certified checks in payment of duties on imports and internal revenue taxes. Collectors who deposit with the Treasury or an Assistant Treasurer of the United States were instructed, until further advised, to accept certified checks acceptable through Clearing Houses when drawn in favor of the collector on State and National banks and trust companies. The only collectors who deposit with the Treasurer or an Assistant Treasurer are the ten collectors of custom in the District of Columbia and the nine Sub-Treasury cities. All other collectors, both of customs and internal revenue, deposit in banks.

Charges Triple Discrimination.

The report of the Ways and Means Committee declares that the Treasury Department practice a "triple discrimination." Says the report:

> First, notwithstanding the plain provision of law authorizing the deposit of any public money in all National banks designated for that purpose by the Secretary, the department does not permit Collectors of Customs to deposit their receipts in banks in ten cities where eleven-twelfths of such revenues are collected. The cities discriminated against the Baltimore, Boston, Chicago, Cincinnati, New Orleans, New York, Philadelphia, St. Louis, San Francisco, and Washington.
>
> Second, the department discriminates between these cities, holding that customs receipts might be deposited in Chicago or Cincinnati banks, but not in the banks of the other cities. Nevertheless, the two cities, considered exempt from the restriction, are just like the eight which the department supposes to come under a prohibition of the law.
>
> Third, the department discriminates between Collectors in each of these ten cities, exempting Collectors of Internal Revenue altogether from the restraints imposed by the act of Aug. 6, 1846.

This act provides that Collectors and receivers of public money in the City of Washington must pay their money into the Treasury, and that Collectors and receivers in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, New Orleans, San Francisco, Baltimore, Cincinnati, and St. Louis shall pay to the Treasurers in their respective cities the money they collect.

1910's Receipts $219,000,000.

The report then says:

> In the fiscal year 1910 the Collector of Customs at New York deposited $219,000,000 in the Sub-Treasury, and not a dollar in any bank. That year Collectors of Internal Revenue deposited $25,557,000 in New York banks. Only $194 of internal revenue was deposited in the New York Sub-Treasury and none in the Treasury at Washington, or in the Sub-Treasuries in Philadelphia, Boston, Cincinnati, New Orleans, and San Francisco.

Continuing, the report says:

> Though Collectors of Internal Revenue in Sub-Treasury cities and the District of Columbia do deposit in National banks what they deposit is not checked out of the banks in public disbursements. Instead of having the money disbursed from the banks by checks on them, the Secretary requires these depositary banks to transfer to the Treasury or Sub-Treasuries, and it is checked out from there. In the fiscal year, 1910, internal revenue to the amount of $92,736,730 was deposited in National banks at Sub-Treasury cities, and transferred to the Treasury and Sub-Treasuries before disbursement. Collectors deposit mostly checks, and the banks transfer daily in cash to the Treasury officers the total internal revenue deposits of the preceding day in excess of each bank's allotment of public deposits. The accounts of disbursing officers in Sub-Treasury cities and the District of Columbia are with the Treasurer and Assistant Treasurers, against whom they draw checks. During the financial panic of 1907 this practice of depositing checks in banks and requiring the banks to transfer the amount in cash broke down almost completely, and collections of internal revenue were largely suspended in these cities.
>
> In 1910 Assistant Secretary Andrew inquired of the Solicitor of the Treasury whether deposits to the credit of disbursing officers in National banks may be authorized in Sub-Treasury cities and the District of Columbia. In answer to repeated inquiries of varied form, three adverse opinions issued from the office of the Solicitor. It is obviously desirable that all doubts should be removed as to the power of the Secretary to regulate this simple matter of administrative expediency.

The report says that the Lobeck bill contains all the legislation that is required on the question.

Philadelphia Jewelers Bankrupt.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Feb. 9.—William J. Blair and Harry A. Crawford, individually and trading as Blair & Crawford, one of the oldest retail jewelry firms in the city, to-day were adjudged voluntary bankrupts. The partners admit liabilities of $134,990.40, and place their assets at $47,419.90. Of the firm's indebtedness there are secured claims of $34,632.54, unsecured claims of $84,632.54, and liability on notes $4,042.25. The assets consist of stock valued at $32,000, money due on open accounts, $10,090.28; fixtures, $5,000, and cash, $77.

EAST RIVER IMPROVEMENTS.

Col. Black, U. S. A., Intimates Government Would Spend $33,000,000.

Plans for the development of the East River at a cost of $33,000,000 were laid yesterday before representatives of several commercial bodies in the Dock Commissioner's office, by Col. W. M. Black, U. S. A., Engineer in charge of the First District of Rivers and Harbors Inspection. This money, he suggested, would be spent by the Federal Government, if the New York business men bestirred themselves sufficiently.

He proposed that a channel either 30 or 35 feet deep should be dredged from College Point to the Battery. It should be 500 feet wide, and as many of the tramp freighters now draw 30 feet he recommended the deeper channel, though it would involve rock dredging and would cost twice as much. His estimate for it was $13,000,000.

But before shipping can make much use of the East River the current must be moderated. Col. Black declared that its velocity could be decreased 25 per cent. at Hell Gate, if 500 feet wide channels, 35 feet deep were dredged at the Bronx Kills and Little Hell Gate. This, he reckoned, would cost another $22,000,000.

"These cost figures," the Colonel said, "may at first stagger you. You must decide whether the development of the port is worth it. Except for part of the space on the North River the city's water front is undeveloped and if your business develops where are you going to transact it? It all depends on the pressure you put on Congress what you get. There are sections of the country that get what they want quickly because they go after it."

R. A. C. Smith, Chairman of the State River and Harbor Commission, presided at the meeting and announced there would be a hearing on the matter at the City Hall in a week or so. Among the bodies represented at the gathering yesterday were the Chamber of Commerce, the Merchants Association, Maritime Exchange, Merchants and Manufacturers Association, Harlem Board of Commerce, North Side Board of Trade, and South Brooklyn Board of Trade.

CLEWS GIVES A LUNCHEON.

Entertains President Moore of San Francisco Fair at Press Club.

Henry Clews gave a luncheon yesterday at the Press Club to Charles G. Moore, President of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, to be held in San Francisco in 1915. Mr. Moore has been in Washington and various places in the East to arouse interest in the exposition and spoke enthusiastically of the support the project has received.

He has with him an interesting flag, which was displayed on the wall of the dining room. It is a copy of the flag which California boasted when it was an independent republic. It is of white, with one red star in the upper red corner, with a grizzly bear painted on the field. Speaking of this flag, Mr. Moore said:

"Most people do not know that once California was an independent State. It was in 1846 when the Americans threw off the domination of the Spanish that they set up a regular Government of their own. They seized Sonoma, elected officers, and adopted the bear flag. In a few months Frémont and his army came along and the republic then became territory of the United States. One of the old flags of the republic was preserved in San Francisco, but it was destroyed in the fire, much to the regret of all Californians."

In proposing the health of Mr. Moore Mr. Clews took occasion to reply to the attacks of Senator La Follette on the newspapers. He had experience of many years, he said, with newspaper men, and had always found them honorable and reliable. Then he spoke of the Panama Canal as about to be one of the seven wonders of the world, and asked recognition for the pluck of San Francisco which was ready to finance the exposition such a short time after it had been devastated by the great fire. Mr. Moore, in his response, said that Gov. Dix had told him New York would lead all Nations and States in the money to be voted for representation at the fair. In return he could promise that an excellent site would be set apart for the New York State exhibit.

"Why, the West itself," he said in conclusion, "is an exposition. New Yorkers will be able to go to San Francisco by way of the canal in eleven or twelve days."

POSTAL AGAIN COMPLAINS.

Wants Western Union Restrained from Charging for Addresses.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 9.—Another complaint has been filed with the Public Service Commission by the Postal Telegraph-Cable Company in relation to the charge made by the Western Union Telegraph Company in the receiving and transmission to destination of telegrams handed over to the Western Union by the Postal for points not reached by the latter company.

As a result of a former complaint the commission ordered the Western Union to discontinue the practice of charging for the date and the name of the State and city where the message originated.

The Postal asks that the Western Union be permanently restrained from charging any amount on account of additional words added to messages it transfers to the Western Union. The commission has given the Western Union twenty days in which to file an answer to the new complaint.

LACE FIRMS ARE MERGED.

Einstein, Wolff & Co. Acquire Controlling Interest in Kursheedt Concern.

Einstein, Wolff & Co. of 443 Broadway, importers and manufacturers of laces and embroideries, have purchased the controlling interest in the Kursheedt Manufacturing Company of 356 West Broadway, 448 Broadway, and 143 West Nineteenth Street. Nominally the two firms will remain separate enterprises, Alphonse Kursheedt continuing as President of the Kursheedt Company.

The other officers are shareholders of Einstein, Wolff & Co. President I. B. Einstein of the purchasing company said last night that the producing capacity of the newly acquired plants would be greatly increased. The Einstein, Wolff Company holds the controlling interest in several other concerns manufacturing embroideries, handkerchiefs, laces, and neckwear. This new deal, it is said, involves in the neighborhood of $1,000,000.

TO PROTECT BANK CREDITORS

Treasury Department to See That Every Dollar Is Paid.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—To protect the creditors of the National banks which go into voluntary liquidation, Controller of the Currency Murray to-day changed the practice of his office so that such institutions will be supervised by the Treasury Department until every dollar of indebtedness is paid.

In future, the Controller announced, a bank desiring to go into voluntary liquidation must appoint a liquidating agent or committee, who will report quarterly to the Treasury Department until all debts are wiped out. The regular examinations of National Bank Examiners will continue the same as in the case of a going bank. It had been the policy of the past to discontinue examinations as soon as the stockholders of a National bank voted to liquidate.

China Wool Importation Declines.

Carpet manufacturers are beginning to get a little nervous over the steadily decreasing importations of China wool. This coarse variety of wool is preferred to any other in the fabrication of carpets, and the internal troubles of China have shortened the crop materially. Higher prices would seem inevitable, but the mills say they cannot pay much more than the present prices because the carpet and rug trade is dull and shows little sign of revival for some time to come.

CHARGES CONSPIRACY IN THE BUTTER TRADE

Whitman to Start "John Doe" Proceedings to Learn Whether Exchange Men Are Guilty.

SAYS THE PRICE IS FIXED

Assistant District Attorney De Ford Reports on the Regulation of Prices Which He Believes to be in Violation of the Code.

District Attorney Whitman announced yesterday that "John Doe" proceedings would be started before Magistrate Murphy, in the Tombs Court, next Tuesday to determine whether the members of the New York Mercantile Exchange were guilty of making or attempting to make a combination in this county to regulate the supply and cost of butter. This announcement was made after Assistant District Attorney De Ford, who has been conducting the investigation before the Grand Jury, submitted his report to Mr. Whitman.

Mr. De Ford reports that his information leads him to believe that there is a combination to regulate the sale of butter and eggs, in violation of Section 580 of the penal law. He says there are about 150 persons and firms engaged in the wholesale butter and egg business, and that all these persons or firms are members of the Mercantile Exchange. Mr. De Ford reports that the Exchange fixes and designates the grade, name, or number based upon differentiation in quality, of the several grades of butter and eggs received in this city and county, and continues as follows:

> It provides a room on its premises, at 6 Harrison Street, commonly known as the "Exchange Room" or "Floor of the Exchange," where it "calls" sales—that is to say, where its Superintendent, or his assistant, calls for offers of butter and eggs for sale, and, where such offers are accepted and sales of butter and eggs are made upon the floor of the Exchange, makes a record of the sale made upon the floor of the Exchange pursuant to such calls, which record sets forth the name of the seller, the name of the buyer, the quantity and grade of the commodity sold, and the agreed date of delivery, &c.
>
> It fixes the price or the bases of the price which the receivers of butter and eggs, who are members of the Exchange, shall pay the shippers therefor; it fixes and establishes the price * * * at which the receivers who are members of said Exchange shall sell and do sell butter and eggs to the jobbers thereof; * * * it fixes the price, or the bases of the price, at which the members of said Exchange, who sell butter as jobbers, shall and do sell the same to the retailers thereof, within the City and County of New York. * * *
>
> It appoints Inspectors whose duty it is to pass upon the grades of butter and eggs purchased or sold by its members, whether receivers or jobbers, for the purpose of determining, when any question arises between the shipper and seller with respect thereto, what the grade of a particular consignment of butter is, and the price that should be paid therefor, whether the same was bought and sold upon the open market or pursuant to a continuing contract therefor, hereinafter described.

Says Grades Are Fixed.

Mr. De Ford further states that the Mercantile Exchange fixes and designates, through a committee, the grades of butter and eggs which must be recognized by the members of the Exchange, and that it holds meetings and at the close of every meeting fixes the prices of the various grades and posts them on a blackboard. In describing these meetings, which take place early in the morning and are called "calls," the information says that after the price has been quoted members of the Exchange consider them, and, if they have any objection, state it. He says that William C. Taber, one of the members of the Exchange objected to the prices quoted by the "Butter Price Quotation Committee" on several occasions, as did F. G. Urner, the Vice President of the Exchange.

Regarding this the information says that the butter and egg price quotations made by the committee were adopted by the members of the Exchange, who were receivers in the purchase of butter and eggs from the shippers, and in the sale of butter and eggs to jobbers for their own account or for the account of the shippers, and were followed by the members of the Exchange who were jobbers.

The prices thus fixed, Mr. De Ford says, became the market prices for the several grades of butter and eggs to which the quotations refer, and that the prices became the basis of settlement between the members of the Exchange and shippers in cases where the members purchased butter and eggs from the shippers under an arrangement whereby the members agreed to pay the market price on the day of the arrival of the consignments.

Eggs Too Dear in Fall and Winter.

Mr. De Ford also reports that the members of the Exchange have fixed the prices of butter and eggs so as to depress the price of butter in the Summer months, when the supply is large, with the object of putting supplies into cold storage. According to the information the members increase the price of eggs in the Fall and Winter. Mr. De Ford says there is practically no competition between the receivers and shippers. He declares it to be his belief that these Exchange members conspired to regulate the prices, and such acts were injurious to trade and commerce in butter and eggs and in violation of Section 580 of the penal law.

Several pages of statistics then follow regarding the output from the New York wholesale market.

EGG BOYCOTT EFFECTIVE.

Housekeepers' Co-operative League Cuts Pittsburgh Prices 13 Cents.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Feb. 9.—Several hundred thousand dozen of perfectly good eggs, all labeled "not from storage—41 cents," are left on dealers' hands tonight in Pittsburgh. The same eggs last Monday were sold for 50 cents, and last Saturday they bore the label 54 cents.

The Housekeepers' Co-operative Association boycott threatens to break the price of eggs 5 or 6 cents more by Monday. Dealers confess there has been an unprecedented falling off in the demand. In the East End, where price usually has little effect on demand, but where the influence of the Women's Club organization is strong, sales of eggs, since the boycott started, have declined nearly one half. The butter situation is responding to the women's absent treatment less readily, though the quotation to-day is 38 cents, wholesale. The women are holding out for 35-cent butter and 36-cent eggs.

To-day two department stores made features of 35-cent butter sales, and sold out their stocks.

Court Fines Alexander Korn $6,000.

Judge Hough fined Alexander S. Korn $6,000 in the bankruptcy case of the Ability Cigar Manufacturers Company of 1,208 Avenue A yesterday. Stanley W. Dexter, referee in bankruptcy, reported to the court that on Aug. 3, 1911, he had ordered Korn to turn over to the trustee certain shares of the company, or if sold, $6,000. This Korn failed to do, and so the fine was imposed. The bankrupt company was the successor of the cigar-making firm of Edelman & Korn.

Board Need Not Exercise Expert Knowledge—Other Decisions.

In overruling partially a protest filed by F. W. Myers & Co., the Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday made a statement to the effect that it is not necessary for the board to exercise expert knowledge regarding any subject coming before the tribunal. It is held that the board is to be governed by the testimony adduced upon the trial.

If an official sample is introduced in evidence, it is presumed to be a proper representation of the goods in question unless shown to be erroneous. It is held that it then becomes the duty of the tribunal to determine as a matter of fact whether the claim is supported by the evidence afforded by the sample. Judge Somerville says in his decision that common knowledge may be exercised in reaching a conclusion, but that where expert knowledge is required the board will decline to pass on the issue raised by the protest in the absence of evidence. The issue before the board calling out the above-named ruling related to old jute bagging.

A dispute regarding the classification of belting leather was settled by the board in favor of Arthur W. Hobson. The merchandise, which is cut into leather strips or irregular lengths and widths from belting leather, was returned for duty at the rate of 15 per cent. as dressed upper leather. It was claimed to be entitled to enter at 5 per cent. as belting leather. Judge McClelland upholds the contention and reverses the Collector.

COMMODITY MARKETS.

Cotton Boom Keeps Up—Grains Have Early Gains—Coffee Stronger.

Wheat opened up on the cables reacting with a disappointing export interest and local selling. Corn and oats were active and very firm early helped by further advance in cash grain and more moderate receipts, partially reacting at the close. Provisions were dull and featureless. Cotton continues excited and strong, with heavy new buying absorbing realizing from various sources. Spot markets made further advances at the South. Coffee displays a firmer undertone with support generally credited to interests identified with the Valorization Committee. Cottonseed oil reacts under a less active demand from shorts and bulls, while selling by refiners is noticeable.

WHEAT.

The wheat market advanced at the opening on better English cables, but sold off, and closed at practically the final quotations of the previous day. The advance did not bring any large amount of outside buying, while there seemed to be more or less disposition to take profits on the advance. There was no volume of pressure at any time. Foreign statistics were again bullish. The Australian exports were 1,304,000 bushels and Indian 352,000 bushels, while the Argentine exports of 1,000,000 bushels compared with 496,000 bushels the previous week, but with 2,208,000 bushels last year. The reports from the Argentine indicated rather slow arrivals and no pressure of wheat on the market. The American shipments were 3,816,000 bushels. The indications for the world's exports were 7,800,000 bushels, of which half was from America. The indications were for 4,500,000 bushels less than last year. The very limited near-by shipments to Europe continue to make the European markets relatively strong. The Continental prices were not so encouraging, however, as the English and Continental prices showed some reaction. Crop reports were favorable, and there was some selling of wheat on the continued heavy Minneapolis movement. The Western receipts of wheat have decreased nearly 400,000 bushels compared with last week. The export demand for cash wheat was disappointing. Only six loads were reported. No. 2 red was quoted at $1.05¼, free on board; No. 1 Northern, $1.32½; No. 2 hard Winter, $1.14; No. 1 Manitoba, $1.17⅞.

OTHER GRAINS.

CORN.—Prices for corn were very firm at the opening, the market advancing to within a fraction of the previous high level. The advance brought some realizing and selling for reaction, resulting in a partial loss of the early advance. Western cash markets again were strong and higher. The advance in the market tended to shut out the export interest, and sales of only ten loads were reported. Western receipts were 200,000 bushels less than the previous week, and in five days have decreased 1,200,000 bushels. The American shipments for the week were a little less than the previous week, amounting to 1,482,000 bushels, a decrease of 500,000 bushels compared with the preceding week, and 1,000,000 bushels compared with last year. The close was steady. Cash corn was firm, with No. 2 quoted at 73¼c, free on board; No. 3, 73c, elevator, export, and steamer, 72½c.

OATS.—Trading in oats was quiet, with prices very steady. The opening was strong with corn and on reports of firm cash markets, but later there was a general reaction in values, the market showing a small net gain for the day. Cash oats were firm. Standards and No. 2 white were quoted at 60½c in elevator and No. 3 whites 60c.

PROVISIONS.

The trading in hog products was again small, with prices showing a slight decline for the day. Reports of rather disappointing cash demand was received. Hog receipts were lighter, amounting to only 104,000.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The technical position showed evidence of having been weakened by the short covering recently, and with the attempt of recent buyers, including refining interests, to dispose of oil, prices reacted substantially. At the start there was a liberal inquiry credited to Western sources, and partly to foreign account, which brought about small overnight gains, but offerings were very heavy on this upturn. Crude was officially quoted unchanged at 4.67 to 4.74 in the Valley and 4.60 to 4.67 in the Southeast, but factors were said to be more willing to sell. The list declined late with a comparatively small amount of trading.

COTTON.

The rapidity with which offerings were absorbed was again the chief topic of discussion in the market yesterday and the persistency of the advance has resulted in spreading bullish sentiment. Considerable gossip circulated to the effect that in addition to the activity of spot interests on the buying side there was another bull clique operating with the bears of the early part of this season credited with buying heavily. The tenor of news advices was little changed from the previous day, but the reiteration of advices pertaining to the strength of Southern spot markets served to an important extent to bring about new high levels. At one time the list was approximately ¼c per pound higher than Thursday's final following inconsequential changes at the outset, while the close was within 7 points of best levels so far recorded.

Trade was again in large volume and while spot interests purchased in large blocks at intervals, it was the offerings from these sources that partly served to check the enhancement of values. The Waldorf crowd was on the buying side, and while the South bought and sold, buying orders predominated. A prominent William Street commission house with extensive connections has been selling since the beginning of the week, these sales puzzling the trade, although the general surmise is that large lines are in the process of liquidation. Sentiment in some quarters is manifestly more mixed as despite the argument of the bulls that spinners have contracted for great deal more cotton than generally recognized, it is apparent that the advance has been rapid with talk of heavier Southern offerings and probable lessening in the new inquiry from trade sources, while obviously it will be difficult to conceive a material reduction in acreage when the farmer realizes that a crop over fifteen million five hundred thousand bales is bringing fair prices with the season only half over. Of course, the shortage in foreign crops together with this season yield following two seasons of short supplies are factors to be considered as having influence in the disposition of the ensuing outturn. The attitude of foreigners in buying far in advance, also lessens purchas' - power to some degree.

There were further optimistic trade accounts from domestic print cloth and yarn circles. The cables were rather disappointing at the start and accounted for the hesitation noted in the local market although at Liverpool the spot sales continue liberal while Manchester accounts are favorable and silver shows great strength. The weather in the American South was favorable for movement and farm operations in many sections, but Southern dispatches indicated a big demand for various grades of cotton, the official markets coming unchanged to ¼c advance. Local middlings were up .20 at 10½c, but still below a satisfactory delivery basis. New York stocks are decreasing, totaling only 151,000 bales against 269,000 a year ago.

The week-end statistics were rather bearish and partly responsible for the closing recessions. Spinners takings were estimated at 360,000 bales, against 392,000 last week, and 338,000 a year ago; intosight 435,000; since Sept. 1, 12,176,000, against 10,134,000 a year ago. The visible will probably increase about 75,000 bales, against 35,000 gain last week, and 117,000 decrease a year ago, aggregating 5,000,000, against 3,994,000 in 1911.

COFFEE.

Coffee ruled firm, closing near top, 6 to 10 points up. Sales aggregated 80,758 bags. Havre, on late positions, ran below prices for the same months here, considering the difference in grading. Havre market was unchanged to ¼f lower, Hamburg was unchanged to ¼ pfennig decline, and Brazil unchanged. Cost and freight offers from Brazil were somewhat irregular, with standard grades slightly higher, while selected coffees were a little easier.

Spot coffee steady, unchanged; 14¼c for Rio No. 7. Contract prices follow:

CONDITIONS OF TRADE.

Commenting on general business conditions, Dun's Review says:

The volume of business continues large, although there is little disposition to operate in long-range anticipation of future requirements. The coldest Winter in many years, while creating a sustained demand for Winter merchandise, serves generally to interfere with the distribution of goods, and this causes some interruption to a liberal trade movement. The effect was plainly visible in the early January statistics of railroad earnings; for the month, however, the loss was only 1.2 per cent. The strike at Lawrence is less troublesome, although some apprehension is felt in the trade as to deliveries; it is significant, however, that notwithstanding this, wool continues very strong and active. The dry goods markets generally are moving with more freedom and the outlook continues to improve. Leather is only fairly active. Hides are strong in all markets of the world. The New England shoe factories report that new business develops readily, while existing orders are sufficient to keep them running for a considerable period. After some weakness cotton became active and strong. Wheat has been irregular. The commercial, industrial, and financial situation in this country reveals a condition of strength and readiness for advance if only those remaining causes of hesitancy and doubt, disturbing to enterprise, were out of the way. Bank clearings this week increased 2.9 per cent. over last year. Foreign commerce at New York during the most recent week amounted to $39,043,541, as against $36,724,769 in 1911, and $29,819,080 in 1910; exports were $16,418,381, being $6,206,779 less than the imports, which showed an increase of $3,544,048 over last year.

Bradstreet's says:

Though trade lacks snap and is devoid of uniformity the undercurrents are in the direction of slow but steady expansion. Buyers talk optimistically enough, but they purchase very conservatively. However, the week has brought forth a further slight increase in jobbing and manufacturing lines, and while some centres, particularly those situated in the South, note the prevalence of unsatisfactory conditions, lighter orders, and poorer prospects than at this time last year, the fact is that trade in the leading Western and Eastern dry-goods markets has improved. Cotton goods are firmer all around, jobbers are doing more, and they in turn are making heavier purchases, but the retail dealer, as a general rule, appears to have assumed the role of a consistent conservative. Such being the case, buying is of the small lot, but frequent type, which means more packages and presumably, restricted profits. Cotton yarns are more active and higher, worsted yarns are very firm, sales of wool make up a fair volume, but millinery, while in good demand, does not present a very favorable comparison with last year. Groceries and drugs are in better request, and, in fact, essential staples have the call.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

J. C. VREELAND BUILDING COMPANY.—The J. C. Vreeland Building Company of 1 Madison Avenue has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $92,799 and nominal assets of $70,883. Among the assets are accounts, $31,228; mortgages on property on East 240th Street, Woodlawn, $23,000; four lots on East 234th Street and East 240th Street, $5,984; plant in this city, Katonah, N. Y., and Newark, $6,327; horses, mules, and wagons, $3,132, and 29,663 shares of stock of the Swastika Mountain Top Mining Company, which cost $1,286. Among the creditors are George Brown & Co. of Newark, $48,800, money loaned; B. A. & G. N. Williams, $4,064; Merrill Company, $3,091; Vermont Marble Company, $2,548; Waterbury Lumber and Coal Company, $2,385; A. B. See Electric Elevator Company, $2,423, and W. H. Jackson, $2,383. The Sheriff received two attachments against the company on Thursday for $17,300, and attached some bonds and mortgages valued at $23,000, which are mentioned in the schedules.

A. W. DE LONG & CO.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against A. W. De Long & Co., (corporation,) manufacturer of house trim at 88 Alexander Avenue, Bronx, by these creditors: Iroquois Door Company, $11,339; Charles F. Fischer Lumber Company, $40, and H. Herrmann Lumber Company, $13.

SIEGFRIED BLUMENKROHN.—Siegfried Blumenkrohn of 575 Riverside Drive, formerly a large dealer in women's wearing apparel in Broadway and in Thirty-fourth Street, late President of the House of Fashion at 42 West Thirty-fourth Street, which is in bankruptcy, filed an individual petition in bankruptcy yesterday with liabilities of $1,385,076 and no available assets. He has one share of stock of the House of Fashion and 900 shares of the S. Blumenkrohn Company, both of which are out of business. His liabilities look large on paper, but the actual liabilities are very much less, as $1,074,375 are contingent on leases of stores which he formerly occupied and $181,000 are on bond and mortgages on real estate. This is his third time in bankruptcy. A petition was filed against him on Aug. 23, 1899, and he received a discharge, and a second petition was filed against him on July 31, 1910, which was dismissed. Among the creditors are Bernard J. Ludwig, $31,070, secured; Louise Bach, $42,000, secured; Lucy Bach, $40,000, secured; estate of Albert Friedlander, $41,145, award on arbitration; Philip Schiff, $10,000; Max Rubel & Co., $6,821; Morris Kaufman, $7,327, and Jacob Vogel, $6,898.

MICHAEL MARRONE.—Michael Marrone, a contractor of 658 East 221st Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $277,090 and assets of $8,021, consisting of real estate on Wales Avenue, $8,000, mortgaged for $7,750; two shares of stock of the Marrone Construction Company, $20, and cash in a trust company, $1. Of his liabilities $256,750 are secured by mortgages on real estate formerly owned by him at 342 to 346 East 110th Street, 335 to 341 East 118th Street, 336 and 338 East 118th Street, 326 and 328 East 115th Street, 2,132 Second Avenue, and 2,248 First Avenue. Among the creditors are the Italian-American Trust Company, $87,000 secured, and $16,000 unsecured; American Mortgage Company, $76,000, secured, and American Missionary Association, $30,000, secured. Mr. Marrone was a contractor for twenty years, and is said to have invested his profits in real estate which did not prove profitable.

GERARD P. TOLLMANN.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Gerard P. Tollmann, maker of women's garments, of 8 West Forty-fifth Street, by these creditors: Greenwich Bank, $840; Emil Gunther, $300, and Walter H. Baker, $73. Liabilities are $7,000 and assets $2,000.

TERMINAL HAT COMPANY.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Terminal Hat Company, dealer in men's hats, at 50 Church Street, by these creditors: Hirschberg & Co., $474, and Henry C. Danciger, $35.

FLORENCE I. BURCHARD.—Florence I. Burchard, milliner and dressmaker, under the style of Florence, at 12 East Forty-fourth Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $3,605 and assets of $1,098.

NATHAN MOSS.—Nathan Moss, liquor dealer, of 520 Ninth Avenue, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $9,240 and nominal assets of $6,503, the principal items of which are stock, $1,189; accounts, $2,432, and unliquidated claims, $2,174.

FRANK KROPACEK.—Frank Kropacek, saloon keeper of 320 East Seventieth Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $3,080, to the Franklin Brewing Company of Brooklyn, and assets of $10 in stock.

WILLIAM B. HALLENBECK, sales manager, of Yonkers, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities $3,617 and assets $31.

JOSEPH GOLUB.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Joseph Golub, dealer in general merchandise at 89 East Broadway, by these creditors: Alex. A. Bernstein, $252; Meyer Sabsevitz, $400, and Joseph Schulman, $500. Assets are $2,000.

EMIL F. BEGIEBING.—Judge Hand has dismissed the petition in bankruptcy filed on Oct. 26 against Emil F. Begiebing, formerly President of the Toilettes Fashion Company of 238 Fifth Avenue, on consent of his creditors, two in number.

HARRIS SHAPIRO.—Judge Hand has dismissed the petition filed on Dec. 26 against Harris Shapiro, manufacturer of gas and oil stoves at 246 Cherry Street, on consent of creditors.

STEINFELDER & CO.—Schedules in bankruptcy of Steinfelder & Co., manufacturers of women's wear at 1,429 St. Nicholas Avenue, show liabilities of $3,274 and assets of $1,479.

LUDWIG ZODIKOW.—Deputy Sheriff Burnes has received an attachment against Ludwig Zodikow, who was a manufacturer of furniture at 334 to 340 Stanton Street, in favor of the Mutual Alliance Trust Company for $3,001 on a note. The attachment was granted on the ground that he had transferred his property. When the Sheriff went there to serve the attachment he was informed that the business had been transferred to a corporation known as L. Zodikow, Incorporated, on Jan. 6, 1912, with a capital stock of $10,000. It was stated that Mr. Zodikow had transferred the seven-story factory property at 334 to 340 Stanton Street and other real estate heretofore valued at $200,000, subject to mortgages of $125,000.

Mr. Dooley on the Education of Woodrow Wilson

Hogan and Hennessy Talk It Over:

"I see be th' pa-apers that Mar-rtin Dooley is goin' to tell in The Sunday Times all about th' diggin' iv th' turrble chasm between Woodrow Wilson and Col. Har-rvey, iv Har-rvey's Weekly," remarked Mr. Hogan.

"Yis," said Mr. Hennessy. "Dooley has taken upon himsilf that trimindous an' unparalleled task. To-morrow he will seek to give a full account iv all th' manoeuvres an' a full list iv th' casualties, in that historical hand-to-hand frindship. He does it, ye see, because whole squads iv Times readers have been layin' down their pa-apers an' eggspoons at breakfast and goin' star-rk mad in th' prisince iv their astonished wives and childer, all because they tried to figure out whether Col. Har-rvey was Woodrow's best frind or his landlord.

"An' th' matter surely needs ixplainin', Hogan. Ye know what occurred, don't ye?

" 'See, Woodrow, darlint, I'm boostin' ye like a little hayro!' shouts th' inthusiastic Colonel. 'Leggo me coat collar!' yells Woodrow. 'I'm raisin' ye to th' topmost pinnicle iv political fame,' says th' Colonel. 'Indade,' says Woodrow; 'couldn't ye do it betther if ye rifrained fr'm sittin' on me chist? I know ye've changed th' readin' matther iv Har-rvey's Weekly, George, into a "Wilson—that's all," advertisement, but if ye love me, George, bate it.'

"Thereupon poor George staggers sadly away in th' diriction iv Franklin Square t' can th' nixt for-rty issues iv Har-rvey's Weekly an' Woodrow promenades along Main Street, Trinton, New Jersey, rimarkin' now an' thin dreamily: 'Hello, Pinnsylvania Av'noo!'

"That's th' turrible head-on collision bitween frinds that Mar-rtin Dooley will seek to ixplain in The Sunday Times, Hogan. P'raps he may even go so far as t' tell ye why Har-rvey's Weekly may inny day come out wid this announcement: 'Owin' to a horr'ble an' most persistent tippygraphical irror in minny iv our racint issues we riferred to one Woodrow Wilson, late Prisident iv Princeton Univarsity, as our candidate f'r President iv th' United States.

" 'People iv th' United States, we apologize! We didn't mane it, honest! Woodrow Wilson is our candidate, not f'r Prisidint iv this country, but f'r a position iv difficulty, impor-rtance an' danger in th' nixt Yale-Princeton football match—th' position iv football!' "

"Say," began Hogan, "Till me this, Hinnissy. If Wilson—"

"That's all," said Hennessy. "Here's Mar-rtin Dooley."

Stocks Very Dull and Few Prices Move Beyond Narrowest Limits.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY UP

Preferred Rises Further on Dividend Increase—Banks' Cash Loss May Reach $10,000,000.

Trading on the Stock Exchange yesterday was as lifeless as on any day in many weeks. The increase announced in the dividend on Southern Railway preferred from 2 per cent. to 4 per cent. was the most interesting specific development of the day, coming as it did as a reminder of the progress which this property has made within the last few years during which the South has enjoyed a very considerable degree of prosperity. This increase in dividend had been anticipated, but the price of the stock yesterday continued to reflect the improved condition by a further net gain in excess of a point. Several of the Tobacco issues showed sharp recessions in price, and in a few other of the less active issues changes of a point or more occurred, but as a whole the movement in prices was commensurate with the small volume of trading.

Exclusive of the $1,750,000 gold withdrawn yesterday for export to Paris the banks have lost cash on this week's movements to an amount variously estimated at from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000. The chances, therefore, are much in favor of a further reduction in surplus reserve, and this quite possibly may bring about firmer money market rates, although the effect of the loss reported last week has been slight. A continuation of this loss, however, will naturally have cumulative effect upon interest rates. The fact that we have sent out over $8,000,000 gold within ten days, in addition to transfers made to the Pacific Coast, with practically no effect upon money rates, shows clearly that our market had been greatly oversupplied with cash. The loss of this gold lessens by so much the pressure of funds upon the market, but until interest rates have been advanced as a result there will be little or no lessening of the demand from banking institutions for securities as a substitute for the employment of funds in the call or time money market. It is one of the unfortunate things about a period of superabundant money ease that it suggests the employment of banking funds in channels which are somewhat apart from those to which bank deposits should normally flow. The purchase of bonds and short-term notes on a large scale to escape the unremunerative employment of banking funds in the time money market solves to some extent the question of making deposits pay, but the system is not without its disadvantage. In this connection it is gratifying to realize that this market has in late months profited to a larger extent than ever in the past by the opportunities for profitable employment of funds abroad.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Drop in Lehigh Coal Stock.

People who expected great things of the Lehigh Valley Railroad's separation of its coal property through the organization of a sales company made a slight revision in the estimated value of the new shares yesterday. On the Curb, where these shares are dealt in, there was a decline yesterday of 12 points, from 192 to 180. The transactions amounted to 610 shares, and at the close the stock had recovered a third of its earlier loss.

A Prediction Come True.

Men who buy and sell shares in large lots usually boast that they pay no attention to values, and that they never read annual reports, ticker gossip, or statisticians' analyses. A speculator who bought or sold in the basis of real values back of the shares traded in would either require an enormous amount of working capital or would starve between trades while waiting for the public to come around to his view. In the long run, of course, quotations tend to find a level determined by values. In the case of the Southern Railway market writers have been pointing out on frequent occasions in the past four years that the company earnings justified a restoration of dividends on the preferred stock just as soon as the discount on bonds incurred in the course of the Southern's inopportune financing operations early in 1907 had been wiped out, or considerably reduced. When the issue was put on a 2 per cent. basis it was said that this would be increased as rapidly as consistent with operating results. With the second advance in the rate yesterday the man who bought Southern two years ago on its earnings was placed in a position to realize on his faith in this property.

Drop in P. Lorillard.

Since the new tobacco shares went on the Exchange their movements have been wide, and after the first sharp advances which followed the listings, their tendency has been downward. An instance of the wide range which has occurred in a few weeks was furnished yesterday by P. Lorillard, which sold down to 168, a net loss of 5 points, and a loss of 21 points from the high level of 189, reached when the stock first appeared on the exchange. The downward course of the tobacco issues has been punctuated by occasional sharp discoveries, but since the failure of the directors to declare a dividend on the new common stock when the regular preferred dividend was provided for early in the week, the common has been under considerable selling pressure, although there has been an apparent buying power under the market, which has effected substantial recoveries after each sharp recession. Another of the disintegrated stocks appeared for the first time on the Exchange yesterday when the new American Snuff preferred sold at 99¼ and 99. The old preferred sold at 108.

Coal Wage Increases $30,000,000.

The January bonus awarded to the anthracite workers by the United States Commissioner of Labor amounted to 7 per cent. of their month's pay, and with the flat increase in wages of 10 per cent. allowed to the men by the Strike Commission of 1902, makes their rate of pay in January 17 per cent. higher than the wages prevailing before the Roosevelt Commission brought the operators and their men together. The present agreement expires with March, and the men are asking a further increase which would bring their pay at the present rate of bonus to 37 per cent. above the rate prevailing in 1902. The total benefit to the mine workers from the bonus system, which is based on a sliding scale of a per cent. share in the profits on every advance of 5 cents in the average price a ton above $4.50, has amounted to $30,000,000 since 1902. This is aside from the 10 per cent. flat increase in wages.

Movements of Averages.

The average prices of twenty-five representative railroad stocks on the Exchange and a like number of industrials made these changes yesterday, and are compared with the movements of the previous day and with corresponding days last year.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

In "The Story of 1911," a booklet issued by the Fourth National Bank, the principal events of the past year are reviewed.

The Bank of New York has arranged to send an additional $100,000 gold coin to Porto Rico, making a total of $150,000 for the present movement.

Millett, Roe & Hagen are offering at 100 and interest $300,000 Hudson Companies convertible 6 per cent. secured gold notes, due Oct. 15, 1913.

The Union First Mortgage Company has increased its surplus by paying into the treasury $150,000. The capital is now $100,000 and the surplus $150,000.

George C. Van Tuyl, State Superintendent of Banks, has approved the application of the Mercantile Safe Deposit Company of New York City to increase its capital from $100,000 to $450,000.

Henry D. King, Secretary of the American Surety Company, has been made resident Vice President and manager for Long Island. With him will be associated Edward Poole as assistant manager and John McIntyre.

Application has been made to the Stock Exchange to list $351,000 additional 5 per cent. collateral trust and first lien bonds of 1923 of the Tri-City Railway and Light Company and $1,350,000 additional general consolidated and first mortgage 5 per cent. bonds due 1937 of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad Company.

At a meeting of the Directors of the Merchants' Association of New York, Henry R. Towne was re-elected President. William A. Marble was elected First Vice President, succeeding Gustav H. Schwab, retired; E. H. Outerbridge, Second Vice President, and Albert Plaut, third Vice President. Four vacancies were filled by the election of Edward D. Page, Henry Morganthau, Waldo H. Marshall, and William Fellowes Morgan.

STOCKS OUT OF TOWN

General List Exhibits a Firm Tone on Lessened Volume of Trading.

DECLINE IN QUAKER OATS

Sales Made on the Chicago Exchange at 220, a Loss of Five Points.

Almost without exception stocks quoted on other Exchanges were firm in Friday's trading.

At Baltimore yesterday Consolidated Power common, for the first time, was on a higher price level than the preferred, notwithstanding that the preferred is a 6 per cent. stock and the common is on a 5 per cent. basis, though the indications point confidently to an increase in the common stock. A fairly good quantity of both the common and preferred are now held in England. Consolidated Power made a new high record at 90⅛.

Most of the coppers were buoyant on the Boston Exchange yesterday. Royal went up to 24¼, the highest point it has reached in years. Franklin was one of the most active stocks on the board. North Butte, Copper Range, Hancock, Tamarack, and United States Smelting were among the leaders.

Sears-Roebuck again was the leader on the Chicago Stock Exchange Friday in trading which resulted mostly in moderate advances. The mail-order shares opened unchanged at 148, but rose, on demand from the same interests identified with the recent advance, to a good fraction above 150, closing with a net gain of 2 points. There were small offerings of Quaker Oats common, and sales were made at 220, a decline of 5 points from the last previous transaction. The disposals were understood to be of speculative holdings of buyers on the recent upward movement in expectation of a "melon." Elsewhere advances were mostly small, fractional gains occurring in Swift, Pneumatic Tool, Chicago Railways Series 2s, McCrum-Howell common, and Hart, Schaffner & Marx preferred.

The whole local list displayed a firm tone at Philadelphia, entirely ignoring a further break in American Cement from 4 to 2 on light offerings. York Railways preferred reached a new high record, selling up to 31, an overnight gain of a full point. Philadelphia Electric was also in good demand, 18 being bid. Washington & Virginia Railway was still in some demand during the morning, but later became dull. There was evidence of considerable short interest in United States Steel and others of the arbitrage group.

Yesterday's transactions on the various out-of-town Exchanges, as reported to THE NEW YORK TIMES, were as follows:

| Pig tin, futures | 192 | 0 | 0 | 192 | 10 | 0 |

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

An excellent market for odd lots existed on the Consolidated Stock Exchange throughout the session. The trading list was broad considering the extent of the transactions, sales of 28,390 shares being distributed among forty-two different stocks. Missouri, Kansas & Texas common sold at 27⅛ and Pressed Steel Car at 32½, with no transactions in these two stocks reported on the New York Stock Exchange. Comparative quietness marked the trading in the standard stocks most of the day. Exceptional strength shown by the Hill shares failed to exert much influence upon the general list.

London Prices Fall on Profit-Taking—Grand Trunks Strong—Americans Drop.

COPPER STOCKS ADVANCE

Paris Market Closes Irregular—Trading Dull on Berlin Boerse, Where Canadian Pacifics Weaken.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Saturday, Feb. 10.—The London Times in its City article to-day says:

"The quotations for day-to-day loans and short fixtures were unaltered yesterday. The actual rates for money till to-day or Monday were not unfrequently above them, the demand for accommodation being very strong, owing to the pressure due to tax collection. The Bank of England did a large business in short bills at 3½ per cent. discount. The rates were higher for two and three months' paper, of which more was offered than the market found it convenient to take. The Bank has received a good deal of bar gold during the last few days. It received a fairly large total in bars from the Continent, chiefly from Austria. With a few notable exceptions the trend of prices in the stock markets yesterday was in a downward direction. Consols relapsed ⅛, and home railway stocks showed a further and almost general decline. French operators sold South African shares and also Rio Tinto, but the latter and other copper securities were much higher later on in the day. Grand Trunk Railway stock rose on the dividend statement, and there was a sharp recovery on Mexican Railway shares. The ordinary American market was steady at a slightly higher level. The Berlin markets presented a cheerless appearance, speculation ignoring the clearing up of the political horizon. The weakness of Canadian Pacific shares was a feature of the market, and was ascribed to the reported congestion of traffic in Western Canada. Other markets were sympathetically affected, a further unfavorable factor being the selling of Mehidional Railway shares for a Milan account. The closing prices were about the lowest of the day on rumors of an impending failure.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—The stock market was quietly firm in the forenoon. Grand Trunk shares were strong on the dividend announcement and copper stocks advanced on bullish American statistics, but home rails ruled irregular. The whole market dropped in the afternoon on profit-taking.

American securities opened steady and a fraction higher, but the market soon eased off in sympathy with the weakness in Canadian Pacific, which was due to Continental selling. Later Canadian Pacific recovered, but the rest of the list moved narrowly, and the closing was undecided.

Money, 3¼@3½ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills was 3½ per cent., and for three months' bills, 3⅝@3¾ per cent.

Gold premium at Madrid, 7.90; at Lisbon, 10.

PARIS, Feb. 9.—The Bourse opened firm, but closed irregular.

Closing, 3 per cent. rentes, 95f. 85c. for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f. 25½c. for checks.

Private discount rate, 3⅛ per cent.

BERLIN, Feb. 9.—Trading was dull on the Boerse to-day. Canadian Pacific closed lower.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 50 pfennigs for checks.

Money, 4 per cent.

Private discount rate, 3⅞ per cent.

FUEL SHORTAGE CONTINUES.

Anthracite Supplies Smallest in Years—Complaints of Railroad Service.

The Coal Age will say to-day:

The fuel shortage continues unchanged, except possibly a further tightening of the situation, particularly in the East. Anthracite supplies are estimated to be smaller than at any time for a number of years and spot coals of all grades are commanding good prices and are eagerly sought for storage purposes. Complaints of railroad service are general, which condition is seriously affecting production at the mines.

Low temperatures in the East, causing a heavy consumption, together with the slow movement, both by rail and water, are making the situation acute at some points. Many large consumers are now anxious to store in anticipation of a possible strike April 1, but are having trouble in finding any free coal.

In the Pittsburgh district bituminous is in good demand, with prices hard, and coke holding firm under an unusually heavy production. An overproduction of slack in the Ohio fields, has caused a break in prices on this grade, although market in other sizes continues strong, with the dealers in command. Poor transportation facilities are curtailing production at the mines to about 50 or 60 per cent. capacity, and as a result there is no spot coal to be had. The non-union fields to the south are preparing for a heavy production in event of a shutdown at the organized mines on the expiration of the present agreement.

Prices in the Middle West are off slightly, but still above normal. Stocks are materially reduced, the movement slow, and demands urgent, with only sufficient tonnage to meet the requirements for immediate consumption. Court orders have been issued governing the movement on some of the railroads, and others have been compelled to confiscate fuel. The Western market remains quiet and unchanged.

THE OUTSIDE SECURITIES.

British-American Off on Slackened Trading.

British-American Tobacco, the activity of which had been the feature of Curb trading earlier in the week, sold only 12,000 shares yesterday, little more than one-quarter of the business done in this issue on Thursday. The price sagged off from 19¼ at the opening to 18⅞, and sold as high as 19¾, the close being even with the opening. After some minor movements among the coppers, most of the important issues closed even with the opening levels.

⁂

THE OVERCROWDED DOCKS.

Tomkins Calls Attention to Court Comment by Way of Illustration.

Dock Commissioner Calvin Tomkins called attention yesterday to an injunction suit that has just been decided in the United States District Court as an illustration of the congested condition of the port. The Lehigh Valley Railroad Company has a lease of the southern side of Pier 34, at the foot of Canal Street, and to seventy-five feet of the bulkhead at Pier 33. This pier is a public one, and a number of lighters moor at it with the result that there is at times so much congestion that the railroad shipping is interfered with.

The railroad company sought an injunction to restrain the Waller Lighterage Company and others, who have permits to use Pier 33 from the Dock Department, from mooring their craft in such a way as to hamper its traffic. In granting the injunction Judge Hough remarked, "The notorious truth is that many slips in New York Harbor (and this may be one of them) are overburdened with business; more vessels really need to use them than can be accommodated, but this does not change lawful contractual rights."

The Dock Department considers that it thus has the support of the Federal Court in the contention that something must be done shortly to relieve the present conditions.

J. H. Cahill Made Sheriff by Dix.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 9.—John H. Cahill of Syracuse was appointed by Gov. Dix to-day as Sheriff of Onondaga County in place of Frederick Wyker, who was removed from office yesterday. Mr. Cahill is a Democrat and a prominent business man of Syracuse.

TELEGRAMS STIR PACKERS.

Defendants in Chicago Trial Wonder How Government Got Them.

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—Fifty telegrams, sent by Swift & Co. to representatives in Eastern cities, giving instructions in regard to shipments and margins, were read to the jury in the packers' trial today. These, the Government declares, tend to show that prices were fixed at the Chicago offices.

There was a stir among the defendants once when the Government's counsel, Mr. Godman, inadvertently started to read two telegrams, dated September, 1911, which was outside the period, covered by the indictment. They were at a loss to understand where the Government obtained the messages. Later they learned that the messages were found in the New York office by secret service men.

Many of the messages, although sent over the company's private wires, were in code and had to be deciphered by Lee M. Lester, Assistant Manager of the Beef Department. Counsel for the defendants objected to the introduction of the telegrams, but Judge Carpenter allowed the Government to put all in evidence.

One telegram, which bore the typewritten signature of Charles H. Swift, one of the defendants, read:

> Chicago, 7-22-10.—No. 1 Boston. For your information, expect show about plus 20 beef Philadelphia this week. Small plus New York and prospects improved beef business and results next week. Very much disappointed indications Boston minus 50 to 70. Some cars already closed minus 80 to 90. Have reduced Boston shipments to 600 cattle. Other points throughout country showing improved volume right at plus margins. Have you any suggestions?
> CHARLES H. SWIFT.

"No. 1" was code for "beef department."

Another telegram, sent to New York and Philadelphia representatives of the company in July, 1910, read:

> And house in your jurisdiction not getting cost for beef, get after them. Get results asked. No. 1.

The defense succeeded in having the name of Mr. Swift stricken from the telegram because there was no evidence that the typewritten signature was authorized.

Many of the messages were approved or signed by Francis A. Fowler, head of the Beef Department of Swift & Co., and a defendant in the case. Judge Carpenter reserved his ruling on a motion made by the defense to have his name kept out of the record.

One telegram, addressed to the company's representative at Baltimore, dated July 22, 1910, read:

> We have regulated shipments to every point in your territory this week and expect good results. SWIFT & CO.

National Biscuit Makes Returns.

With the declaration of the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. on the preferred and common stock, the National Biscuit Company made public yesterday its balance sheet as of Jan. 31, 1912. It shows assets of $66,002,677 and a balance on hand of $11,240,631. The surplus for the year was $4,673,468, out of which regular dividends of $3,782,000 were paid on the $54,040,000 of stock. There was also an extra dividend of 2 per cent. paid on the common stock during the year, calling for $584,720 more.

Liberal Participation and 6% Interest

offered for two years $300,000 loan to manufacturing company. Loan secured by manufacturing plant and buildings, two whole blocks in extent in the city of Philadelphia; connected by siding with Pennsylvania Railroad. Physical assets appraised by certified public accountants at over $400,000. Company owns basic patents the value of which is not included in this appraisal. No bonded debt. Every share of stock will be hypothecated for loan. Minimum annual income for 15 years, from royalty contracts now closed, is over $75,000. Estimated net income from all sources for the next year is over $200,000. Business covers manufactured products of every day consumption. No competition possible. Company prefers to raise capital requirements through a loan rather than through an issue of preferred stock, as net profits from business under consideration are sufficient to pay interest and retire loan before maturity.

HARRIMAN DIRECTORS IN U. S. EXPRESS

Four Elected to Represent Estate, Which Acts as a Close Corporation.

MERGER TALK MEETS DENIAL

It Was to Conform to Sherman Law That Other Companies Sold United States Stock to E. H. Harriman.

The Harriman estate, which owns 22,028 shares of United States Express stock for which the late E. H. Harriman paid $2,250,000 about four years ago, have elected four representatives to the directorate of the company. About 20,000 shares of the Harriman holdings were acquired from the Adams and American Express Companies, which had long held powerful influences in the United States Express affairs. It was the complaint of the minority shareholders that the ownership of stock by competing companies and their representation in the United States board had resulted in the exploiting of the company for the benefit of its rivals, and it was the threat of counsel for these shareholders to carry their case before the Federal authorities under the Sherman law which caused the American and Adams Companies to part with their shares.

Since then the board of the United States Express Company has contained no direct Harriman representative, although the Platts were known to be allied with the Harriman interests. It was Frank H. Platt who tok title to the shares which E .H. Harriman bought. Although it was to escape threatened action under the Sherman law that the American and Adams sold their stock, the entrance of the four Harriman representatives into the express directorate was made the basis yesterday for talk of a probable merger of the company with some of its rivals. This was promptly denied.

The Harriman representatives elected were C. C. Tegethoff, Mrs. E. H. Harriman's secretary; Joseph W. Harriman, President of the Harriman National Bank; A. G. Hackstaff, Vice President of the Illinois Central, and W. H. Averill, a nephew of Mrs. Harriman.

They succeed in the board George H. Burritt, who had held office only since last December; Chauncey H. Crosby, son-in-law of the late Senator Platt, and in the company as Vice President and general manager; Albert B. Boardman, law partner of Frank H. Platt and Secretary of the company. The fourth place filled was the vacancy left by the death of Senator Platt. Mr. Tegethoff was elected Secreary.

The board of the express company is self-perpetuating. No meeting of stockholders has been held for half a century. Minority stockholders representing two-thirds of the actual shareholders and about 40 per cent. of the stock, tried for several years under the leadership of Eugene G. Kremer and James Leslie Pinks as counsel to oust the Platt management. They showed that the Platts had in their names only a few hundred shares.

A suit in equity brought by a stockholder up State to compel the board to call a stockholders' meeting is still pending before the courts.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The Consular and Trade Report will note the following foreign trade opportunities. Further information regarding these may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of item referred to.

8,079. PORT IMPROVEMENTS.—A Minister of a foreign Government has forwarded a set of plans and specifications of a proposed harbor works to be undertaken in the country which he represents. Sealed proposals for these works will be received until April 20. The approximate expenditure will be over $11,000,000.

8,080. PETROLEUM.—A business man in Italy informs an American Consulate that he desires to represent American exporters of petroleum. He is located in a city of some 100,000 inhabitants.

8,081. SAWMILL MACHINERY AND EQUIPMENT.—An American Consul reports that a branch of a foreign Government intends to build three new sawmills in a section of the country.

8,082. PRINTING OFFICE AND EQUIPMENT.—An American consular officer reports that authority has been given to an official of a foreign Government to enter into a contract at once for the construction of a new building for a Government printing office, which will be modern in every detail, and also for the equipment with complete presses and machinery for the same.

8,083. SAILING VESSEL.—A report from an American Consul in a Latin-American country states that a resident of his district wishes to purchase a two-masted schooner of American registry of about 100 tons net, copper-sheathed bottom, to draw not more than ten feet at the most.

8,084. TECHNICAL BOOKS.—A young man in a Mediterranean country informs an American consulate that he desires to buy books written by Americans and treating on the following subjects: Mathematics up to and including trigonometry, surveying, wood, iron, and stone construction, railroad and bridge building, construction of mines, especially deep mines; geology, and sewer construction.

8,085. PAPER TOWELS AND WASTE PAPER.—An American Consul in England reports that a firm of paper merchants in his district is interested in paper towels and would like to get in touch with manufacturers of these articles in the United States. This firm also has quantities of paper shavings, free from mechanical waste, and waste paper, which it offers for sale in the United States.

8,086. MOTOR BOAT. — A report from an American Consul in a Latin-American country states that a club in his district is about to buy a motor boat. It had practically decided to purchase one of a foreign make, but has now decided to wait long enough to give an American boat builder a chance to bid.

8,087. UNIVERSITY CATALOGUES. — The American Consul at Valetta, Malta, requests that American colleges and universities, especially agricultural and technical institutions, send their last annual catalogues to his office. He writes that there have been several inquiries about American schools recently, but he was handicapped by not being certain about technical requirements and amount of fees, &c.

8,088. ELECTRIC CABLE CARRIERS.—Consul James E. Dunning of Havre, supplementing a previous report, which was published as foreign trade opportunity No. 7,154, reports that the French firm of contractors would like to hear from American manufacturers of electrically propelled systems for carrying building material. In building the 1,148-foot dry dock, which will begin in about eighteen months, six or more carriers will be used.

8,089. CALIFORNIA DRIED APRICOTS.—A broker in food products in a European country has informed an American Consulate that he desires the names of American wholesale merchants handling California dried apricots, a demand for which, it is stated, exists at the present time.

BANKRUPTCY SALES.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, SOUTHern District of New York.—In Bankruptcy.—In the matter of I. BERNARD EDELSTEIN, Bankrupt.—No. 15,889.

To the creditors of the above-named bankrupt:

Please take notice that the trustee herein has filed a petition setting forth among other things the possession of certain property consisting of stock of gents' furnishing goods belonging to the estate of the above-named bankrupt, and that he has received an offer of seven hundred ($700.00) dollars for stock contained therein and an additional sum of five hundred ($500.00) dollars for the fixtures, and asks that a meeting of creditors be called to consider said offer, as will more fully appear by said petition on file herein.

You are hereby notified that a meeting of creditors will be held before me at my office, No. 2 Rector Street, in the City, County, and State of New York, on the seventeenth day of February, 1912, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon, and pass upon the offer received, and for such other business as may properly come before said meeting, and in the event of said offer being rejected the said property will be sold at public auction under the direction of Simon S. Hamburger, trustee, by Charles Shongood, U. S. Auctioneer, at No. 1 Church Street, New York, N. Y., on the twentieth day of February, 1912, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon.

The trustee reserves the right to withdraw any of said property from sale unless it shall bring at least seventy-five per centum of the appraised value.

Said property will be open for inspection at the above premises on February 15th and 16th, 1912, between the hours of 9 A. M. and 5 P. M.

For further information apply to Joseph Lichtenberg, Attorney for Trustee, No. 309 Broadway, New York, N. Y., on any day prior to day of sale.

Dated New York, February 5th, 1912.
SEAMAN MILLER,
Referee in Bankruptcy.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Robert Shaw Minturn Buys the Corner of Ninety-Third Street and Park Avenue—John Jacob Astor Sells West Harlem Taxpayer—Bronx and Suburban Deals.

Robert Shaw Minturn has joined the uptown Park Avenue residential colony by purchasing, through Pease & Elliman, from the Ursuline Sisters of St. Theresa a large plot on the northwest corner of Park Avenue and Ninety-third Street, which he intends to improve at once with two handsome dwellings. The property has a frontage of 64 feet on the avenue and 100 feet on Ninety-third Street, being known as 1,180 and 1,182 Park Avenue. The Park Avenue structure is an old wooden house ornamented with tall columns in the Colonial style, and is one of the oldest structures in the locality. It is one of the few remaining wooden houses on the avenue south of the Harlem section, a row of cheaper wooden structures being on the northwest corner of Eighty-sixth Street. In the rear of the house on Ninety-third Street is a four-story brick school building.

The Ursuline Convent recently moved from the site to its new home in New Rochelle, and the property has been on the market, being held at $175,000. The location is admirably situated for residential purposes, being at the highest point of Park Avenue. Diagonally opposite on the southeast corner of Ninety-fourth Street is the fine residence with its ample grounds of George Ehret.

Plans are now being prepared by Howells & Stokes for improving the Ninety-third Street plot, with two residences, one for Mr. Minturn and the other for his mother, Mrs. Robert B. Minturn. They have both been for many years residents of the Gramercy Park district, but the rapid invasion of business in that locality has led them to decide on removing from the old centre. Mr. Minturn now resides at 116 East Twenty-second Street, between Fourth and Lexington Avenues, while his mother lives at 109 East Twenty-first Street, opposite the northwestern end of Gramercy Park.

Last year Pease & Elliman sold to Mrs. Frederick Bronson a large plot on the northwest corner of Park Avenue and Ninety-first Street. It was stated that she would erect a fine residence. For the present, however, the old houses have been remodeled into two large dwellings.

J. J. Astor Sells Harlem Taxpayer.

The one-story taxpayer, containing six stores, at the southeast corner of Lenox Avenue and 130th Street, occupying a plot 80 by 100, has been sold by John Jacob Astor to Max Marx for investment.

With the exception of the 100-foot apartment house at the northwest corner of Fifth Avenue and 129th Street, the entire block bounded by Lenox and Fifth Avenues, 129th and 130th Streets, has been owned by the Astor family for a great many years. The parcel just sold, however, is the only holding of John Jacob Astor in the block.

Buys Fifth Avenue Leasehold.

The New York Real Estate Security Company has acquired a long-term lease of the property 487 to 491 Fifth Avenue, known as the Depew Building, and 2 East Forty-second Street. The property is owned by the estate of Augustine Pottier, and has for the past twenty years been under lease to the Pottier & Stymus Manufacturing and Improvement Company.

It includes a seven-story office building, fronting 51 feet on Fifth Avenue, and forming an "L," with the five-story building 2 East Forty-second Street. The lease was negotiated by the McVickar, Gaillard Realty Company.

The property adjoining on the south, with an "L" to Forty-first Street, is owned by John Hoge. It has an area of about the same number of square feet and extends to within 23 feet of the Forty-first Street corner, which is owned by Burton Brothers. The Forty-second Street corner, 73 by 100, on which Wolf Brothers of Philadelphia have recently erected a seven-story office building, comprises the balance of the Fifth Avenue block front.

In the rear of these four plots, and extending from Forty-first to Forty-second Street, is a plot of 11,000 square feet, owned by I. S. & M. S. Korn. The ownership of over 35,000 square feet, the entire block front, lies in five holdings.

Old East Side Buildings Sold.

George K. Hinds has purchased from Martin H. Offinger the four-story loft building, 301 and 303 East Twenty-ninth Street, on plot 50.8 feet front and extending back 85.6 feet to old Maria Street, where it fronts 50 feet, and from John Isaacs the three four-story tenements adjoining on the east, and known as 303, 305, and 307 East Twenty-ninth Street. Each house is 20 feet wide, and they are built at the rear of the plot, having originally fronted on Maria Street. Their Twenty-ninth Street frontage is but 81.2 feet, two of the houses being located back of the loft building. The combined parcels occupy a plot 81.10 by 98.9 by 89.3 by irregular, adjoining the northeast corner of First Avenue. Calden, Nassoit & Lanning were the brokers.

Another Lexington Avenue Deal.

As a direct result of the contemplated Lexington Avenue Subway with the station from Seventy-seventh and Seventy-eighth Streets, Herman Willeg, a Western capitalist, has purchased through William Wolff's Son, the five-story double flat known as 166 East Seventy-eighth Street, 25 by 102.2. This block of late has been going under many changes. Jonas Kahn is the present owner of record.

Railroad Buys in Fifty-first Street.

The New York Central Railroad has purchased from C. Morton Whitman, the four-story dwelling at 44 East Fifty-first Street, on plot 15 by 100, between Madison and Park Avenues. The price paid was between $60,000 and $70,000. This purchase is said to complete the railroad's property acquirement at this point to carry out its plan for the construction of a loop for suburban trains. About twenty dwellings in the vicinity have been bought in the last few years, the last previous purchase being the Henry Seligman house at 42 East Fifty-first Street.

Business Lease in Fifty-first Street.

The four-story dwelling, 23 and 25 West Fifty-first Street, adjoining the home of Henry Clews, has been leased for business purposes. The structure, which occupies a plot 33.4 by 100, is owned and was formerly occupied by Henry C. Beadleston.

This will be the second house on the block to be occupied by business, the other being No. 15, on the same side of the street, which is under lease to a dressmaker.

The house adjoins on the west the residence of Henry Clews, while adjoining on the east is the home of T. Suffern Tailer.

Investors Buying Tenements.

Henry Cohen has purchased for investment from Biloon & Ostroff, 804 Henry Street, a five-story tenement on a lot 24 by 96.1, located between Scammel and Jackson Streets.

David Chenken has sold for a client to Emanuel Neuman, 36 and 36½ Stanton Street, two six-story tenements, on plot 57 by 100.

Elsa M. Stout has sold through the Duross Company the five-story triple flat, 112 West Sixty-third Street, on a lot 25 by 100. The buyer, Alexander Brennan, paid about $35,000 for the parcel.

Bronx.

Kurz & Uren, Inc., have sold for Dr. Nelson Smith, Jr., the corner plot of four lots, on the southeast corner of 167th and Tiffany Streets.

W. J. Coen has purchased from the Kovacs Construction Company for investment 892 East 163d Street, a three-story, three-family house on lot 20 by 70, facing Stebbins Avenue. The sellers acquired the property in an exchange a couple of months ago.

William D. Kilpatrick has purchased from Mrs. Annie E. Carroll the two private dwellings, on plot 75 by 100, on the west side of Andrews Avenue, about 345 feet north of 181st Street. The property is in the block immediately north of the New York University grounds. Julius Friend was the broker.

Joseph Zelenko has purchased from Victor E. Chabert Forest Court, a six-story elevator apartment at the northwest corner of Forest Avenue and 158th Street on a plot 100 by 87.5.

In exchange the buyer gives the six-story new-law house at 9 and 11 East 107th Street on plot 40 by 100.11, near Fifth Avenue. Forest Court was erected a few years ago by the William F. Rohrig Company.

Brooklyn.

Fenwick B. Small has sold the three-story brick mercantile building 1,039 Broadway, in the heart of the retail shopping centre, to Abraham M. Stern, who will use the entire building for his business.

$78,000 Sale in Long Island City.

Henry A. Howarth has purchased from the Queensboro Dealers and Hygeia Ice Company a parcel 264 feet on the north side of the Flushing and North Shore Railroad, 166 feet on Madden Street, and 35 feet on Van Buren Street, Long Island City. The price paid for the parcel was about $78,000.

A $200,000 Long Island Trade.

McClure & Dowdney have sold to a client the I. W. Arthur farm located at Manhasset, L. I. This property consists of about 150 acres and adjoins the estates of Payne Whitney, A. H. Paget, F. K. Pendleton, and Louis Sherry. The property has been held at $200,000 and was taken by the seller in this transaction about one year ago in exchange for Brooklyn property. David Kraus represented the seller.

Long Island Sales.

Joshua L. Evans has sold two lots on Manhattan Boulevard, East Elmhurst, L. I., to a client for improvement.

Louis Kaufman has sold to the St. Gertrude's Catholic Church of Edgemere, a parcel 80 feet on the east side of Beach Avenue and 120 feet on the south side of Edgemere Avenue, Far Rockaway.

John Kalebza has sold to Henry J. Beard of Brown Station, N. Y., a parcel 250 feet on the south side of Percy Street and 100 feet on the west side of Schroeder Place, Woodside.

John Avenius has sold to Katherine Klitsch of Brooklyn a parcel 90 feet on the north side of Grove Street and 20 feet on the west side of St. Mark's Avenue, Ridgewood.

The Courtenay Realty Company has sold to John Dayton Incorporation of Bay Side fourteen lots at Bay Side.

Staten Island.

Joshua L. Evans has sold two lots on Brighton Street at Raritan Bay Park, Tottenville.

New Jersey.

Louis Schlesinger, Incorporated, has sold the property on Ocean Avenue, Deal Beach, between Rochelle Avenue and Darlington Road, 300 by 250, to the Amerigo Realty Company of New York, of which Francis J. Arend is the President; also, at Pompton Lakes, Passaic County, the country home of P. H. Petry to John G. Guise of New York City. The property consists of 25 acres of land, with a large dwelling, and has a large frontage on the lake.

$600,000 Times Square Theatre.

Plans have been filed for the new Palace Theatre on the east side of Broadway at 1,564 and 1,566, and running through the block to 156 to 170 West Forty-seventh Street. The building will be eleven stories high with offices and studios occupying the upper part. It will have a frontage of 40 feet on Broadway by 136.8 feet on the street. The façade will be of stone and marble in very artistic design. The main floor of the theatre will contain fourteen loges and eight boxes. The total seating capacity will be 1,727. The Palace Theatre and Realty Company, of which Martin Beck of the United Booking Agency is President, is the owner. Kirchhoff & Rose of Milwaukee, Wis., with James J. F. Gavigan as associate, are the architects. The cost is estimated at $600,000.

Leases.

James H. Stryker has leased for L. C. Mott, owner, to Frederick Barlow, for a long term of years, the building at the northeast corner of 125th Street and Third Avenue, together with the upper part of the building adjoining, 2,307 Third Avenue, at an aggregate rental of $120,000. The corner store will be used and occupied as a café and restaurant.

Senior & Stout, Incorporated, have leased for Ella K. Gillies the three-story dwelling, 137 West Sixty-third Street, to Julia Lancaster for a term of years.

Frederick Fox & Co. have leased for the 694 Broadway Company the twelfth floor in the building 692 and 694 Broadway, through to 284 to 288 Lafayette Street. The lessees are the Harris Suspender Company.

Goodwin & Goodwin have leased for H. F. Bindseil the two stores at 149 Lenox Avenue to Morris Gold and J. C. Wood, respectively; also, for Max Moskowitz, the two stores at 27 West 123d Street to the Local Laundry and S. Raffaeli, respectively; also, for Theresa Goldsmith to David and Sadie Bennett the store at the Southwest corner of Seventh Avenue and 130th Street.

Du Bois & Taylor have leased to the General Tire Repair Company the building 240 West Forty-eighth Street.

Notes.

The city has taken title to 510 and 512 Pearl Street, northeast corner of Centre Street, and adjoining sites from the Cedarwold Realty Company, for $235,000. These parcels are in the heart of the site for the proposed new Court House and park area, and are the first properties to be taken over for that purpose.

S. N. Jacobs has been appointed agent for Boulevard Court and Barretto Court, in the Bronx.

Edgar H. Napolis and Joseph L. Conte have entered into a partnership for the transaction of a general real estate and brokerage business, with offices at 309 Broadway.

Innes & Center announce the removal of their office to the Gabay Building, 30 and 32 East Twentieth Street.

At an Executive Committee meeting of the Fort Washington Reformed Church, 181st Street and Fort Washington Avenue, it was announced that the Consistory of the Reformed Church, of which this church is a branch, has approved the expenditure of $42,000 for the building of an addition to accommodate the growing membership.

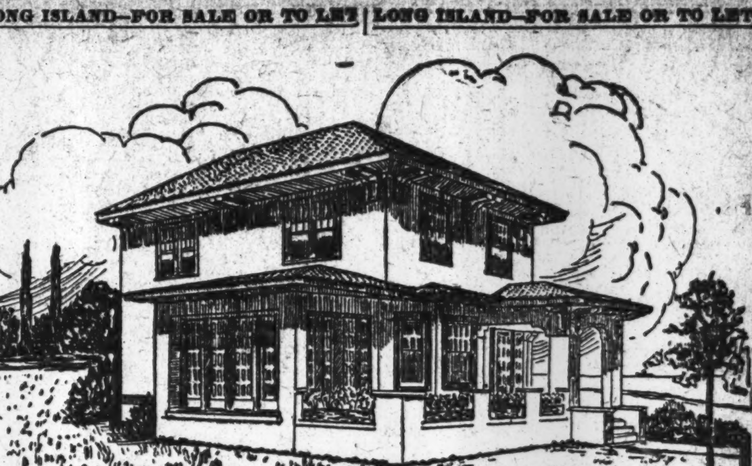
LONG ISLAND—FOR SALE OR TO LET | LONG ISLAND—FOR SALE OR TO LET



A PLEASANT HOME BY THE SEA

New York people are getting better acquainted with NEPONSIT. Every day they are beginning to know more about its charm, environment, attractive surroundings and congenial society. Extending as it does from the Atlantic Ocean to Jamaica Bay, it gives the advantages of surf bathing on the one side as well as good boating and fishing on the other.

More than fifty houses were built in 1911, new ones going up at the rate of four or five every month, each house of different and very attractive design and built of the best material and workmanship. They are not cheap houses, but the kind you will enjoy living in and the kind that have intrinsic and salable value at all times. Prices range from $6,000 up.

If a seashore home—35 minutes from New York, with proper improvements, healthful atmosphere, congenial surroundings—appeals to you, NEPONSIT is the place for you.

All particulars available by mail or telephone.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The disturbance which was noted in Texas Thursday night has moved directly eastward, gradually increasing in energy. It is now centred in the Middle Gulf region, and is causing precipitation northward over the Mississippi to Arkansas and Tennessee.

The temperature has continued to fall in all sections from the upper and middle Mississippi Valley to the Atlantic Coast, also in the sections directly west of the lower Mississippi.

Normally cold weather still prevails in the Middle States. The temperature has risen considerably in the Rocky Mountain region and in the States lying immediately to the eastward.

Temperatures will fall still further in the Atlantic sections Saturday, but a marked rise will occur over the West and Middle States, probably affecting Atlantic sections by Sunday afternoon or night.

Winds along the New England Coast will be brisk northwest; Middle Atlantic Coast, brisk northwest, shifting to northeast; South Atlantic Coast, brisk north.

Steamships departing Saturday for European ports will have brisk northwest winds with generally fair weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND SUNDAY.

Eastern New York, New Jersey, and New England—Fair Saturday and Sunday; colder Saturday; moderate to brisk northwest winds.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair Saturday and Sunday; colder in east portion Saturday; moderate northwest winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

| | 1911. | 1912. | | 1911. | 1912. |

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

The Board of Superintendents nominated yesterday about 125 teachers in the elementary schools for promotion from Schedule B1 to Schedule B2. This means an increase in salary for the fortunate ones. The minimum salary in B1 is $720 a year; the maximum is $1,500. Under B2 schedule the minimum is $860, the maximum $1,820.

These promotions were made from the holders of License A in Brooklyn and the holders of License No. 2 in Manhattan. The holders of these licenses are the older teachers. They were obliged to go out as a test of their fitness for promotion to a school other than their own and teach under the supervision of a stranger. Reports as to their fitness were then had from the Principal of the strange school, in which they gave the test teaching, and reports also were received from their own Principal. Their District Superintendent likewise turned in his report about them. It was on all these reports that yesterday's promotions are based. Several hundred old teachers declined to undertake the test, and they will remain in their present places at their present rate of salary.

The names of the teachers whose promotion is thus recommended by the Board of Superintendents could not be learned yesterday. The names go to the Committee on Elementary Schools and thence to the Board of Education for approval at its meeting next Wednesday.

It now seems as if at least one-quarter of the high school and training school teachers will not receive their increase in pay under the new equal pay law on March 1. The Board of Examiners, with City Superintendent Maxwell at its head, has been busy passing upon the "superior merit" of these teachers in order to rate their increase in salary, but the progress made has been slow, and it is said that the teachers in the Washington Irving High School, East Twelfth Street; the Wadleigh High School, 114th Street, west of Seventh Avenue; the Boys' High School, Marcy Avenue and Madison Street, Brooklyn, and one or two more of the larger high schools may have to wait until April before their increases and arrearages are paid to them.

The alumni of Public School 22 will hold a meeting to-day at the Gospel Settlement, 211 Clinton Street.

The high school teachers of English will hold a meeting in the Directors' room at Wanamaker's on Feb. 17.

There is a rumor that Mayor Gaynor may appoint as a member of the Board of Education George White, Principal of Public School 70, who was retired by the Board of Education on Feb. 1. Mr. White has resumed the practice of law, with his office in the Stewart Building, Chambers Street and Broadway. As he is an outspoken opponent of the present system of education, his advent as a member of the board would decidedly enliven its proceedings.

FIRE DEPARTMENT NEWS.

Pension on own application after more than twenty years' service at $700 per annum—Fireman Henry A. Kolkebeck, Engine 62.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

In response to requisitions the Municipal Civil Service Commission has approved the following:

Certification of six names for the appointment in the Department of Public Charities of one mate for a period of about four weeks, at the rate of $900 a year.

Certification of ten names, from which to appoint six first grade clerks in the Law Department, at $300 a year each.

Certification of twenty-five names, from which to make three appointments to the position of clerk, first grade, in the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, at $300 a year each.

Certification of ten names, from which to appoint two first grade clerks in the Department of Education, at $300 a year each.

Certification of ten names, from which to appoint one first grade clerk in the office of the Supervisor of the City Record, at $300 a year.

Certification of ten names, from which to appoint one first grade clerk in the Department of Health, at $300 a year.

The following requests have been approved by the commission:

That the name of James J. Dolan, 704 Leonard Street, Brooklyn, be withheld from the list of first grade clerk until July 1, 1912, as he desires to finish his term in high school.

That the name of Denis P. McLaughlin be withheld from the list of patrolmen until July 1, 1912, as he is under contract to remain in his present employment until that time.

That the name of Peter Wagner be withheld from the eligible list of patrolmen until further notice, as he is a partner in a business and is trying to sell.

An examination for postal clerk and letter carrier will be held by the United States Civil Service Commission at the New York Custom House in the Fall. The receipt of applications will be begun about July 1.

Applications for the place of railway mail clerk will close on April 25. The examination will be held on May 4. The minimum age is 18 years, and the entrance salary is $800. The subjects of the examination will be spelling, arithmetic, penmanship, report writing, copying and correcting manuscript, geography, and civil government.

C. J. SULLIVAN HUNTS SHARE OF $2,000,000

Thinks Patrick Ryan Made That Much Out of Manhattan Bridge Contract.

SAYS HE SHOWED THE WAY

And Was to Get Half—Court Orders Ryan to be in Court Next Wednesday—Peep at His Books Wanted.

Patrick Ryan, head of the Ryan-Parker Construction Company, could not get around to the Supreme Court yesterday because he was busy in Toronto casting his fine contracting eye over some blooded cattle which he may add to the herd on his five-hundred-acre farm at Brewsters. He was especially wanted by Justice Goff in order to advance the suit of Cornelius J. Sullivan for half of the profits Mr. Ryan's firm made out of the contract for building the Manhattan Bridge. Mr. Sullivan declares that if it had not been for him Mr. Ryan would not have obtained the contract, that in consideration of his services an agreement was made that he was to receive $1,000 a month during the progress of the work, and that when all of the money due on the job was paid, a division was to be made between him and the Ryan firm. A paper was drawn up to this effect, Mr. Sullivan's lawyer said yesterday.

The matter is a very simple one up to the point of getting a look into Mr. Ryan's books in order to discover just what the profits were. Mr. Ryan has displayed no desire to permit this, and so far he has succeeded in foiling the preliminary proceedings before Referee William J. Moran, appointed by the court for thte purpose, and in delaying the case until Mr. Sullivan's patience is worn out. But now active measures are to be taken.

Mr. Ryan is a corpulent, gray-haired, florid-faced man, with a cordial manner. Once he was the Chief of Police of Youngstown, Ohio, but that field was too small for him, and he came here to see about making more money. He entered the contracting business in offices contiguous to the City Hall, and before long he knew many of the city's engineers and other public employes. Also he came to know the Sullivans. Mr. Ryan was doing fairly well in a narrow field, and was happy to get some recognition from the city and an occasional little contract at sewer fixing and such things. One of the city's employes joined the firm and then another one joined it, and so pretty soon it came to be the Ryan-Parker Contracting Company. Both of the erstwhile city employes who joined with him at that time have retired from the company, it is said, with ample fortunes. But the name remains unchanged.

How Mr. Sullivan came to take an interest in the success of the company comes mainly from the Sullivan side. The Manhattan Bridge was to be built, and the concerns that had been bridge building were so sure of getting the contract that they were careless of how much they bid. Mr. Sullivan was aware of this, and he suggested that the Ryan Company put in a bid a few hundred thousand dollars less and, having secured the contract, farm it out or turn the whole thing over for a lump sum in cash.

"Bid under those figures a few hundred thousands," Mr. Sullivan is said to have advised, "and you will beat them out."

Then the contract for dividing the profits in case the contract was obtained was drawn up. Mr. Ryan decided that a profit of $2,500,000 would be fair, and he and his associate engineers went over the specifications and put in a bid for $6,500,000, about $800,000 less than the next lowest bid. Instantly the steel people came along with an offer to relieve the Ryan Company of the contract. It is said that Mr. Ryan was willing to turn the whole business over, but that Mr. Sullivan urged him to go ahead with the work. The city's signature on the contract gave the company all the credit it could need. Steel concerns would be tumbling over themselves to furnish the materials and banks would advance enough to carry the payrolls until the first payment was due, and even longer if necessary. Indeed, the contract was just as good as cash in hand.

But all this involved too much detail, and Mr. Ryan finally decided to farm the contract out, and this he did to about five different concerns. Controller Metz accepted Mr. Ryan's bonds for the fulfillment of the contract. Mr. Sullivan asserts that the net profit on the contract was $2,000,000. His lawyer said yesterday that he thought about three-quarters of this amount would be nearer the true figure.

The $1,000 a month that Mr. Sullivan was to receive during the bridge building has been well and truly paid, it is said, and that the total aggregates about thirty-five thousand dollars. Whatever else might be due, Mr. Ryan shows no eagerness to pay.

When the arrangement between Mr. Sullivan and Mr. Ryan was made the former was the head of the C. J. Sullivan Advertising Company, and was doing a good business. Since then, however, Senator Timothy D. Sullivan has taken over the management of the advertising concern, and C. J. devotes the major part of his time in consulting with his lawyers about getting Mr. Ryan in some corner where his books may be taken away from him and turned over to an expert accountant.

COL. W. H. STEWART DEAD.

Was ex-Commander-in-Chief of the Confederate Veterans.

Special to The New York Times.

NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 9.—Col. William H. Stewart, the hero of the Battle of the Crater and one of the bravest Confederate officers that ever drew a sword, died to-night in his Portsmouth home. He was an ex-Commander-in-Chief of the Confederate veterans and a historian famed throughout the State.

One of his last public utterances was a severe criticism of Gov. Wilson of New Jersey for an alleged serious inaccuracy concerning the civil war in the history of the American people. Col. Stewart was an ex-Commonwealth's Attorney at Portsmouth, and stood high in the community. He wrote a history of "The Battle of the Crater."

ELEKTOROWICZ WAS DE RYSS

Subway Engineer Is Now De Ryss Again, Having Taken His Name Back.

Emil Elektorowicz, resident engineer of the Rapid Transit Subway Constructing Company, living at 68 West Sixty-eighth Street, recently received permission to change his name to Emil de Ryss. He is a native of Austria-Hungary, and he is assuming the old name of his family, who still live at his old home. When he came to this country, a few years ago, he took this long name of twelve letters for reasons which he does not care to give out. He says that in his business he has occasion to use the telephone many times a day, and he finds it exceedingly difficult to make the name of Elektorowicz understood. For instance, a person will call up and ask for the resident engineer. He answers:

Hello!

Hello! Who is this, please?

This is Mr. Elektorowicz.

What did you say? Something the matter with the electric wire?

No. No. This is Mr. Elektorowicz, the engineer.

Oh, yes, I see. Mr. —— Who did you say?

Then Mr. Elektorowicz spells out his name carefully several times, and the person on the other end of the wire finally comprehends. Much time is wasted, to the annoyance of both parties. There will be no more such delays now, however, for the name that Mr. Elektorowicz has resumed is quite easy to the ear, even over a telephone wire.

FOUR SAFE-BLOWERS CAUGHT

Police Have Revolver Battle with Quartet in Pitch-Dark Basement.

A squad of police captured four young safeblowers early yesterday in the grocery store of Alfonse Germano & Brother, at 2,419 First Avenue, after a struggle. The prisoners were taken to the Harlem Court, and Magistrate Breen held them in $2,500 bail each for examination to-morrow morning.

The prisoners gave their names as Salvator Gilli of 336 East Eighty-fourth Street, Frank Falart of 434 East 116th Street, James Goodman of 356 East 114th Street, and Mike Rossi of 153 East 114th Street.

Patrolman Cummings of the East 126th Street Station was at 122d Street and First Avenue when a woman told him that she believed that burglars were at work in the grocery store. The building is at the northwest corner of 124th Street and First Avenue and has an entrance to the apartments on the upper floors in 124th Street.

Cummings hurried toward the store with the woman, at the same time blowing his whistle and rapping his nightstick on the pavement. The alarm was answered by Sergt. O'Sullivan and Patrolmen Mead, Loonan, Osterhaus, and William Gallagher, all of the East 126th Street Station. The band must have heard the alarm as well, for as the police neared the house they were seen to dart down a flight of steps inside the 124th Street entrance of the building to the cellar.

O'Sullivan started down the stairs, but had gone only a few steps when a revolver bullet whistled close to his head. Cummings followed close behind O'Sullivan, and another shot came close to his head. Then O'Sullivan and Cummings fired a couple of shots into the darkness.

This fire was returned by the band, and bullets spattered about the police squad. Another volley from the police, and then, as they heard a pattering of feet, a rush was made for the cellar. When the police flashed their lights no one was in sight. Steps leading to the grocery on the street floor indicated the course taken by the burglars, and up these steps the police went. Rossi was found on top of a packing case. A few moments later Goodman was discovered hiding under a bag of rice, and then the two others were discovered near by. After a short struggle they were made prisoners.

The police found in the cellar two revolvers, with six shots fired; one large "jimmy," two crowbars, one brace, and a set of seven bits and a bottle containing a liquid explosive. The large safe in the rear was found to have been turned over on its side and two holes had been drilled near the lock.

HOFFMAN BACK AT HARVARD.

Youth Suspended After Acid-Throwing Incident Is Reinstated.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 9.—Reinstated in Harvard, Stoddard Hoffman, '14, of New York City is back again at his studies.

Hoffman and other students, including Donald H. Clark, a Law School man, drove in an automobile to the lodging house of William H. Crapo of Boston early one morning in June to invite some young women friends to take a ride in their car. Their knocking on the girls' windows and the conversation between the students and the young women disturbed Mr. Crapo, who ordered the students to leave. They refused to go, and he hurled a cup containing sulphuric acid at Hoffman and Clark. The latter's face and body were burned, while Hofman escaped with a few holes in his clothing. The students had Crapo arrested, and he paid $100 fine. Hoffman and Clark were suspended.

BOY HIT BY AUTO, DIES.

G. S. Robertson, the Racing Driver, Released on Bail.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Feb. 9.—Clarence William Denman, 9 years old, died at the General Hospital this morning from a fractured skull which he sustained last evening when, while coasting, he ran into the automobile of George S. Robertson, who is a professional driver in automobile races. Robertson and Burton S. Brown of New York, who was with him in the car, gave bail this afternoon before Judge Atwater in the Court of Common Pleas.

The Denman boy was a son of Percival G. Denman of 67 Cherry Street. He was coasting down an incline on Cherry Street, near West Jersey Street, when the mishap occurred. It seems certain that the boy ran into the Robertson car and that the driver was not accountable. The boy seems to have struck a wheel of the car as it went past.

WHO'S THE REAL J. BERGER?

Two Cousins, with the Same Name, Want to File Woman's Will.

Two Joseph Bergers appeared yesterday at the office of the Surrogate to file the willof Anna Jellinek of 71 East Eighty-seventh Street, who died a few weeks ago. They said they were her cousins. One lives at 357 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn, and the other at Schuienburg, Texas.

Joseph Berger of Brooklyn was the first to appear, and presented to the probate clerk a copy of the will and his petition as executor. A little later the Texas Berger's lawyer brought the original copy of the document. He said that he represented the Texas Berger and stated that his client was undoubtedly the man named by Mrs. Jellinek to act as her executor.

The value of the estate is about $20,000. It is left to the woman's sons, Max and Arthur.

ACCUSED OF EMBEZZLEMENT.

Bookkeeper Held for Robbing Employer by Falsifying Accounts.

J. W. Sutter of 711 West 118th Street was arrested last night, charged by his employer, Bernard Abel of Bernard Abel & Co., produce dealers of 305 Washington Street, with embezzlement. Sutter has been bookkeeper for Abel for fifteen years.

It was said at the 100th Street Police Station, where Sutter was locked up, that the man's peculations probably would amount to about $4,000. It was said that he had obtained his employer's money by falsifying the accounts of which he had charge. It is said that he has been doing this for two years.

WEDS ON SICK BED AND DIES.

Naval Officer, Ill with Pneumonia, Quickly Passes Away.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 9.—Lieut. Commander Samuel Brown Thomas, U. S. N., died to-day at the California Club in the room where he was married day before yesterday to Grace Mellus. The young naval officer, a son of the late Rear Admiral Charles M. Thomas, had made a gallant struggle for life, aided by skillful physicians.

Miss Mellus had been engaged to Lieut. Commander Thomas several years, and the wedding was planned for last Wednesday night. A home had been bought and furnished for the bride.

The bridegroom-elect caught a severe cold, and after two days took to his bed at the California Club. He grew worse, but after pneumonia had reached both lungs and just before the wedding day he seemed better and insisted, as did the bride, that the ceremony be performed. Accordingly this was done, with the bridegroom in bed. His recovery was predicted, but this morning a change for the worse came, and he passed quickly away.

Colgate Alumni Dine.

The New York Alumni of Colgate University held their forty-second annual dinner at the Park Avenue Hotel last night. President Granger was toastmaster, and the speakers were Dr. Elmer Burritt Bryan, President of the university; State Senator Ralph W. Thomas, the Rev. Dr. Chester F. Ralston of Oberlin College, the Rev. Dr. George D. Adams, President of the Colgate Alumni Association of Philadelphia, and the Rev. Dr. William B. Wallace of Acadia College, Nova Scotia.

SHOT DEAD AT DANCE BY A FOE UNSEEN

Bullet Strikes Youth in Forehead After a Row in an Avenue D Hall.

LIGHTS THEN TURNED OFF

Several Men Rush Out, Leaving Young Driver Dead Among the Terrified Dancers—No Clue to Slayer.

Policeman Coleman of the Union Market Station, passing Lafayette Hall, 8 and 10 Avenue D, shortly after 11 o'clock last night stopped to listen to the strains of an orchestra playing a lively waltz. Inside the Henry Hudson Circle, a social organization of the neighborhood, was giving a dance, and 500 young men and girls were on the dance floor.

Presently the music was punctuated by the report of a revolver shot. Then came a shrill chorus of screams and yells. Coleman started into the place on the run just as the lights were turned off and a dozen or fifteen youths pushed past him into the street.

In the hall Coleman found a panic. Women had fainted, and in the darkness men were shouting and calling to one another. At the door was David Schaffler, son of the owner of the hall, trying to restore order and shouting to have the lights switched on again. As Coleman reached his side the lights were turned on.

They revealed the dancers standing in their tracks on the floor, and close to the door the body of a young man on his back. Blood was coming from a wound in his forehead.

Coleman cleared the hall, sending the terrified dancers into anterooms, and then he sent for Dr. Herald from Bellevue Hospital. The surgeon examined the youth and said that he had been killed instantly. He was identified by many of the young men in the hall, who knew him as Joseph Hemley, driver for an express company, whose home was at 734 East Sixth Street. None of them could tell how he had been killed, nor did any of them know that he had had an enemy who would seek his life.

Young Schaffler told something of the shooting, however. He said he had been standing at the door watching, he admitted, so that no strong-arm men entered to interfere with the dance. Then trouble started inside the hall, and presently two young men went into a clinch close to the door. Schaffler said he started toward them, pushing several others aside, and dragged the two apart.

As he flung them aside, there sounded the report of a revolver shot and Schaffle heard the whistle of a bullet as it passed his head. Hemley, one of the two who had been quarreling, stood in front of him, and the bullet struck the young man fair. He toppled to the floor without a cry and as Schaffler sprang toward him some one turned off the lights, and a dozen or more youths pushed past him toward the entrance. It was they who passed Coleman as he entered.

The dance was stopped and the dancers went to their homes. Detectives came from the Union Market Station and looked over the hall. They could learn no more than Coleman had learned, however.

BOSSCHIETER SLAYER FREE.

George Kerr Leaves Prison After Eleven Years Punishment.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 9.—After having served eleven years and nine days of a fifteen-year sentence for his part in the murder of Jennie Bosschieter of Paterson, George J. Kerr was discharged from State prison at midnight to-night. His companions, Andrew J. Campbell, William A. Death, and Walter McAllister, will not finish their time until 1921. Kerr, beyond saying that he would not return to Paterson, declined to talk of his future.

Although he completed his one-year sentence a month ago, the Rev. W. E. Woodward, convicted of passing bogus checks, is still confined in the State prison. He is suffering partial paralysis, and Head Keeper Osborne would not turn him out into the world until a home was found for the former preacher, who is now almost eighty years old. A place has been arranged for him in the South, and he will be set free Monday.

When Head Keeper Osborne retires from office next month he will have completed forty-two years of State and civil service. He proposes to go to St. Petersburg, Fla., where he owns an orange and grapefruit grove.

DIES AWAITING SENTENCE.

Sabow, Convicted of Fraud, Was Postmaster of Roosevelt, N. J.

Louis Sabow, the former Postmaster of Roosevelt, N. J., who was held in the Tombs awaiting sentence for obtaining money under false pretenses, died in Bellevue on Thursday of pleuro-pneumonia. He was moved from the Tombs Tuesday.

Sabow was indicted in New Jersey for embezzling funds deposited with him by foreigners of Roosevelt and Perth Amboy, and it appeared that he had obtained $1,500 from Charles J. Canda of New York by a misrepresentation of his assets. While out on bail from the New Jersey courts he made a trip to this city and was arrested on the Canda charge.

Mr. Canda declared that he would not press the charge against Sabow if he would restore the money of his other creditors. Mr. Canda said he could stand his loss and would if those less able to do so were not made to suffer.

Sabow was found guilty and was awaiting sentence when taken ill.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS DANCE

Big Crowd at Annual Ball and Funds Go to Charity.

The Charity Ball of the Knights of Columbus was held in the Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory, Lexington Avenue and Twenty-sixth Street, last night. A great crowd was in attendance and perhaps one-half of them took part in the dancing. Incidentally it may be remarked that the much criticised dances, of which the so called turkey trot and the grizzly bear are types, were not permitted and those who expected to see any of those dances went home disappointed.

John F. Keller was the Chairman of the Ball Committee, Richard F. Murphy the Vice Chairman, Joseph R. Boldt headed the Reception Committee, and Nicholas P. Duffy was the floor director. A large sum was realized and it will all go to the Tuberculosis Home, the Hospital Bed Fund, and the Free Employment Bureau.

Among those who attended were Supreme Court Justice Victor J. Dowling, John Ford, and Edward E. McCall, the Rev. Father James J. Sullivan, chaplain of the Knights of Columbus, Col. Louis D. Conley, Capt. James F. Thompson, and Major E J. Winterroth. Mayor Gaynor was expected, but sent a letter of regret. Cardinal Farley was also unable to be present.

BOY SCOUTS GUARD FEAST.

Hotel Bright with Uniforms While 700 Diners Acclaim Founder.

The Hotel Astor presented an unusual appearance last night in anticipation of the coming of Lieut. Gen. Sir Robert S. S. Baden-Powell, head of the Boy Scout movement. It appeared at first as if the hotel had been overrun by an army, for in every nook there were soldiers in uniform and standing at attention.

They were only Boy Scouts, several hundred of them, to be sure, but none of them armed. They had come to the Hotel Astor from every State of the Union as a part of the second annual meeting of the Boy Scouts of America, and particularly to do honor to Sir Robert Baden-Powell and to act as his escort and protectors at a dinner in the grand ballroom of the hotel. They lined the corridors, and when their international chief showed his face in the doorway they cheered as only Boy Scouts can cheer. As Sir Robert said later, he discovered immediately that he was in the hands of the best and truest scouts in the world, the American boys.

Preceding the dinner in Sir Robert's honor, there was a reception in the large Laurel Room. This room was a virtual forest primaeval and told in pictures everything that the Boy Scout movement represents in fact. The diners had come early just to see the exhibit in the Laurel Room.

Foremost in the exhibit was a series of colored pictures loaned by the United States Forest Service showing how the Boy Scouts can be of service to their country in the work of reforestation. The pictures showed how to plant trees, how to build bridges and trails, how to post fire warnings, and how to fight forest fires.

The dinner, however, was the great event of the evening. It was not really intended for the Boy Scouts, for it cost $5 a plate, and simplicity in all things is one of the mottoes of the Boy Scouts.

The toastmaster was former Chief Forester Clifford Pinchot. The speakers were Sir Robert Baden-Powell, National Scout Chief Ernest Thompson-Seton, Nation Scout Commissioner Daniel C. Beard, and Dr. John H. Finley, President of the City College of New York and originator of the scout movement among the blind boys of this city.

Others at the speakers' table were Lieut. Gen. Nelson A. Miles, Gen. George W. Wingate, Col. L. R. Gignilliat, Samuel Untermyer, John M. Glenn, Samuel Adams, Dr. Nehemiah Boynton, L. Courtney Bennett, Colin H. Livingstone, President of the National Council of the Boy Scouts of America; Gen. E. A. McAlpin, James Speyer, W. D. Boyce, Starr J. Murphy, Rear Admiral Charles D. Sigsbee, Frederick W. Whitridge, Robert Garrett, Richard C. Morse, and H. Sherman.

Sir Robert Baden-Powell, the principal guest and main speaker of the evening, was introduced by Mr. Pinchot as "the man who is able to lead boys as no man can; a great servant to his country in time of war; a greater servant of humanity in the cause of general peace; but greatest of all as a servant of the people, the man who has put this great movement on its feet."

Sir Robert, his coat glistening with medals of honor, told the diners that his presence represented more than any one in the Hotel Astor could either foresee or see. Then he explained that under his dress shirt he wore a combination flag of two nations, the United States and the British Empire. Then there were cheers and the evening from that moment was entirely Sir Robert's.

"I am only a microbe among a lot of other microbes," he said, "spreading among the boys of all nations the disease of being scouts. The originator of the movement was one Tertius—you won't find him here to-night—who died 660 B. C. But I am doing what I can to inculcate in boys what is needed most—character. That is the mission of all of us, to teach boys character in the way that they like to be taught.

"Above all I want to impress the fact that this movement, although it pictures military uniforms, is not one of war. As far as I am concerned, I hope the world will never have any more war. The movement is not one of religion, either. All that we want is to have the boys put the principles of their various religions into practice."

Then Sir Robert threw on the screen a series of pictures, each representative of one of the objects aimed at in the Boy Scout movement. His scenes began with the slums in London, showing boys who, as he said, had the brains but not the opportunity to "make good," and ended with pictures of the great American plains, with Col. Cody (Buffalo Bill) chasing buffaloes for dear life. The very last picture had been reserved for a climax. And it served its purpose.

Even before the shadows of the previous picture had completely vanished there were cheers from every part of the ballroom, even from the top gallery.

It was the picture of Col. Roosevelt in khaki uniform and seated on a white charger. The cheering lasted for several minutes.

"And this man," said Sir Robert, "the honorary Vice President of the Boy Scouts of America, is the best type of a war-and-peace scout that the boys of America can follow. There is no better judge or master of citizenship than Theodore Roosevelt."

Sandwiched between scenes of hills and plains were scenes from the Soudan and from the desert, each representative of some phase of heroism. The charging bull and the alert Boy Scout with the timely stick were depicted, too, and so was a runaway on a country road, with a brave Boy Scout clinging to the neck of the vicious steed. There were thrills for every one, especially for the women.

"Out of the Boy Scout movement, I believe," said Mr. Pinchot in one of his introductory speeches, "will come the solution of the greater evils from which our nations are suffering. The movement makes workers. It makes men of boys. It is not a military movement. The movement makes for chivalry, loyalty, devotion, and service. I think we can fairly call it one of the branches of that conservation which is going on throughout the country."

FOUR INJURED BY BLAST.

Premature Explosion in Aqueduct Shaft 18 Jars Fifth Avenue.

A blast exploding prematurely yesterday afternoon in Shaft 18 of the aqueduct, 200 feet beneath the intersection of Broadway, Fifth Avenue, and Twenty-fourth Street, injured four men, one perhaps fatally, and shook the earth so that tenants in near-by buildings ran into the street in terror. The injured men were Antonio Casini of 114 Sullivan Street, Lawrence Doul of 66 North Seventh Street, Brooklyn; James Thomas, a negro, of 240 West Sixtieth Street, and Charles Woods, also a negro, of 327 West Thirty-ninth Street.

The men were near the blast, Thomas having drilled the hole in which the dynamite was placed, and they were knocked unconscious. Comrades carried them to the surface, and Dr. La Rochelle of the New York Hospital treated them, taking Casini and Doul to the hospital, where it was said Casini's condition was critical.

COCAINE SMUGGLER FINED.

Dr. Minden Pays $500—W. C. Warner Gets Suspended Sentence.

Dr. Simeon B. Minden of 230 East Sixty-ninth Street and William C. Warner pleaded guilty yesterday in the District Court to the indictments charging them with participation in the smuggling of cocaine, for which William Rind, chief officer of the American liner St. Paul, was sent to Blackwell's Island for a year, and Marlborough Hall, a druggist, of 643 Sixth Avenue, was acquitted.

Dr. Minden had purchased 250 ounces of the contraband drug and was fined $500. Warner acted as salesman for Rind, but was a witness for the Government in the case against Hall. Sentence on him was suspended.

DARTMOUTH ALUMNI DINE.

The College Is Growing Too Rapidly, President Nichols Says.

From his portrait, draped with green and white, the colors of Dartmouth College, Thaddeus Stevens, one of the greatest of her graduates, looked down last night upon 200 Dartmouth alumni while they made the ballroom at Sherry's ring with their college yells. The annual alumni dinner was the largest in point of attendance that has ever been held.

Jordan J. Rollins, President of the Alumni Association, was the toastmaster and the speakers were President Nichols of Dartmouth College, President Hibben of Princeton, Justice J. Hay Brown of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, James P. Richardson of Boston, and Mitchell D. Follansbee of Chicago.

President Nichols spoke of the problem which confronts a college which has grown so large that the dormitories, classrooms, and chapel are too small to accommodate the students, who overflow in to the village. And there is only accommodation there for twelve more students, he said.

President Nichols said that there were now 1,226 undergraduates at Dartmouth. There were many who thought that the college had grown large enough, and in this there was not only sentiment, but reason as well. The board had given the matter careful consideration, and three ways of limiting the size of freshman classes without losing the spirit of democracy had been considered. The first was by requiring those seeking entrance to prepare by a difficult course of study, the second by raising the entrance requirements, and the third by establishing a waiting list.

"If we increase the entrance requirements we will disqualify many of the high school boys that come to us," he said. "Only those who could go to a proper school for a year and a half could enter. This would disqualify those who could not wait or afford to go to a private school. The boy who has fought his way through high school is the boy we want and the one we can least spare.

"The waiting list would have much the same efffect, and would favor boys coming from homes of wealth, he added. The Trustees, he said, had decided for the present not to limit the number of applicants.

President Hibben brought the greetings of Princeton.

"I feel the things I have to say of Princeton I could say of Dartmouth," he said. "My text will therefore be 'Dartmouth and Princeton.' What things they have accomplished! The most recent event for both was that football game. The honors were divided between the side that won and the side that lost. We were glad to receive that victory for it seemed to com efrom above. You lost, but you won the admiration and the affection of every man that saw the contest. Dartmouth lost because of a combination of trying circumstances, a turn of luck, but lost like sportsmen."

He pointed out that both Princeton and Dartmouth were fortunate in being located in small towns, where there were no distractions of great cities and where the communities were compact.

22 HURT IN CAR CRASH.

One Man Thrown Against Stove and Burned in Newark Collision.

A Springfield Avenue trolley car was coming swiftly down the grade toward Bergen Street, Newark, N. J., yesterday morning, when Motorman Eugene A. Blair of a Bergen Street car started his car across Springfield Avenue. The Springfield Avenue cars are supposed to come to a stop before starting across Bergen Street, but Blair, when his car was partly across the street, saw that the other car was coming fast, and the motorman apparently could not stop it.

Blair put on full speed, hoping to cross the path of the Springfield Avenue car, but the latter was too swift and crashed into Blair's car amidships. The car was torn from its trucks, and the passengers were thrown into heaps against its sides.

The Springfield Avenue car had its platform broken, but Motorman Grover Hankinson was not hurt. From Blair's car came the yells from frightened passengers, and when the last of them had been helped from the car it was found that twenty-two men and women had been cut and bruised, only one, however, Henry Cordes of 477 Bergen Street, sufficiently to be taken to the City Hospital. Cordes, who is 74 years old, had his head and hands burned from a heater, against which he was thrown when the collision occurred.

EXCISE BOARD TRICKED.

Former "Kid McCoy's" Place Gets License Which It May Lose Again.

A trick played on the State Excise Department was revealed yesterday by an application made to Supreme Court Justice Ford. The application was for the revocation of a liquor license for the premises 120 West Thirty-eighth Street. This place, now known as the Café Revue, was formerly known as the Normandie and earlier as "Kid McCoy's." It occupies the basement of the Hotel Normandie.

The liquor license of the place was revoked for disorder by the Appellate Division, which sustained the judgment of the court below. The license revoked was in the name of Elise Ruehl and was for the premises 1,384 and 1,386 Broadway. When John Whalen made application for a new license for the place he described it in his petition as 120 West Thirty-eighth Street. This is simply another designation of the same premises. The device was successful, and Whalen got the license.

Now the State Excise Department confesses that it was deceived and holds that the new license may be revoked under the law which prohibits a reissued license for a place convicted of disorder during a prescribed time. Justice Ford reserved decision.

Worried Over New Job, a Suicide.

Frank J. Thieme, 23 years old, of 150 Littleton Avenue, Newark, N. J., was found dead at noon yesterday with a tube leading from a gas jet in his mouth. Thieme had been employed as a bookkeeper for the Murphy Varnish Company, and recently was made a salesman. Since then he had worried because he feared he would not be capable of handling his new duties.

MAN DIES; LANDLADY ACCUSED

Bartender Told the Police She Gave Him Ammonia.

Michael Bolone, a young bartender, who for a year and a half had boarded with Mrs. Emily Palash at 90 Greenwich Street, died yesterday in the Hudson Street Hospital of ammonia poisoning. Mrs. Palash was arrested on a charge of homicide, after Bolone, the police say, had accused her shortly before his death of having given to him the ammonia.

Bolone was removed from his home to the hospital last Tuesday, and there was hope at first of saving his life. He grew weak yesterday morning, and detectives from the Greenwich Street Station questioned him, afterward arresting Mrs. Palash. Mrs. Palash denies having given the ammonia to Bolone, saying that he took it himself last Tuesday to cure a headache, and that after he became ill she called in a doctor and nursed him.

Coroner Feinberg ordered Mrs. Palash held until to-day, when he will question her.

The BURROWES Red Cedar WINDOW-SEAT CHEST

A beautiful, massive, solid Chest, large and commodious.
21-in. wide
21-in. deep
(On Easy Payments)

"Grandfather's Cedar Chest" is a treasure practically without price in every household fortunate enough to have such a possession. Your grandchildren will have the same feeling toward your Burrowes Window-Seat Chest. It is the handsomest, most substantial, most useful Cedar Chest ever produced, and will last for generations. It is a striking piece of furniture—massive and solid—made of mountain-grown aromatic Tennessee Red Cedar (the only moth-proof kind), retaining all the wonderful natural graining of the wood, and tastefully decorated with strong, studded bands of oxidized bronze.

But even its great beauty and the sentimental value attached to it are small considerations compared with its constant usefulness. It provides absolute protection for furs, clothing, blankets, etc., against moths, mice, dust or dampness, and saves all storage charges on perishable articles. No home should be without its Burrowes Red Cedar Chest. The constant satisfaction it affords in so many ways is worth far more than its moderate price. The Burrowes Chests cost less—are better value—than any other Chests sold.

THE NEW LILY OF FRANCE CORSETS

Peau de Suede

The new and exclusive imported fabric, soft, clinging and pliable, but absolutely unstretchable; of an entirely different nature from all other corset materials.

LILY OF FRANCE TRADE MARK CORSETS

The new model has a very low bust, with long, slender, graceful lines, lightly boned, avoiding all discomfort and pressure, giving absolute freedom over the diaphragm, and sufficient fullness about the limbs when sitting.

This model provides a perfect feeling of ease, besides demonstrating the dainty and refined taste of the wearer
